He Was Intoxicated and Had Narrow Escape from Very Serious Injury-Rev. D. D. Hopkins, of Wales, Preached Last Night in the First Welsh Baptist Church-Mrs. Graham Arrested on a Charge of Theft-Funeral of Mrs. Joseph Miles of Meridian Street.

A man whose name could not be scertained, visited the home of John Morgan on Keyser avenue about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. He was in an intoxicated condition. He knocked at the front door of Mr. Morgan's house and not receiving any response he went to the rear door. Mr. Morgan awoke and went to the window and asked who was there. The stranger did not answer, and being somewhat startled by Mr. Morgan's voice, he toppled over the banister, a distance of twelve feet. Word was sent to the West Side station house and Patrolman Saul went to the scene. He afterwards sent word for the Lackawanna hospital ambu-The unfortunate man was taken to that institution where upon examination it was found that in falling he struck on his head and shoulder causing several bruises. His escape from serious injury was miraculous,

SOUTH SCRANTON.

Thomas Kelley, whom the leaders of Democracy in the Nineteenth ward have during the past week figured upon as the candidate for common council to combat against William J. Smith, the Republican nominee, may not be the choice of the Democrats for that honor. The result of the ward caucus, held at Donnelly's saloon Friday night, has brought about surprises. The candidacy of Julius Troy for the nomination was considered as a joke, but Julius on the first count received but two votes less than Kelley, and he then made a howl, finding two votes of his under the table. A second tally made Troy and Kelley tie, each receiving 143 votes. Saturday and yesterday the leaders and friends of the two candidates came togother to effect a compromise. Both sides were obdurate with regards to concessions. The conference ended by the agreement that Kelley and Troy remain out of the fight, and anothe caucus be held today. Martin J. May, the grocer and undertaker, of Prospect avenue and River street, is being strongly urged to become the compromise candidate. He will accept the nomination if tendered to him by a unanimous vote. Attorney John J. Murphy, committeeman, has issued the call for the caucus today, to be held at John J. Moran's place, on Prospect avenue, between the hours of 4 and ?

When raised to a standing position his face from the lower lip to the chin was found to be laid open. Blood flowed from it in streams. The boy was removed to his home and Dr. John J. Walsh hastily called. It required the doctor's utmost efforts to stop the flow of blood. James was rapidly sinking, and for an hour his death appeared THESE FOR TO-DAY ONLY and for an hour his death appeared certain. He rallied later, and the gash was closed with the insertion of five stitches.

MISS RUMPLER BURNED.

She Was Formerly a Resident of This City.

Miss Emma Rumpler, formerly of this city, was burned to death at Pas-saic, N. J., Saturday morning. When Miss Rumpler resided here her father was proprietor of a bakery in the Barrett building on Spruce street. The Philadelphia Press of yesterday contained the following story of the sad

Passaic, Jan. 21—Because she loved her trinkets, Miss Emma Rumpler ear-ly this morning risked and lost her life needlessly. She was burned to death, vhile trying to save her jewelry. while trying to save her jewelry, in a lire that destroyed her father's bakery

The fire was discovered at 5 o'clock and Rumpler and his family, who lives over the store were partly suffocated by the dense smoke, and were rescued with lifficulty.

It was supposed that all had been saved but when Rumpler had revived in the open air and began to look around for his family Emma was missing.

At that moment the young woman ran to one of the front windows in her night attire, and, had she stayed there, she would not have lost her life. Instead of remaining at the window until rescued. the young woman returned to her room to recover her jewelry and she did not again appear. She was overcome by the Change of life smoke, and when the fire was out her burned body was found. She was 21 years old. The other occupants of the ullding escaped without injuries Rumpler is almost crazed by his double of his lifetime. He had amassed a comortable fortune in his bakery, where the dead young woman acted as cashier,

UNCONSCIOUS INFLUENCES. "I was growing worse all the time,

Subject of Rev. James H. Benninger's Discourse in the R. R. Y. M. C. A. Yesterday Afternoon.

At yesterday's regular Sunday afternoon gospel meeting of the Railroad Young Men's Christian association, an ddress was delivered by Rev. J. H. Benninger. He spoke of "Our Uncon scious Influence."

Mr. Benninger began his talk with reference to the visit of Peter at Jerusalem and the scene at Soloman's porch where an excited crowd had gathered to witness the apostle's work among the sick and afflicted who had been brought to him there. Mr. Benninger continued:

Each individual exerts an influence julet, perhaps, but real unconscious but pertain. The poisoned garment of Her-cules, in the legend, clung no closer to him than does the shadow of influence o every one of us. B. F. Hallock said. "Not what we have, but what we are gives force to character." We are all in danger of thinking more what we will do than what we will be. The motion of the earth is not noticed by common observation. No one can see how the moon attracts, but it does attract and does it silently though unconsciously to us.

Our influences, if evil will blight and curse other lives. We often hear it remarked that "time is the great destroyer of all agencies." But it is not time so much as man. Man is the great destroyer. History reveals the ruined empire and cities and palaces and stately ca thedrals all ruined by hand of man Scientists tell us that if you drop a peb de on the beach of the ocean it will produce a ripple which will expand until it touches the opposite shore of the ocean So great is the effect of a little deed Men may preach and exhort but after all it is character which influences and moves the world. What a given man does in a community is more than what all others say, because the decd comes before words and if the deed is evil it not only affects the man but it will blight and curse other lives. For our influence we are most solemn y responsible. To dodge a question doe ot answer it; to hide our guilt does not pardon it. In like manner, to think we have no inuffence does not lessen the responsibility. We are most solemnly reponsible for our influence for three rea ons: First, because we are accountable for what we are; second, because we have the possibilty within for doing good; third, because if we would we cannot

Our influence if good will cast shad ows of blessing. This thought should sweeten all our lives, encourage hope and brighten existence. We cannot, like Peter, heal the sick in the temple, but we can so live that into whatever homes w may go our presence will bring a smilof pleasure and a shadow of blessing,

SMALL BOILER EXPLODED.

Result Was Much Noise, but Not Much Damage. A boiler in a planing mill on Madison avenue, Dunmore, exploded Saturday morning with a loud report. A small part of the building was damaged and a large crowd of excited people was attracted to the place under the belief that men had been injured and possibly killed, though such was not the case The mill is owned by D. K. Oakley.

a carpentry contractor, and is in the rear of his residence. The boiler was a small one, its capacity being but 20horse power. While the power of the explosion was heard for many blocks, the force created was comparatively slight, as much of it was expended through one break about five inches square.

Only a few men are employed in the mill and none of them was near the botler. The fireman, William Steere. says only a normal pressure of steam was on when the explosion occurred.

GREAT AUDIENCE OF MEN.

Listened to State Secretary S. M. Bard, of the Y. M. C. A., in the Lyceum Theater Yesterday Afternoon.

The fine weather brought out a great audience of men at the Lyceum theater meeting yesterday. That the ministers of the city are back of the movement represented by these meetings was evident from the number present at yesterday's meeeting.

The association orchestra rendered a striking overture by Weber and a trombone solo with orchestra accompaniment, "Romanze," by Bennett, was played by John Turn. The Schubert quartette, composed of Messrs. Beynon, Stevens, Jones and Watkins, sang three selections, "Onward and Upward," "A Land That Is Fairer Than Day" and "Two Paths." The perfect stillness all over the house as these three numbers were being rendered testified to the thorough enjoyment of the audience.

State Secretary S. M. Bard spoke briefly, but with great clearness and force on the theme, "And I it I Be Lifted Up Will Draw All Men Unto Me." This passage, he said, referred back to a well known event in Jewish history when for their sins they were smitten with a plague of serpents. Many of them were bitten and were dying, but God commanded that a brazen serpent be lifted upon a pole, and said that he who looked upon it would be healed. To men in the nineteenth century who are smitten with the virus of sin Christ says: "Look unto Me and be ye saved all the ends of the earth." Just so sure as the look at the brazen serpent in obedience to God brought healing in the old ways, so he who now looks at Jesus, whether he be a big sinner or a little sinner, will find the sin poison stamped out and a new life coursing through his nature.

A large number remained for an after service at which there were thirty or more speakers who crowded their remarks into ten minutes, and at the close of this service a number of men stated before those present that they had determined to look to Jesus, and hereafter live for him. In many respects this was the best meeting ye held and many men seemed to be yet under the power of the remarkable address by Dr. Lansing, which they had listened to the week before, A rousing meeting of the Christian workers and all who are interested in these meetings is to be held tomorrow evening in room 21, Connell building,

FIRE IN JUDGE'S CAFE.

Smoke Kills Many Birds in a Store Next Door. Fire was discovered in the Opera

Cafe of Jim Judge, the boxer, at 319 Spruce street, about 3.30 o'clock yesterday morning. The flames and water wrecked the saloon, but the adjoining buildings were not damaged Judge's loss is a total one. He carried no insurance. The building is owned by the Williams' estate.

The smoke killed a large number of birds in Friedman's bird and animal store at No. 308. Many of the birds were of a rare variety. None of the animals in the store were suffocated Friedman estimates his loss at $100. The cause of the fire is not known but the flames are supposed to have started in a curtain near a lighted gas
