What Chief Bonner Offered for a Burning Building-A Man Whose Life Was Not Worth a Dollar.

"I would not give ten cents for that block." So said Chief Bonner of the New York Fire Department during the great conflagration in that city on Sunday night, December 4, 1898.

In the midst of the howling gale and falling rain the men fought like the Old Guard at Waterloo and in the end with far better success. Yet there were moments of intense doubt and anxiety. But before daylight broke on the wild scene, the Commander of the little army of rescue drew a deep breath of relief-he had the situation in the palm of his hand.

So far as we know, men have always been fighting disease which is a worse affliction than fire-have been trying to understand it and suppress it. What have we learned? We have not learned everything, but we have learned much. We can help all ailments; some we can cure. Sufferers from disease want help, no matter what it is or where it comes from,

That is why people are continually writing such letters as these: Dear Sir-"You will remember my describing in a former letter how terribly I suffered from chronic kidney trouble and how hopeless my condition was at that time. I had consulted doctor after doctor, from general practitioners to eminent specialists, with one uniform result. They looked wise and talked well, but they did not help me. But I wanted what all sufferers want-relief, not reasons,"

In my other letter I said I would not take one hundred thousand dollars for what your great discovery had done for me. Today I say I would not take a million dollars for what Warner's Safe Cure did for me. When I took the first dose, I was so full of despair of my future, that I would not have given a dollar for my chances in this world. Yet because of this medicine only, life is as sweet and precious to me as to any other man, L. O. COLLINS, Parmville, Va. (Signed) Readers, do not give yourself up for drowned until there is no spar to cling to. If in the big New York fire Chief Ronner had been able to buy the threatened block for ten cents, he would now be the luckiest real estate holder in the country. If Mr. Collins had sold himself for a dollar at the time of his despair, he would have been a very foolish man. Take no counsel with doubt and despair. The greatest conflagrations are put out with perseverance and water, and dangerous diseases yield to Warner's Safe Cure.

This City Is Not Near Its Limit as to Indebtedness.

The import of the resolution regarding fire alarm, introduced in common council Monday evening by G. B. Van Gorder, does not seem to be thoroughly understood even by some of the members of the upper house, one of whom remarked that it was taking away from councils power given them by their constitutents when they were

The resolution does nothing of the sort nor does it handicap them in any way. It simply provides-or will provide, if adopted—an opportunity for the voters to say whether they desire an increase of the city's debt or not. Neither should it be inferred that the city has reached its limit of indebtedness without holding a special election. Councils have authority to issue bonds to the amount of nearly $30,000 without asking anybody. The reason they have not done so is because of the fear of hard times caused by the gravity scarof a few months ago.

In connection with the regular election to be held next month the will of the people may very easily and inexpensively be ascertained and there is no reason why it should not be. If a majority should vote for bonds for a fire alarm system-as it undoubtedly would-councilmen would take no chance of being censured for increasing the debt.

The resolution is very specific in the ing on the city any further than as an expression of opinion.

Miss Chanler is another young woman of great wealth, a member of the Astor family, who, with Miss Anna Boulingny, established a hospital for officers at Ponce and another afterward at San Juan at her own expense. She still supports them, although she has returned home and left them in charge of the army surgeons.

Miss Annie Wheeler showed great denurse at Santiago, and afterward at Montauk Point. Her application for employment in the regular hospital corps was rejected by the surgeon gen eral and the Red Cross because she was not a trained nurse and had had no experience, but she accompanied her father on the Santiago expedition and when he went to the front she remained in the rear and took care of th sick and wounded. The National Society of the Daughters of the Revolution will erect a monument to commemorate the heroism and sacrifice of Rubina Walworth Her mother was one of the three founders of that order and she was the worth of New York. Who will erect a monument or pro vide a gold medal in honor of Sister Mary Larkin, a sweet nun from Emmitsburg, Md., who died of yellow fever, or offer a similar tribute to the heroism of another brave volunteer nurse who died at Chickamauga? Fifteen hundred contract nurses were nployed by the medical corps during the war and there were about 150 volunteers. The exact number is not known, because their names were not upon the rolls. Twelve of the contract nurses sacrificed their lives and the three volunteers I have referred to died in the harness. This is a remarkably small percentage, only fifteen out of a total of 1,650 who endured the climate. the hardships and exposure to contagious diseases, but among the living as well as the dead are many yet unhonored and unsung whose services deserve special recognition.

FACTS ABOUT SAMOA.

Germany Wants to Rule the Little Group, Though Her Trade There Is Very Small.

the services of the modest little woman worth of goods from the United States, in behalf of the American army. All $13,322 from Great Britain and only $5,4 the rival associations admit her claims. | 562 from Germany. The Germans, however, prepare and export a great homeless soldiers than any other indi- deal of copra, and they own most of vidual and spent as much for the re-lief from her own purse as was raised islands. Of the 135,000 acres, about one-sixth of the area of the group owned by foreigners, at least $5,000 acres, including the best land in the islands. s owned by the Germans. This landed estate was secured by the original German trading firm, and its successors have never parted with an acre of it.

The great drawback of Samoa is that it is so far from markets. Its best products are tropical fruits which are abundantly produced, but distance California is fifteen days by steam. and freight rates are prohibitive. Besides, California is itself a fruit country. New Zealand is five days distant, but its whole population is not much nore than that of Baltimore, Sidney is eight days away by steam, but Australia and New Zealand have islands nearer them, notably Fiji, which grow all the tropical fruits they want. So no fruit is shipped from Apia, the only port of the islands. In 1888 the Ceylon coffee disease first appeared on the plantations of Samoa, and in a short time put an end to coffee production in that group. No attempt ias since been made to raise coffee, Practically the whole business of Samea is based today upon the cocoa. nut, and the export of copra, the dried meat of the cocoanut, represents nearly all the exports of the islands. In 1897, nearly 11,000,000 pounds of copra, the native product, were exported in addition to the large quantity raised on the German plantations. But even in her copra Samoa is not particularly fortunate. Some fifteen years ago there was an enermous demand for copra, with the result that the eccoanut tree was planted on the coasts of every sea where it would grow. A few years later the markets were glutted with copra, prices fell about one-half, and the days of the prosperity of that trade have not since returned. What with her political troubles and the causes that have conspired to keep her commerce small, Samoa has not had a very prosperous history. The time is coming, however, when she will see better days. The resources of tha group, which, all told, is about as large arge as Rhode Island, have yet scarcely been touched. In fact, nobody lives more than three or four miles from the sea and the inner parts of the islands

A continued story is rendered the more "leaving off in an interesting date," but this very common literary stocedure may be overdone. One instan-ment of a story recently published in a newspaper, for instance, ended the following startling way: "Upon hearing this the young girl, ren-dered honeless and indifferent to the world, allowed herself to full negligently

This situation was evidently borrowed from a continued story once written by Artenues Ward, entitled "The Pair Incg. it the heroine was left, at the end of one installment of the story, falling from the top of a tall tower to the earth. She had dropped about one-half of the c ance when the story was in To be continued in our next."

in the next number a farmer very op-portunely passed beneath the tower with a load of hay, upon which the fair Incz ell without injury. Still another way of confinuing a story is to break it off just where it happens to suit, without reference to what the situation hay be. This method has been satirized by another humorist, who asserts that a story in a German periodical was broken off in the middle of one of the long German verbs. Not all the verb could be got into the first number. The interest of the foreign reader, at any rate, was heightened by his deare to know in what combination of letters the word could possibly bring up .- Tit-Bitts
