THE CITY'S INSURANCE.

Agents Seek Equitable Allotment. Common Council's Doing.

About the only thing that enlivened common council meeting last evening were the addresses of Jeremiah O'Hearn and P. F. Moffitt on the insurance question.

Leonard Campbell, chairman of the committee that made the recommendation, said it was because Mr. O'Hearn had made no application.

P. F. Moffitt called attention to the fact that he has been a taxpayer for years and that his parents before him had been, hence he thought he was entitled to a big slice and said he wouldn't be backward about asking for it if he thought they would give it to him.

For the past three years W. R. Baker has held the lion's share, having placed $9,000 with his company.

The following resolution introduced by Leonard Campbell was adopted: That insurance on city property be awarded as follows: To Couch agency, $2,500; J. H. Bridgett, $2,500; J. H. Reese, $2,500; P. F. Moffitt, $2,500 on city building; W. R. Baker, $1,500 on Mitchell house; J. O'Hearn $1,500 on Columbia house; J. O'Hearn $1,500.

This insurance is to take effect March 28.

G. R. Van Gorder introduced an ordinance providing for flagstone sidewalks on Terrace street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. It was referred to the street committee.

An ordinance annexing First ward territory along Garfield avenue, Spring street, Lincoln avenue, Laurel and Grove streets to the First sewer district was also referred to the committee.

young people gathered at his home on Thursday evening last. In a short time after their arrival they were transformed into a weird group of phantoms and with Miss Bessie Buckingham presiding at the piano they began their ghastly march through the spacious parlors and called forth much merriment. In a short time, however, masks were thrown aside and in games and music the hours passed quickly by.

ARCHBALD.

Mr. James Mullen, of Church street, died Sunday morning, death being due to heart failure.

NO SLEEP FOR THREE MONTHS

One Cause of Sleeplessness That Can be Overcome.

Mr. Wm. Hunsicker, of 46th street, Cotton Alley, Pittsburg, Pa., expresses himself as follows regarding the new remedy for that common and obstinate ailment, describing all forms of the disease and describing the method of cure.

Very often two or three boxes have made a complete cure of chronic cases that had not yielded to other remedies for years.

There is scarcely a disease more aggravating and obstinate to cure than the various forms of piles, and it is a common practice to use ointments, salves and similar preparations containing dangerous poisons to remove the trouble.

If in doubt as to the nature of your trouble send to The Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for a valuable booklet on piles, describing all forms of the disease and describing the method of cure.

The Henry Grattan society of the city, one of our most progressive Irish organizations, will make a proper observance of Robert Emmet's birthday on March 4, at the Keystone hall.

WEAK, WEARY WOMEN.

"Tired and broken down women, whose lives are made miserable through the blighting influences of female complaints, why do you suffer?" "Why will you allow yourself to become 'blue,' discouraged and dependent?" "Why will you endure the torture of backache, headache, bearing down pains, nervousness and other weaknesses caused by rheumatism or head troubles?"

"If you suffer thus, it is wholly needless and entirely your own fault." "There is help for you and for all other women who suffer this way." "Let me read you these words, which were recently penned by a woman who suffered, who endured, who thought and found relief." "Mrs. H. P. G. Carnes, one of the best known ladies in Butler, Pa., says: 'For nearly three years I was under the doctor's care, a constant sufferer from female weaknesses in the most aggravated form.'"

"Medicine did me no good and my suffering was so great that at times I felt that death would be a relief." "At last your druggist recommended me to try a remedy about which I had heard much, but knew little."

"I took his advice and before I had finished one bottle, I was astonished at the marvelous change it made in my health."

"I am rejoiced to say that it completely cured me. I am now feeling perfectly well, able to attend to all my duties and I believe I owe my life and continued good health wholly to the use of Warner's Safe Cure."

"This is only one case among thousands in which Warner's Safe Cure has been the means of curing the distressing ailments peculiar to women."

"Time and again it has proved to be unequalled for giving quick and permanent relief."

"No woman who wishes to escape misery, to avoid suffering, to replace delicacy and weakness with health and strength, can afford to be without this grand discovery."

"It is a remedy that can be relied upon, a remedy that never fails and one that has proved to be women's best friend."

SETTLEMENT IN THE OCEAN.

Forty Men Living on Christmas Island, and Which Was Said to Be Worthless.

From the Sun.

There is no speak in the ocean big enough to set foot on where men are not settling down nowadays, if they think there is a chance of making a little money. This is how it happens that about forty men are living to-day on Christmas Island, one of the lonely spots in the Indian Ocean, about 200 miles south of Java.

The island is shaped something like a dumb-bell, about ten miles long, and in its widest part has a width of about five miles.

In 1887 the British surveying vessel Flying Fish was ordered to make an examination of the island. It found an anchorage place in one of the bays and a number of men were landed. They reported that the island was of little value, and no serious attempt at exploration was made.

A few years later it was discovered that rich beds of phosphate of lime are on the island, and in 1896 Mr. Andrew Ross, brother of the man who owns the Cocos Keeling Islands, made the journey to Christmas Island and decided that money was to be made by settling there. He went back for his family and a few men from Cocos and then returned to the island. Near the shores of Flying Fish Cove a number of substantial houses have been erected. Wells have been sunk and fruit trees and coconut palms planted, and a small experimental plantation of coffee has also been made. The results thus far leave no doubt that the island is well suited for coffee growing.

In May, last year, Mr. Ross had just imported a number of coolies from Java to work on the necessary preparations for working the valuable deposits of phosphate of lime. The population then numbered about forty.

Most of the island is covered with forest. Its climate is delightful, and during the greater part of the year resembles a hot summer temperate climate. In the rich phosphate soil the trees grow to great height. Animal life is seldom abundant on oceanic islands, and Christmas Island is no exception. There are only five species of mammals, two kinds of rats, a shrewmouse and two bats. The presence of the rats and the mouse must be accounted for by supposing that they drifted to the island on floating wood, while the bats reached it by flight, owing to the absence of food and the absence of enemies, the rats swarm everywhere. Birds of passage appear in the rainy season, and include many varieties.

ROMANCE STILL LIVES.

In Spite of the Opposition of Certain Literary Critics.

From the New York Sun.

While Professor Brander Matthews has been standing guard over the English language, his older enemy, Romantic Fiction, has broken out of the donjon keep, leaped over the moat and is again in what Professor Matthews would call "our midst."

Two versions of the elder Dumas' "Les Trois Mousquetaires" are to be produced on the New York stage next spring. We tremble to think of the thousands of persons who will be led by this means to make the acquaintance of our old friends, D'Artagnan, Athos, Porthos and Aramis. We tremble to think of the dog logic with which Romantic Fiction has broken out of the immortal works of Professor Matthews and Mr. Hamlin Garland, but who will take down their dog-eared copy of the "Three Guardsmen" and waste the precious hours even as Mr. Matthews used to do. They may not be able to go to the theatre, those old romantics, but they can still read of Athos, Porthos, Aramis and D'Artagnan.

For the instruction of the young and the confusion of the old, Professor Matthews should show once more the essential sustain and fertility of this absurd story. He should not neglect to remark that nobody could really drink so much Spanish wine as is said to have run down the distinguished person of shocking taste; that Aramis dissembled too much and that D'Artagnan could never have been elected a member of the American Peace society. Then the informal improbability of the fellest! The Hon. Aladdin Atkinson or some other Boston statesman has computed that there is enough gilt of steel in the "Three Musketeers" to read a whole volume of the United States Census Bureau, more than to read Dumas is evident to all good men.

As to the amount of fighting in this regrettable book, it is incredible and disgusting. Dumas should have made his swashbucklers resort to arbitration. Then as Professor Matthews will not fall to demonstrate, there is so much motion in the book that several gentlemen who ride the wooden horse for their lives' sake, scout the story as a hash of improbabilities. Finally, the wretched composition is interesting, and consequently immoral and intolerable.

Professor Matthews should be sure to rate Sir Walter Scott, too. It is notorious that "Quentin Durward" started Dumas on his career of crime. As for those absurd watchwords, "One for all" and "All for one," how much better it would have been if Dumas had given his years to serious study and anticipated the great modern absurdity of sixteen to one.
