

Social Personal

Fewer Lenten readings and students' masses are in vogue here this season than usual. It had been hoped that Plinkett Greene would come for a recital and that Miss Jane Meade Welch, the famous writer and lecturer on American history, would be here but at present the plans for these entertainments are at a stand still.

Among the literary treats of the month will be Professor Winchester's lectures on "Castles of England," at the Lyceum, on the 28th.

Mr. J. Ben Dimmick's beautiful home was the scene of a memorable assembly Thursday night at the Yale Alumni "smoker."

Ladies of the Hill district are beseeching the heads of their households instead of trying new curtains for the drawing room.

Dr. and Mrs. G. D. Murray gave a theater party on Thursday evening for Misses Alice and Helen Matthews and their guests.

The next important literary event of the season will be the appearance of Professor S. H. Clark, who will read at the Lyceum March 11 for the benefit of the Young Women's Christian association.

Mr. Watson Griffin, of Pinesburg, who is convalescing from a severe illness, is visiting friends in the North End.

HER POINT OF VIEW

A little maid, just grown to womanhood, writes: Dear Saucy Boss: You know a great many girls and you look upon them from a different point of view than they look upon each other.

I've always thought that when people ask advice it is well to find out the kind they want and give 'em that.

It is lovely to be a young girl with all the beautiful opportunities life offers before her, but I fear that Madge, or any other girl who has not laid the foundations for popularity in earlier years, will find some difficulty in adjusting herself to the necessities.

As to originality, that depends on the type selected; that depends on what takes great pride in being original in dress. To the observer this is chiefly displayed in the unfriendly terms apparently existing between her skirt and her belt in the back, and in the peculiarly unbecoming cut of the shoulders and the rickish angle at which they are pitched.

Another girl I know decides it to be a mark of originality to criticize people very kindly for their small or great vanities, when their self-love is simply bent on encouraging a most offensive ill-temper and discontent.

Originality, which is gained by audacity in telling risque stories, in using street slang, and in daring conventionalities isn't to be desired, neither is that which leads a girl to be a pride who affects horror at the natural stambulations of good health and good temper, who is cold and unsympathetic because it is "so common" to be enthusiastic and pleased with the pleasant things of life.

To my mind so-called society people are rather more sincere than the others, for they are apt to keep their ugly thoughts in the background, which has a tendency to destroy such thoughts and to speak about only the pleasant kind, things they think the other girls are easy to cultivate a habit of thinking kind thoughts, although perhaps not as easy as to form a habit of entertaining disagreeable

MARCH, APRIL, MAY

Paine's Celery Compound the Best Spring Medicine in the World.

Spring finds everybody more or less "run down." "Spring lassitude" is not an empty phrase. It is not a superstition or a worn-out saying, but a strictly scientific fact.

Prudent people all over the country appreciate the fact that in the spring the health is more under every one's control than at any other time, and, whether sick or well—

Nature, the kindest and gentlest of nurses, is disposed, during these spring days, to put the blood and nerves in a healthy condition and no remedy so ably seconds her effort as Paine's celery compound.

As soon as spring sets in—it is now the season—everybody has more or less a feeling of languor; there is diminished appetite, disturbed sleep, less buoyancy of spirit and less disposition to exercise; some people are so indolent that they have to keep in the house and number: take to their beds.

The irritability of temper, the peevishness, drowsiness, and uneasiness that comes in spring, shows that the nerves and brain are the chief sufferers.

Nervousness, that so often appears at this season, inserts the thin edge of the wedge that opens the way for a long list of maladies. If you are overworked, haggard from sleepless nights, nervous and unhappy, do not give way to dread and depression before you have tried Paine's celery compound. It is the one fair test of this wonderful remedy—to try it.

Now spring has come, the tired feelings and "out of sorts" condition are to warn one that the blood is impure and the nerves "run-down." Paine's celery compound assists nature at this critical time. It supplies a scientific nerve food. Taken now, it will enable the body to throw off headaches, rheumatism and ailments akin to nervousness. It will sweep out every impurity from the blood, and will nourish the nerves and brain. It is the most effective, accurate spring remedy ever formulated.

MUSICAL QUESTION BOX.

Professor J. Alfred Pennington, director of the Scranton Conservatory of Music and organist of Kim Park church, has consented to reply to questions concerning musical subjects.

C. L.—I would like your opinion regarding the best method of improving congregational singing.

Answer.—The first method I have to offer towards the improvement of congregational singing would begin with the improvement in the hymn-books used in the churches.

Prof. H. E. Cogswell, of Binghamton, formerly a student of this city, has been named as supervisor of music in the public schools of Syracuse.
