

THE AMERICANS SEIZE MALINTA

Aguinaldo's Troops Are Strongly Intrenched and Fight with Desperation.

AMERICAN LOSS 25 KILLED

Col. Harry C. Egbert, of the 22nd Regular Infantry, Killed—Prince Lowenstein Also Killed. Advance of the United States Troops Up the Malinta Railroad Is Fiercely Resisted by the Filipinos—General Wheaton's Brigade Held in Check by a Burned Bridge—Several Prostrations from the Heat Among Our Troops. Last Stand at Malolos.

MANILA, March 27.—9.15 a. m.—The Filipinos are burning their stronghold at Malabon and their forces are fleeing from the city in the direction of Malolos. General MacArthur's division is pushing toward Malabon. The insurgents will make their last stand probably at Malolos.

Manila, March 26.—5.30 p. m.—The United States troops, under Brigadier General Lloyd Wheaton, captured the town of Malinta, beyond the Tullahan river, today after a sharp fight. Colonel Harry C. Egbert, of the Twenty-second regular infantry, was killed. Prince Lowenstein, formerly aide-de-camp on the staff of Brigadier General Miller at Holo, somehow got in front of the firing line and was shot in the side, dying almost instantly. A German who accompanied him was wounded.

The American casualties today were much lighter than those of yesterday, the total losses this far reported since the engagement commenced being 45 killed and 145 wounded.

General Wheaton entered Malinta, which is a small village of huts, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The United States gunboat Helena and other gunboats have been shelling Malinta, about a mile northwest of Calocan, for several hours.

The insurgents made a fierce resistance to the American advance up the railroad at Malinta. In addition to the fatal wounding of Colonel Egbert, several men of the Twenty-second infantry and several of the Oregon and Kansas regiments were killed.

Evidently anticipating a bombardment by the fleet, a thousand rebels vacated Malabon last night, leaving a few to burn the town.

General Wheaton's brigade, composed of the Second Oregon regiment and the Twenty-second and Third infantry, stretched out along the railroad from Calocan to the Tullahan river, was powerless to prevent the withdrawal, owing to the natural obstacles and to the strong opposition. A column of smoke at daybreak was the first intimation of the enemy's intentions, but others followed at various points, all soon blending in a dense, balloon-shaped cloud. The flames of the burning rice mills and large buildings could be plainly seen from Calocan, despite the strong sun light.

By 11 o'clock in the morning the only building of importance not destroyed in the center of the town was a large stone church, but even at noon fresh fires were started among the native huts in the outskirts of Malabon, although the general exodus took place much earlier. Many of the rebels sought refuge in the mountains. Navotas and Casag, or were driven inland by the shells of the Helena, Calico, Nigdapan and Laguna de Bay.

Wheaton Held in Check. In the meantime General Wheaton's brigade held the railroad to the river, but was unable either to repair the bridge, which had been destroyed by the enemy on the advance, or to check the opposition and the hills on the other side.

The calculations of both General Hale and General Harrison Gray Otis, whose brigades constitute General MacArthur's division, were interfered with by the character of the country in front of both and the enemy was able to take advantage of this, so that the operations against Navoliches and Polo were delayed, though the right wing of the division swung out, sweeping the enemy in a northwesterly direction.

missing price was in the Philippines, had been there for many months, was present at the destruction of Montejo's fort and was a member of the European club. The dispatch asserted also that his behavior had given rise to a suspicion that he was acting as the confidential agent of the German government. It was further alleged that before Manila surrendered he was allowed to pass in and out of the Spanish and insurgent lines, each party apparently regarding him as favorable to themselves. For a few days, it was reported, he acted as a voluntary aide-de-camp on the staff of Brigadier General Miller.

The London Daily Mail about the same time said it had information that Prince Ludwig was in Holo in January of this year, and with other papers, it asked the meaning of these "mysterious movements."

General Otis' Dispatch. Washington, March 26.—The war department tonight received the following: "Manila, March 26. "Adjutant General, Washington: "MacArthur's advance beyond New-Camayan, two miles beyond Polo, nine miles from Manila and fifteen miles from Malabon; railroad will be repaired to advance point tomorrow and troops supplied by cars. MacArthur will press on tomorrow, is now in open country. Insurgents stoutly resisting behind successive lines of entrenchments, which troops continually drive them. City perfectly quiet and native inhabitants appear to be relieved of anxiety and fear of insurgents. Captain Krayenbuhl, commissary lieutenant, Third artillery, mortally wounded. "Signed) Otis."

It was learned that while the Count was pressing his suit in Paris he had agents in St. Louis investigating the standing of his fiancée. This coming to the knowledge of Miss Allen's relatives, the facts were communicated to her, and she at once dismissed her mercenary suitor.

Miss Allen is one of the wealthiest women of Missouri. She is the daughter of the late Bradford Allen and a charming young woman. She has lived abroad for several years. Count Tolia is divorced, and being a Catholic, Miss Allen as his wife would have to renounce an annulment position in Hungary, as her friends rejoice greatly at the breaking of the engagement.

MURDER AND SUICIDE

Frederick Clark Shoots and Fatally Injures His Wife and Then Kills Himself. Pittsburgh, March 26.—A McKeesport today, Frederick T. Clark shot and fatally wounded his wife at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Richard Moynie, and then killed himself. The man died shortly after the shooting and the wife can hardly survive the night. The shooting was the result of jealousy. The couple had not been living together for some time, and Mrs. Clark had applied for divorce because of Clark's alleged neglect and drunkenness. He made threats several times, saying to his wife: "If we cannot live together, we shall die together." Yet when he went to the Moynie residence Saturday night and announced his intention of remaining all night, he was given a room. This morning he went to church with one of his children and the afternoon went to his wife's room, from whence, in a short time screams were heard and the two shots. Mrs. Moynie rushed to her daughter's room where she was met by Clark who fired at her but missed. Clark then went to his own room and after drinking the contents of a bottle of laudanum put two bullets into his breast, one immediately below the heart. When the murderer was reached he was conscious and said: "I wish I had shot that Thomas, before I died." Thomas is a clerk in Mrs. Clark's father's store, whom Clark accused, without any apparent reason, of ruining his life. Both Clark and his wife belong to good families in McKeesport.
