OUAY WILL REMAIN IN THE FIGHT

Decision Made at a Meetof the Senator's Friends.

OPINION 0F PENROSE

Mr. Quay Will Remain a Candidate for Senator Until the End, and If There Is no Election by the Present Legislature to Submit the Question to the People in the Election Two Years Hence, Harrisburg, March 28 -- An Informal conference of friends of Senator Quay was held tonight at the executive mansion to discuss the senatorial situation. Those present were Senator Penrose, ex-State Treasurer Jackson, of Apollo; General Frank Reeder, of Easton; Insurance Commissioner Durham, Editor James L. Everson and David H. Lane, of Philadelphia: ex-Senator W. H. Andrews, of Titusville; ex-Auditor General Mylin, of Lancaster and Attorney General Eikin. It was decided that Mr. Quay would remain a candidate for United States senator, and if there is no election by the present legislature to submit the question to the people in the election two years hence for members of the legislature.

Representative Bare, of Huntingdon, who has supported Mr. Quay since the balloting begun, has written a letter to State Chairman Elkin stating that he is dissatisfied with the alleged efforts of the senator to prevent the election of a United States senator at this session. Mr. Bare states also that he knows of seven members who have signified their intention of withdrawing their support from Mr. Quay this week unless they are given an opportunity by the senator's friends to vote for some other Republican whom there is a chance of electing. Mr. Quay's managers deny tonight that there are any signs of a break in their lines.

Senator Penrose's Opinion. Senator Boles Penrose, who arrive!

rom Philadelphia this afternoon and vas in consultation with members of the legislature, made the following Within the last statement tonight: twenty-four hours I have been in dire-Quay. He is naturally pleased with the expressions that have some from the Mepublicans of various counties at the recent primary elections, sustaining the action of those members of the legislature who have stood by the Republican caucus nominee on the senatorship. The present countorful contest involves grouper principles than are presented by any individual can didacy. While Senator Quay is the ununinous choice of a legally held cauous of Republican members of the precent legislature, participated in by over wo-fhirds of the Republican members ship of the general assembly, and while his candidacy will be supported by his friends vigorously to the end-ye every stalwart Republican the issue involved is broader than his personal anvass and is overshadowed by the question of the malatenance of party regularity and marry organization, The principle that the will of the majority, egally and freely expressed, must be ustained can be unquestioned. There can be no intercourse or negotiations: looking to settlement as compromise with a beilting, factions minority, Euch a numerity would doubtless be glad of an opportunity to secure such recornition from the regulars as would restors them to standing in the regular organization of the party which they have forfelted. There is only one path open to their veturn and that is acquiescence in the determination of the majority otherwise the political career of each miter will suon be finished. Already the sweeping victories of the regular stalwart Republicans of Pennsylvania who place party success above the cratification of personal revenue or misguided ambition affords unmistakable evidence that the course of the segular Republicans in the legislatura who sustain Senator Quay as the nomnee of the cancus will be averabelmingly vindicated at the next state conention. The regular Republican element will be in absolute control of that convention and the result will be the elimination from the Republican orcanization of those who have been
