Some time ago a local board of trade was organized under flourishing conditions and many have waited patiently for the outcome. Land was donated, promises of exoneration from borough taxes and many other first class inducements were thrown out as an inlucment for manufacturing concerns to locate within our berough borders, but up to date we have failed to hear anything encouraging from our local board of trade. Meanwhile, our neighboring towns are hustling and at the present time negotiating with concerns, with the result that they will no doubt land the prize they seek. Would it not be a good plan for the president of the local board to call another meeting and hustling things along?
