COUNTRY BANKS ARE MAKING KNOWN THEIR PROTESTS.

Believe the Action of the New York Clearing House Association in Making a Charge for the Collection of Country Checks Is Very Arbitrary-Already Evidence of Retaliation on the Part of Banks and Business Men Has Cropped

Scranton being a New York town, is affected in no small degree by the act of the New York Clearing House association imposing a charge for collecting country checks. No action has been taken by our local banks by way of retaliation, as has been done in ome other cities, but a strong sentiment is growing in favor of doing something in opposition to this arbitrary act, and it would not be surprising if something along that line would oe done before long. W. H. Peck, of the Third National bank, president of the Scranton Clearing House association, favors imitating the Hartford, Conn., clearing house, which adopted resolutions declaring the action of the New York association to be arbitrary and opposed to the principles of justice and good business.

In the Hartford Courant, simultaneously with the resolutions, there apinspired editorial saving:

The country banks will not stand the charge. They may wait a while to see if the New York bankers will not change of their own accord, but otherwise they will act for themselves. They may, as New Haven suggests, charge for collecting checks on New York and make checks on Philadelphia, Chicago and other centers free of collection

WANT THEIR BUSINESS. The Scranton banks can if they so oose, make it emphatically apparent to the New York association that its action is not looked upon with favor here. At present nearly all the New England and much Western and Southern business is transacted through New York. Since the New York banks determined upon charging for collecting, the Boston, Baltimore and Chicago banks have invited the 'country banks' to open accounts with them, volunteering to make the collections without charge. The loss of these balances to the New York banks would more than offset what they would lose by doing the collecting free The depositors have devised various means of making the new order unpopular. Many of them stamp acros

Many merchants here have received notices from New York houses with which they do business, that the extra charge for collecting their checks will be charged up to their accounts. The Scranton men have responded by say "Smith, Jones & Co., of Philadelphia, whose price list compares favorably with yours, will accept our checks at par." at least modify it. HOWL HAD ITS EFFECT.

The howl that went up against the new order, even before it went into operation, had its effect. Originally it was intended to charge ten cents as a minimum on any check. This, how-ever, was modified so that small checks ould be grouped and collected at the regular charge of one-tenth of 1 per cent, on the whole amount. For example; Under the original plans, if Scranton house sent 100 checks at $1 apiece for collection through a New York bank, a charge of ten cents apiece, or $10, would be made. Under the modification these checks would be Examiners for Broome county, and one grouped and charged for at the rate of of the best physicians in Southern New one-tenth of I per cent, or ten cents. The sentiment of the Scranton bankers who were interviewed on the matter is that with proper modifications the new rule would be acceptable. The should be left to the discretion of each to be built in the near future. bank, Mr. Peck thought. If a depositor who keeps a balance of only $100 let. should want a check collected it would be no more than right to make a reasonable charge for so doing. On the other hand, if the depositor was one eral cars of stone already loaded on a ought to be allowed to reciprocate with him for the use of his balance by making the collection for him free of charge.

It is just possible that some "country" clearing house will take aggressive steps to oppose the new rule and that the others will follow, in which case the New York association will be compelled to modify its arbitrary action. Just at present there is a "caim before the storm."
