Lehigh Valley Express Narrowly Escapes Being Wrecked.

The Lehigh Valley express, due it Wilkes-Barre at 12.25 a. m. Saturday, parrowly escaped being wrecked on the mountain a few miles out of Wilkes-Barre. The train was running at a lively rate when a large rock was encountered, which had rolled onto the track from a side cut, and became xedged in the tracks.

The engine struck the stone and knocked part of it away, but the re-maining portion on the tracks swept away the steps of the coaches and the trucks of the cars were wrenched out of place. The passengers in the sleepers were awakened by the shock, but none were injured. Contractor James Flynn and Liveryman W. L. Belles

Almost identically the same accident occurred last evening to the Lehigh Valley train that reaches Wilker-Barre at 8 o'clock. The scene of the ecurrence was between Penn Haven Junction and the tunnel. A bowlder f that became dislodged from an overhanging cliff, rolled down on the tracks and rested against the outside rail of the northbound track. The pilot of the engine struck it when the train was at full speed, throwing it partly aside, but at the expense of a badly wrecked pilot. The train was three quarters of an hour late in consequence of the acci-

Springer Suffered His Buildings to Be Razed Sconer Than Acknowledge Defeat.

The famous Lacoe & Shiffer-Springer setment suit had a dramatic climax Friday, when a squad of fifteen mer under the authority of a writ of habere facias possessionem, swooped down on the Springer farm, turned Springer and his family and personal belongings into the road and then razed the house. barns and other buildings to the ground.

J. H. Fisher, representing the Coal company, directed the work. tures were made for a peaceful settlement of the difficulty, but Springer would have none of it. He was offered the use of the surface and all the buildings for the nominal sum of a dollar a year if he would sign a lease ac knowledging the company's ownership, but he stolidly refused. Then the forces ful means of securing possession were resorted to.

The farm is located at Oak hill, near Moosic. Springer claims the land by squatter right. When he came home from the Civil war he settled there and married a girl named Decker, whose father had squatted on the land some years before. He cleared about eighty acres and began farming. On the strength of having held open, notorious and adverse possession of the land for period of over twenty-one years, he laimed squatter sovereignty.

Rich veins of coal were discovered inderlying the land and a number of parties purchased title to it. The Lacoe & Shiffer company secured an undisputed paper title to about nineteen ieres of it, and began mining operations. Springer by various acts proceeded to assert ownership, and thinkng to avoid complications, the coal ompany demanded of him that he acknowledge its ownership by signing a ease. He refused, an ejectment suit was instituted and the coal company won, Springer failing at every turn in the case to prove that he had been in ontinuous and adverse possession for o enforce the judgment, but falling in his, had recourse to the ejection. Suits for the other portions of land pending. An idea of the great value of the property is apparent when it is stated that court demanded a $50,-00 bond before it would even consider a request from Springer for an injunetion restraining the coal companies from mining on the property.

PRESIDENT TRUESDALE'S VISIT THREE CORNERED On Hand to Install the New Master

Car Builder. The unexpected visit of President Truesdale, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, set all sorts of conjecture affoat Saturday and yesterday, but none of them led to a definite revelation of its purpose There was a well founded story to the effect that he came to adjudicate some differences between department heads. If this was the case, nothing tending to corroborate it leaked out. It is quite probable that the main purpose of Mr. Truesdale's visit was to install the new master car builder T. Canfield, who succeeded Robert McKenna, resigned, on Saturday. The arrival of Mr. Canfield Saturday afternoon and a conference at the Jermy yesterday with President Truesdale, General Manager Hallstead, Superintendent Fitzgibbon and Mr. Canfield present, gives color to this.

TELEPHONE FIGHT

SCRANTON COMPANY IS VERY MUCH A REALITY.

Its Chief Promoter, W. C. Hendrickson, of Somervile, N. J., Will Be Here This Evening or Tomorrow to Open an Active Campaign-The Lackawnna Company Drafts a Circular Letter to Be Sent to Pennsylvania Company Not Idle.

The Scranton Telephone company is by no means a myth. Neither is it a stool pigeon for the Bell company, nor a speculative concern. This much is on the authority of Dr. John L. Wentz, who contemplates taking a large financial interest in the company if it is given the opportunity of becoming established here.

To a Tribune reporter, Dr. Wentz stated that the company is headed by prominent New Jersey capitalists and that one of them, William C. Hendrickson, of Somerville, N. J., well known in the business world as an extensive pottery manufacturer, will come here this evening or tomorrow to forward the work of securing a franchise and completing the organization of the com-

Mr. Hendrickson in his correspondence with these gentlemen stated that he can bring with him from New Jersey all the capital that is required, but prefers to have the company composed in the readn and in good part of local investors.

It is understood that the Scranton company will guarantee an unlimited service with connections up and down the valley for $41 for business 'phones and $20 for residence 'phones.

The other new company, the Lackawanna, of which W. J. Lewis is president; A. P. Hedford, vice-president, and S. E. Wayland, of Wilkes-Barre, secretary-ireasurer, offers to furnish business 'phones for $36 and residence phones, $24.

TO SEND OUT LETTERS. Today this company will send out a etter to prospective subscribers, setting forth what its ordinance promises and requesting co-operation in securing the granting of the franchise. In this circular the claim is made that there are even now 874 subscribers on the Lackawanna company's books, in the business portion of Scranton alone. The Central Pennsylvania company is by no means idle with this double competition threatening it. One of the several arguments it is using is that these new companies have no outside connections and can at the best give only a local service. This being the case, the entry of a new company would only mean an additional 'phone in every business place that makes extensive use of a 'phone. In Altoona, where the Central Pennsylvania com-

The children climbed to the top of the dump, which is almost thirty feet in height, and played for several hours. In the chase of "hide-and-seek" the youngsters got too near the edge, and little Caroline was pushed over, landing face downwards, and in that position she slid to the bottom. Her face, head and arms were literally covered with cuts and bruises. The cries of her playmates attracted help, and the child was removed to her home. Dr. R. J.
