JURY FREES GILMORE.

He Was Not to Blame for the Death of Cassie Ziegler.

After hearing further evidence last night in reference to the death of Cassie Zeigler, who was killed Saturday by being run over by a wagon driven by young Bernard Gilmore, the coroner's jury formulated the following

We, the undersigned jurors find that the evidence in this case is to the eff at that deceased, Cassie Zeigler, came to her death by jumping from a wagon without asking the driver to stop, and no blame attaches to the driver, Bernard Gilmore. Death was caused by a fracture of the skull as a result of the wagon passing over her head.

Welsh and John Overwise, who were on the wagon when the girls got on, was heard. Last night the three girls, Misses Mary Diamond, Minnle Gardner and Minnie Teichmann, who were with Cassie Zeigler and got in the wagon with her, were heard.

They agreed on the essential details of the accident in their testimony

and their evidence tended to show that Cassie wanted to jump off and had fallen under the wheel in so doing. In fact, Minnie Gardner testified that Cassie told her that she was going to jump off and she told her not to. Mary Diamond stated she saw the wheel run over Cassie. The girls admitted that they were all laughing and en-joying the ride. Mrs. Constantine Altam gave testimony to the effect that the girls were making much noise and Patrick Riley gave similar testimony.

Attorney E. W. Thayer appeared before the board yesterday in behalf of and Elmira had not yet agreed upon. Van Horn. District Attorney Jones was unable to go because engaged in criminal court, but he prepared a strong argument against commutation Those for Utlea and Elmira will be of the sentence by the board and submitted it in lieu of a spoken argument, The argument is calculated to make a deep impression upon any person who reads it carefully. Following is the argument in part:

> This paper book is addressed to your honors in opposition to the commutation of the sentence of death imposed upon of the sentence of death imposed upon George K. Van Horn, by the court of over and terminer of Lackawanna coun-ty, for the murder of Josephine Westcott, at Scranton, Pennsylvania, on August 28, 1896. Over two years and a half have bassed and yet this case is still pending. The learned counsel for the defendant have taken advantage of every delay pos-sible in a case of this character-postpnement of the trial-rule for a new trial appeal to the Supreme court-an at-impted appeal to the Supreme court of the United States—their present appli-cation before this board for the com-mutation of the death sentence to imprisonment for life; and yet they must have realized all along that they had a hope-less case. This was one of the most bur-barous, deliberate and premeditated mur-ders ever committed in this commonwealth. The language employed by the Supreme court in affirming the judgment of the lower court forcibly expresses the atrocity of this crime. It is as follows: "No one can read the testimony in thi ase without being convinced that the of-power to pardon is a constitu tional power; to alleviate or remit pun ishment where perhaps there is a doubt of guilt; or where the offense was committed under circumstances extenuating the crime. It is an act of grace or mercy. But what is there about this case that calls for grace or mercy? Nothing what-ever. There is nothing connected with his case that appeals to the members Mr. Vosburg stated yesterday that he had consuited upwards of twenty lawyers on this question and there was not one of them that did not concur not one of them that did not concur not one circumstance connected with this thought it very likely that he would, recting errors in the trial of a cause that function belongs to the Supremonly question in this case, as well in all other cases which come before this board, is: Do the cases present fea-tures which appeal to and are proper for tures which appeal to and are proper for executive elemency? There is certainly nothing about the Van Horn case that ap-peals to executive elemency. It is cer-tainly not a proper case for executive in-terference. Seldom, indeed, does the Supreme court use such denunciatory language in the review of a murder case as Mr. Justice Green used in character-lating the crime of this defendant. It was ging the crime of this defendant. It was the most cruel and deliberate ourder that has come to the attention t the Supreme court in many years. The only reason or ground upon which ds application is based, according to te notice served upon the trial judge and he district attorney, is that of the alrding to the rule quoted, this board will ot consider any other reasons than those appearing in the notice served upon the court and district attorney.

SAID HE WAS INSANE.

When this application came before the ourd of pardons, December 21, 1898, do fendant's counsel alleged that Van Horn was Insane at the time he committed the rime and was still insane. This, c. ourse, was the only reason assigned in beir notice. Thereupon the board referred the subject of the defendant's alleged insanity to Henry M. Wetherill. M. D., connected with the board of public charity, and a well known expert upon the subject of usanity. Dr. Wetherfil visited Scranton and made a most thorough examination into the mental condition of the merderer: His report, dated January 9 filed with this board. Dr. Wetherill concluding his able and scholarly re ort, says: "I am convinced that he (Van dorn) is a perfectly responsible being, with a clear knowledge of right and wrong, and possesses that self-determining power and self-control which, when xercised, prevents the good citizen from mmitting crime.

This report leaves the defendant's ap cation without ground to rest uprmed by the Supreme court, is not to b ightly set aside. The certainty of pun-shment as the law provides, especially n a case of this character, is a great ob-ect lesson to the lawless element of the community, and should tend to prevent a petition of murder. It is submitted that should the sentence of Van Horn be commuted, it will be of little use hereafter to ask for convictions of murder in the first degree, for there never was a more atroclous and delib-erate murder committed in our midst, and there never was a murder trial in this commonwealth where the eviden-Harrisburg Yesterday Refused to against a defendant was more convinc-ing and overwhelming of his guilt than

TO BE MORE AGGRESSIVE

Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Will Be Less Generous in the Future with Its Warnings.

There was a regular meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in the board of trace rooms last night. The society is in no wise cast down over the outcome of its recent prosecution in court, and believes it has been the indirect cause of good inasmuch as it has awakened much interest in the work of the society.

A considerable portion of the time of the meeting was taken up in an informal discussion of the best manner of prosecuting the work of the society during the summer months. It was the opinion of the majority of the members of the society that its main fault in the past, if fault it can be called, is that it is not aggressive enough. It proceeds quietly about its mission of seeing that animals are properly cared for and from the small amount of noise made a large percentage of the people of the city think the society is slumbering. The good work that is constantly being done is evident from the few sore, disabled or weak horses seen on the street and the few cases of extreme cruelty that are heard of A great deal yet remains to be done in the way of educating public sentiment in the matter of caring for and driving horses. A large number of the cases that came to the attention of the society are due to ignorance rather than a desire to be cruel.

It was the opinion of the majority of the members that in future the society should be more aggressive and refuse to be as generous as in the past A feature of the meeting was the address of Richard Busteed, a life member of the New York society. He urged more aggressive action on the part of the board, and made a plea to have the board use its influence to secure the repeal of the city ordinance requiring the muzzling of dogs in sum-

The secretary's report showed that Mrs. Mary T. Phelps gave $100 to the society since the last meeting. Thomas E. Sprague and W. E. Henwood, the finance committee of the society, are to begin at once to make a carvass with a view to raising necessary funds for the society.
