CONCERT BY THE WELSH PRIZE SINGERS LAST EVENING.

Excellent Programme Rendered in the Jackson Street Baptist Church. IT MEANS Junior Christian Endeavor Social | HEALTH FOR in Washburn Street Presbyterian MEN AS WELL Church-Aged Man Falls from a Street Car and Sustains Injuries. Funerals Yesterday.

The Weish prize singers from Wales were greeted by a large audience at the Jackson Street Baptist church last evening when they gave their farewell concert in this city before returning to their homes on May 31. The party comprises Madam Myles Beynon, soprano; Dot Prosser and Mary Richards, contraites: David Lloyd and Griff Davis, tenors; T. Armon Jones and John Bey-non, bassos; Jennie Parry, harpist, and E. T. Davis, pianist. The programme was well selected, and the vocalists were very generous with regard to en-Rev. Thomas de Gruchy, pastor of the church, introduced the singers, who are all well-known in this city and scarcely needed any introduction.

The opening number was a glee by the party, 'How Sweet the Moonlight Sleeps," which was followed by a solo by Madam Beynon, "Dear Heart" She sang for an encore a Welsh composi-"Clychau Aberdyfi," with fine effeet. Miss Parry played a Greek march on the harp, and responded to an encore with "Ar Hyd a Nos." Miss Prosser rendered a solo, "Valley by the Sea," and sang "That's How I Got My Uncle John" for an encore. The party followed with the familiar Welsh melody, "March of the Men of Harlech," and a quartette composed of Madam Beynon, Miss Prosser, Messrs, Lloyd and Jones gave for an encore "Sweet and Low." Their voices blended har moniously.

Prof. E. T. Davis, who was the efficient accompanist of the evening, opened the second part of the programme with a mazurka in B flat by Godard, and Mr. Lloyd and Madam Beynon followed with a pleasing duet. Miss Beatrice Evans was unable to appear, owing to illness, and her number on the programme was omitted The solo "Anchored," by Griff Davis, was well received and he was accorded an encore. Miss Parry played a medley of Welsh airs, and was also encored Miss Richards sang "Come to Me," and responded to the demand of her hearers with "Sweet Genevieve." A trio composed of Messrs, Lloyd, Jones and Davis gave a pleasing number, and T. Armon Jones sang "Queen of the Earth," although suffering from a throat affection. The closing number was by the party, "Good Night, Good Night, Beloved." and one stanza of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," was sung very effectively, At

AN AGED MAN INJURED. James Fleming, an aged resident of Luzerne street, was thrown from Tayor car No. 131 at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon while the car was rounding the surve at the North of North Ninth and West Linden streets. Fleming was rendered unconscious by the fall and sustained a severe cut over the right eye.

Conductor George Thomas and Motorman Orvin Smith were in charge of the car and the former had several times warned the man to ride inside the car, but he paid no intention to him. He was taken to the Lackawanna hospital and recovered consciousness shortly afterwards. Fleming is 68 years of age and very feeble. John Stanton, a member of the Thirteenth regiment hospital corps, rendered asistance to the injured man.

ROBBED A SCHOOL HOUSE. Burglars entered No. 18 school, corner of Swetland street and Sumner avenue, some time Sunday night or yesterday morning and secured about $2.50 in money. Every room in the building was visited and several of the desks were ransacked by the thieves. The money was received in a colletion last Friday, which was to be used as a Memorial day fund, and was eviiently taken by some one familiar with the fact, Entrance was gained through a cellar window and in their haste the intruders overlooked several valuable articles.

the 4-year-old daughter of Equard Frantz, had a most thrilling adventure yesterday afternoon. In company with other companions of her age she was playing in the roadway in front of the Neptune Engine house or Cedar avenue.

A lady whose name was not ascertained came down the street behind a horse she was unable to control. The animal dashed down upon the children knocking Stella Frantz under its feet Fortunately the horse stepped lightly on her and the carriage passed along, Stella under it, but not striking any portion of her budy.

The child lay unconscious in the roadway and was carried to her home. Dr. John J. Walsh was called and attended the girl. Her injuries were slight, only a small wound on the scalp being inflicted. When the woman who drove the horse gained control of it, she returned and evidenced much feeling over the accident,

SPEED OF A SHIP.

A Simple Operation in Finding It by the Log.

From the Army and Navy, Illustrated. "How do you ascertain the speed of vessel?" is a question frequently addressed to naval men, and an explanation will therefore probably be of interest to several readers. There are several methods, the commonest and most ancient being the use of the "log," This instrument consists of three parts -the logship, the line and the marks. The logship is a piece of wood about half an inch thick and shaped like a quadrant, with a piece of lead let in round the circular edge to make it float perpendicularly in the water. It is C hung by lines at each angle, and three joined together about two feet from the logship. Two of the lines are securely fixed to the "ship, and the other has a bone peg at the end, which, being pushed into a hole in the ship, temporarily fastens it there. From the point of juncture of the three lines a sufficient length is measured, generally about 100 feet, to take the logship well clear of the ship's This is called the "stray" line and is marked with a piece of bunting. From the bunting is measured 47 feet I inches, and the line marked here with piece of leather. Then another 47 feet 2 inches is measured off and marked with three knots; then another space the same length and marked with three knots, and so on as far as batch of knots one single knot is made. The logline is then ready for use. The space between the knots is found from the simple little rule-of-three sum: As 3,600 seconds (number of seconds in an hour), 28 seconds dength o sand glass), 6,080 feet (number of feet in a nautical mile); length of line required-which works out to 47 feet geven knots. Halfway between each inches. To use the log four persons are re quired-two men to hold the reel on which the line is wound, the quarter master to hold the glass and the midshipman of the watch to heave the log. The last named puts the peg firmly in the logship and then gathers three or four coils of line in his hand, sufficient to admit of the logship being thrown well clear of the ship. He asks: "Clear glass, quartermaster?" "Clear glass, sir!" comes the reply, and overboard goes the logship and line, the reel rapidly revolving. Presently the middy feels the piece of bunting passing through his hand and he gives the order, "Turn!" The quartermaster turns the glass and watches the sand, while "reeler" holds well over his head, so as to give the line fair play. When the sand has run out, "Stop!" cries the quartermaster. The midshipman grasps the line, assisted by the other reeler, and looks for the nearest knot, finding a single one close to his hand. Ther the line is hauled in and four knots appear, which signify that the ship is going four and a half knots through the water. The jerk in the line draws the peg from the logship, which now floats on its flat side and is easily hauled in When a ship is going over four knots a fourteen-second glass is used, the speed being double that shown by the knots on the line.
