The Secret of Health

The health of the whole body depends upon the blood and nerves. Therefore the medicine that expels impurities from the blood and supplies the necessary materials for rapidly rebuilding wasted nerve tissues, reaches the root of many serious diseases. It is these virtues that have their wonderful power to conquer disease, and caused the miraculous cures that have startled the scientific world. Thousands of cases have demonstrated that this remedy is an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female.

Frank Tucker, is a prominent farmer, of Versailles, Indiana. His daughter, Lucy, is now fifteen years old; three years ago she began alting. The rosy color in her cheeks gave way to a paleness, and she became rapidly thin. As she grew weaker she became the victim of nervous prostration. Most of the time she was confined to the bed and was almost on the verse of going into St. Vitus' dance.

"Finally the doctor told us to give her Dr. Williame Pink Plils for Pale Peopie. Said he was treating a similar case with them and they were curing the patient. We began giving the pills at once, and the next day we could see a change for the better in her. The doctor told us to keep giving her the medicine. We gave her one pill after each meal until she was well. We began giving her the medicine last August, and she took the last dose in October, having used eight boxes. She is now entirely well and has not been sick a day since. We think the cure almost miraculous."

TUNKHAWNOCK.

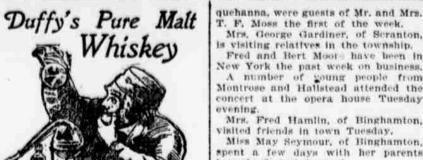

The fire alarm was sounded here on Friday afternoon about 6.15, and, although the company had not been out for a month, they made a quick response and had their hose laid ready for service in a very short time. The fire was located in the rear of the W. D. Sampson meat market, on Tiogastreet, among some boxes and barrels which had been thrown out there, and was in danger of communicating to the building itself. The blaze was extinguished without running the water through the hose, and the only damare was to the boys who stood out in the rain with the hose. William M. Platt, jr., of Lafayette ollege, is home to attend the graduatlng exercises of the Tunkhannock High school, of which institution he is a graduate, and where his sister is a

PELVIC CATARRH.

A New Name for an Old Ailment. Known as Female Complaint.

Hartman and Pe-ru-na. I thank God and Dr. Hartman for my recovery," Pelvie catarrh is a new name for a very common disease known as female weakness. Most women have more or ess what is called female complaint.

This is in reality pelvic catarrh. There are so many women, especially married women, who drag themselves wearily around from year to year, miserable beyond description. They ache and tremble and throb, growing more nervous, tired and debilitated every day. For this class of sufferers Peru-na is the most perfect remedy in existence. It relieves, it southes, it quiets, it strengthens, and no victim of peivic catarrh in the land should be without Pe-ru-na

Mrs. A. J. Hull, Leona, Kan., writes: "I feel as if I am entirely well and can do as much work as when I was oung. I don't have any pains about me, and I thank you a thousand times for curing me. My trouble was female complaint. I had falling of the womb and great pain. I tell every woman I talk with that Pe-ru-na is the best for them and that it saved my life.

Endometritis is the medical term for catarrh of the womb. Catarrh of the womb is very common, producing what is generally called female disease, Dr. Hartman answers all letters free of charge. He treats over 29,000 women annually for some form of female disease. Write him at once.

From the New York Herald. Alphonso XII of Spain, father of the little boy who now rules Spain as the unfucky thirteenth of that name, has enough, it took him just the thirteenth unlucky year after his death to ac complish this result. Such was the Medusalike effect of Sampson at Sanchurch in Montrose is let to Brokaw & tingo and Dewey at Manila. Thirteen Co., of Deposit, N. Y. for the body of a Spanish monarch to resist the petrifying effects of El Podridero, the charnel house of the Es curial, where all royal bodies are laid until they are sufficiently fossilized to be removed to the Pantheon of kings in the same monastery. The regulation period has usually been six, or at the most seven years, but the body of Alphonso XII seems to have felt it a duty to resist until the end had come with the signing of the treaty of peace before it gave up the struggie.

Yet there are some people who glibly describe the Spanish royalties as forsils even when they are apparently alive

The palace and monastery of San Loenzo del Escorial (that is the correct in 1872, and also by the vandalism of the French soldiery in 1808.

One of the objects of Philip II was to provide a mausoleum for Spanish kings and their consorts. The octagonal room in which this object is subserved is known as the Pantheon. Marble sarcophagi, each properly labeled with the name of its illustrious occupant, ar ranged one above the other four deep on marble sheves.

But previous to the final sepultur each corpse has to be exposed, naked save for a single sheet, renewed from time to time, on the marble slab in the podridero or rotting vat. said that the every air of this charne house possesses petrifying properties These properties are enhanced or possibly produced, by the action of drugs which slowly trickled down upon the corpse from faucets above. Properly onstituted authorities examine orpse from time to time to see that the work of fossilation is progressing satisfactorily, and to announce when it is completed.

Then the ceremony of the translation of the relics is observed with magnificent pomp. It is averred that bodies so petrified do not always retain their stony consistence. It is whispered that many of the sarcophagi contain only crumbled dust. But it is certain that two of the mightiest dwellers in this Pantheon are as hard and firm as when they were first put in their last resting place. These are Charles V (the first of Spain) and his son, Philip II. Charles V died in 1558, and and at the completion of the Pantheon his body was transferred thither and found to be unchanged. The sarcophagus was opened by Carlos III to gratify the curiosity of Beckford, the eccentric author of "Vathek," and again, in 1869, by the ministers of the revolution. On the latter occasion a drawing was made of it by a Spanish artist, Martin Reco. It confirms in every point the traditional description of the emperor broad in the shoulders, deep in the chest, very muscular in the arms and legs, the forehead broad, the nose crooked and aquiline and the under jaw protruding' so far beyond the other that the teeth could not meet." His beard has lost the red color

ROQUEFORT CHEESE.

Known Since Pliny's Time. om the Globe-Democrat.

even in the milking of the sheep and goats. This is done in the evening afer their return from pastures. But in order that the animals shall not be in the least heated or excited, they are allowed to rest for an hour before the milking is begun. After being heated almost to boiling point the evening's milk is set aside. In the morning it it skimmed, heated to 98 degrees and mixed with the morning's milk for coagulation. The curd is well kneaded with the hands and pressed in lavers into molds with perforated bottoms. A thin layer of moldy bread is put beween each layer of curd. This bread, which hastens the "ripening" of the theese by supplying the germs of the characteristic green mold, is made before the preceding Christmas of about equal parts of summer and winter barley, with plenty of sour dough and me vinegar. When moldy enough it is ground and sifted, moistened with water and kept from the air until used in making the choese. The curd remains in the shaping receptacles for three or four days, and is then taken Spanish spelling) originated, as we all to the market in Roquefort, where it is know, in a vow to St. Lawrence made by Philip II of Spain at the battle of fort cheese. It is they who undertake Quentin (1557) and was erected in the critical "ripening" of the cheese, as to the cyclones, followed by a heavy shower, was among the exciting things gridiron, in memory of St. Lawrence's abounding in the precipitous walls of martyrdom, the length being about 780 the limestone mills which surround the feet and the breadth about 626. During the month or more much injured by fire in 1691 and again that the cheese are left in the caves they are rubbed with salt and brine, and are pricked frequently with long needles to allow the sait to penetrate into them, and also to accelerate the process of maturing. When this has reached a certain stage the cheese is ready for shipment.

MULTIPLEX TELEGRAPHY.

The New Apparatus That Will Send Eight Messages Simultaneously.

from the Baltimore Sun. Professor Henry A. Rowland, of the Johns Hopkins university, is concluding a series of office tests of his new multiplex telegraph apparatus, and expects to give it a line test in a few The line test will be made between Philadelphia and Jersey City. One ender and one receiver will be located in each city, and the attempt will be made to send four messages each way, or eight messages in all, simultaneously over one wire. Professor Rowland thinks that a much greater number of messages may be sent over one wire at the same time by means of his instrument, but at present he has developed it only to the point of The experiments are being conducted in two rooms of the physical laboratory of the Johns Hopkins university, Two young lady senders are in one room, operating instruments that resemble the keyboards of typewriting machines. In the other room is the receiver, which is a most ingenious device. The number of sending machines must correspond with the number of messages to be sent, but each receiver takes four messages at the same time. The method of separating the currents and recording each message without any interruption from the others coming over the wire at the same time is the mysterious part of the invention, which Professor Rowland does not care at present to reveal, anyone able to operate the simple keyboard of a typewriter can send a nicesage, and the only attention the receiver needs is to keep it supplied with paper. The letters of the alphabet are placed about a small wheel, This wheel is whirled around by the electric urrent, and the letter wanted is stamped upon the paper. In this way the message is spelled out in plain etters; without any need of a skilled perator. The receiving machine looks omewhat complicated to the untrained eye, but Professor Rowland says it is eally very simple and not apt to get ant of order.

The principal feature of the invenion is the device for separating the nessages and having each properly received. This is done by a small brass cheel, about which revolves a flange having on it reveral cone-shaped projections. This simple looking apparatus does the work, but just how is of ourse a secret with Professor Rowland. Messages over the same wire may be sent simultaneously from different points, thus increasing the com-

Professor Rowland has been working on the invention about two years. The first receiving machine he made has been practically dismantled, and the wo receivers with which the line test The Toothsome Delicacy Has Been will be made are new.
