AFTER MANY TRIALS.

Case of Mindwell Dolph Against the National Accident Society Finally Determined in the United States Court of Appeals.

In the case of Mrs. Mindwell Dolph igainst the National Accident society of New York, the United States circuit court of appeals yesterday sustained the decision of the lower court in refusing the defendants' application for therefore drawing no benefits from a new trial. It is a suit to recover $4,000 on an accident policy for the death of the plaintiff's husband, who was killed at the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company's saw mill in August, 1834. He Railroad of New Jersey. A trial trip was employed as superintendent and insured as such, but because he met his death while assisting some of the details will give a fair estimate of the laborers at a saw the company refused to pay the policy.

The case was first tried in the United tank 237,000, the tank having a capa-States court at the Scranton session city of 4,000 gallons, the water being in March, 1897. A verdict for the plaintiff in the full amount of the claim was given subject to a reserved law point. The court after deliberating some time made a ruling to the effect that the and the engine is capable of making defendant should be granted a new trial unless the plaintiff was willing to remit the verdict with the exception of $500. The plaintiff declined these terms and the case was again tried here in March, 1898, and once more the verdict was for the plaintiff in the full amount of the claim with interest, $4,788.66. Application was made for a new trial by the defendant company and upon its being refused the case was appealed to the United States circuit court of appeals. The appellate court affirms the action of the lower court and Mrs.

Dolph can now collect her judgment against the insurance company.

A Wonderful Engine.

What is claimed as the most modern in every detail in the way of a passenger engine was turned out recently at the Ashley car shops of the Centra was made of the engine which resulted very satisfactorily. The following engine: It weighs 147,000 pounds, and with scooped up by a pneumatic arrange-ment. It has three pairs of 69-inch drivers, all steel, with double truck. The boiler carries 200 pounds of steam seventy-five miles an hour. A pneumatic bell-ringer and sanding apparatus are new features. The New York brake is used. The engine is constructed along the latest mechanical lines, efficiency being the prime object, while beauty of form and skillful workmanship have not been neglected. It has attracted much attention from railroaders and others on account of the new ideas involved and her excellent behavior on her trial trip. As she is intended to run on the Royal Blue line, between Philadelphia and New York, it is evident that the officials recognize the merits of the new engine, and also the fact that Master Mechanic J. G. Thomas is introducing innovations in engine construction which are decided improvements.
