A FEATHERED WONDER.

From the London Daily.

Possibly the rarest of all feathered creatures is the "takahe" bird of New Zealand. Science names it Notornis Mantelli. The first one ever seen by white eyes was caught in 1849. A second came to white hands in 1851. Like the first, it was tracked over snow and caught with dogs, fighting stoutly and uttering piercing screams of rage until overmastered. Both became the proporty of the British Museum, After that it was not seen again until 1879. That year's specimen went to the Dresden-Museum, at the cost of $500. The fourth which was captured last fall in the flords of Lake Anau, in Zealand, has been offered to the government there for the tidy sum of

Thus it appears that the bird is precious; worth very much more than its weight in gold. The value, of course, omes of rarity. The wise men were beginning to set it down as extinct. Scarcity aside, it must be worth looking at-a gorgeous creature about the size of a big goose, with breast, head and neck of the richest dark blue, growing dullish as it reaches the under parts. Back, wings and tall feathers are office Store company at Sibiey, Pa., where, by the utilization of his spare moments with a metallis luster. The tail is very short, green, and the plumage throughout has his natural aptitude for learning and the and has underneath it a thick patch of soft pure white feathers. Having wings, the takahe files not The wings are not rudimentary, but the bird makes no attempt to use them. The legs are longish and very steat, the feet not webbed, and furnished with sharp, powerful claws. The oddest fea-ture of all is the bill, an equilateral triangle of hard pink horn. THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review. By Associated Press.

New York, July 15 .- The continued ightness in the money market precipitated liquidation of speculative accounts today which resulted in losses In value ranging from 81 to $3 a share in all the principal active stocks traded in. Heavy selling for London cacount marked the opening on the exchanged and as the day progressed the successive calling of loans resulted in the marking up of the rate for call loans to 7 per cent. This rate forced many speculators on the long side to close out. There were special points of weakness besides in one or two prominent stocks of which the bears were quick to take advantage and which were a potent influence in the general sentiment favoring a de cline. Total sales, 544,700. Bonds generally were weak. Total sales, $2,757,-

By Carrington & Cusack. New York, July 10,-The opening was weak all throughout the list on the lower London market and the expectation of dearer money here. Declines were general and in some cases quite pronounced.

Selling came in from traders at the start, but was followed by some commission house liquidation. After the first few minutes, supporting orders rallied the list, which subsequently gold off again on renewed selling. Sentiment seems to be decidedly mixed. People Gas was quite heavily sold by Chicago houses on talk of a gas war in that city.

The news with the exception of the South African disturbance which effected the foreign markets, was on the whole bullish. Spring wheat conditions have improved and there seems a chance that the dividend is uncertain there seems a possibility of an increase. Metropolitan was unfavorably affected by the news that the Knights of Labor would make an organized demand on the management for the correction of the grievances complained of by the employes. Master Workman Parson announced that unless President Vreeland would meet the demands of the men that a strike is more than probable.

Should it come, it will have a disturbing affect on the whole market and today sympathetically caused weakness in B. R. T. notwithstanding Mr. Parsons assertion that the compary and the employes are in perfect harmony. The truth of the matter is that the market has been over-bought and the public demand is not as great as the leaders expected. This, with the comunfavorable statement of Saturday, caused quite free liquidation through-and before any questions are asked concerning the visitor's business, even before the master of the house has made his appearance, a legion of servants rush forward and carry the visitor's baggage to one of the half dozen rooms always ready to receive guests, invited or otherwise.

When the Hungarians wish particularly to honor a guest, fifteen or twenty courses are served at dinner, but as the Magyars have in everything the utmost respect for individual liberty. no guest is ever pressed to eat or drink. 'You are at home; do as you would at home, says the master or the house, as he greets you on your arrival. Living, as they do, away from court and court life, these proud Mugyar aristocrats ask nothing and expect nothing from the sovereign, and maintain, in consequence, their pride, dignity and independence of character. With broad ideas and liberal instincts they have nothing in common with the narrow-minded, petty and egotistical German aristocrats. They belong, in great majority, to the liberal party now in power, and are loyal to the Emperor Francis Joseph and the house of Hapsburg:
