MARY'S BONNET. Mary has a bonnet gay. color of a res Wherever on the links she trips That pink surbound goes. She wore it there but yesterday -She will not wear it more-It foogled down upon her nose And wrecked her choicest score,

The new car service at the Country club certainly makes a vast difference the regular golf players, who find great advantage in the economy of time, in transportation, While many wople are out of town, the lovers of the game who remain spend hours on the links during this ideal weather. An interesting four-some match was played this week between Mr. John Kommerer and Miss Vaughn, of Wilkesversus Miss Kemmerer, Mauch Chunk, and Mr. Turner, of the Wyoming Valley club. The contest resulted in a victory for the former pair, with one up. Mr. Kemmerer broke his record this week in a score of 79, the best of all but two yet made. On Thursday a party of Wilkes-Barreans played on the links. The visitors were Messrs. Woodruff and Loveland and Mr. Hoyt, of the Pacific coast, son of ex-Governor Hoyt. This afternoon there will be a driving contest from the fifth tee on the upper course, going down. Prizes will be offered for both ladies and men. It will be very interesting and will probably be witnessed by many spectators. Next Saturday a four ball contest scheduled, the two players using two balls each. By that time it is probable that several new bunkers will greet the eyes of the contestants, as it is proposed to construct some on the upper course between the fifth and six holes and at the top of the hill, also near the "Lottery" below,

The autmnal events are already occupying the attention of the greens committee. Of course, the great open tournament the third week in October is the chief, when beautiful prizes, including valuable cups, a gold and a silver medal and other articles will be given. It is also expected that team matches will be arranged between the Scranton club and Wilkes-Barre, Harrisburg, Syracuse and Binghamton and perhaps Morristown and Albany. Every Saturday will chonicle a cup match during September and October.

Captain J. H. Brooks, of the Scranton Country Golf club, went to Montrose yesterday to give advice regarding the golf course of the club recently formed in that vicinity. A course of six holes was laid out.

The site is a very pretty one, along small lake and a commodious farm house and stables are to be remodelled for the club,

The following officers have been elected for the new organized Country club: President, Mrs. Brice Stewart: first vice-president. Mr. Sidney Jenckes: second vice-president, Mr. Seldon Munger; secretary, Mr. Norman Stewart; treasurer, Mr. La Grange Griffis: additional board of governors, Mrs. Norman Stewart, Mrs. W. T.

"The only reason why I don't like to go there for the summer," she was saying, "is because everybody is re-lated." She had run into town for a day or two, and was giving an account of the charming little rural resort where she had spent several seasons because of the benefit to the children.

You see, it's like this," she went on. "The houselady is a real New Englander, keen-witted, kind, and a great talker. Her married daughter lives there, too, and is also very friendly at Chautaugon, and Mrs. N. E. Rice will visit and talkative. But, I declare to you, the subjects of conversation are limited. Almost anything that is suggested seems to have a taboo attached The old lady is always taking me aside and warning me against speaking of things which like Sentimental Tommy's certain words, are not to be mentioned For instance, one day she politely sugrested that I should be rather careful about bringing up the tople of divorce as 'Jennie's husband's second cousin had been divorced, and the family, you know, feels sensitive about it, though 'twan't no fault of her'n, poor thing.' Now, I hadn't thought of saying a word about divorces and really didn't have anything to say on the subject, as I had no intention of getting one, and just at that time didn't know that any of my friends were thinking of it. But it just seemed that I was possessed t discuss the question after her warning. Didn't you ever have a sentence or a thought in your mind that you had no intention of uttering, but which was mentally repeated over and over. until suddenly you found yourself speaking it aloud? Well, one day at the table if I didn't blurt out, 'I've always thought there was no harm in divorces for some people.' Nobody else had mentioned divorce. In fact, I heleve the topic under discussion was the probable effect of the drought on the early sweet corn, and I wish you ould have been present to feel the cold. olemn silence that settled over those gathered 'round the family board. Mr. and Mrs. James A. Linen entertained about thirty young people at their country home "Linair" last Satsurday, when the attraction of the afternoon wds "putting," although played under difficulties as the rains descended most of the time. Rain, however, is not supposed to discourage an enthuslastic golfer and there was lively interest in the contest. Miss Eleanor Anderson and Mr. A. E. Hunt, Jr. were the prize winners.

He is a prominent resident of the city and one of the early promoters of the Elmhurst Boulevard. He was also the first to insist upon the method of pouring oil upon the troublous dust of that magnificent thoroughfare. The oil was poured and, although there have been fastidious ladies who have sniffed suspiciously as they rolled along In their luxurious carriages and "wondered" aloud if James had been oiling the harness with kerosene or whether an "octopus" known as the Standard Oil company was concealed in the vicinity, However, they did not contract hay fever from the dust and driving during the hot, dry days be came a delight instead of the usual tormen

The gentleman before mentioned came home last Saturday in the midst of the pouring rain after a twentyfive mile drive: He is now prepared to give his views on the feasibility of mixing oil and water even with the medium of mud. He drove very fast and the mud flew; he wore handsome new suit of clothes, but has not worn them since, for after the removal of the mud they were a continuous succession of grease spots and are probably at this moment the despair of the cleaners. But oil does lay the dust beautifully, if only the rain doesn't try to interfere.

When the rescuers dug Mr. Millen from the seven feet of snow burying him he was thought to be dead, and was laid out. Mr. Holbrook recognized him and commenced the resuscitation that restored life after more than two hours' work. Mr. Hoibrook, being nearor the rear of the party, was covered up only to about his shoulders, from which position he succeeded in getting to the surface. Others at different positions were covered deep, and will not thought of sufficienting.
