EVENTS OF DAY IN WEST SCRANTON

EFFECT OF STRIKE ON BUILD-ING OPERATIONS.

Erection of First Baptist and St. Mark's Lutheran Edifices Delayed by the Continued Differences of Contractors and Workmen-Hyde Park Avenue and Price Street Paves-Special Services in the Churches Yesterday-General News Notes and Personals.

The existing strike among the building trades unions of this city has not only put a damper on the building prospects in West Scranton, but will materially hamper the construction of two proposed new churches, which will not now be eracted until late in the fall, and possibly not until next year.

The congregation of St. Mark's Lutheran church have accepted the plans submitted for their new edifice at the corner of Washburn street and Fourteenth street, and have received several bids for the job, but nothing can be done until the strike is settled.

The proposed building has already been described in The Tribune, and will cost about $6,000.

The building committee of the First Raptist church have money and pledges to the amount of $8,000, a lot has been purchased, and plans accepted, but the reception of building proposals has not been acted upon, owing to the existing difficulties between the Builders' Exchange and the Building Trades' coun-

The work of painting and frescoing the interior of the public schools has also been delayed, and unless the strike is settled soon, the work cannot possibly be accomplished before the beginning of the school term.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

THREE MEN CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTING BURGLARY.

It Is Alleged That They Tried to Enter the Residence of John Keenan on Prospect Avenue-Death of Thomas Harley, a Member of the Firm of Harley & Flynn-Rare Plant Possessed by City Assessor John A. Neuls-Personal Jottings.

John Gillespie, Con Donahoe and

John Fenton, all of the Twelfth ward, |

were arraigned before Alderman Lentes at the South Side station house

Saturday morning on the charge of attempting to burgarlize the residence of John Keenan, of Prospect avenue. The evidence indicated that Donahoe and Gillespie removed the plate glass window in the front of the house with the intention of entering and securing whatever plunder there was available but owing to their careless manner of handling the glass it fell and Mr. Keenan was awakened by the noise. Fenton was found lying drunk upon the porch of the house. Being unable to account for his presence there an officer was called and Fonton was arrested and taken to the South Side | station house. When questioned in regard to the burglary Fenton stated & that Donahue and Gillespie were the guilty ones. Accordingly warrants were issued for both and in a short time they were in the toils. At the | hearing the alderman held them in & $500 bail to appear at court, and fined the trio $2 on the charge of drunkenness. Fenton was held under bail as & a witness. Donahue was the only one fortunate enough to secure bail and he was released. At the conclusion of the hearing Constable Woelkers then appeared upon the scene with a warrant for Gillespie, charging him with the larceny of a keg of beer from one of the Lackawanna Brewing com pany's wagons on June 27 last. William R. Geiger, agent for the above concern, appeared as prosecutor. DEGENERATION OF TEETH. Observations by an English Dentist on This Important Subject.

From the London Mail.

Much has been said recently on the subject of what man is coming to. Certainly in many ways he is undergoing gradual transformations, and apparently for the worse. If a pessimistic view be taken it must seem that men are beginning to return to that shape which Darwinians believe was his starting point in the process of evolu-

For example, there is a growing tendency for the jaw of a modern man to recede. One authority attributes this to the habit of allowing infants, and oung children, suck what are called "babies' comforters," or "teats," This, it appears, has an inclination to draw in the jaw at an age when the bones are hardly set. Primitive man, it has been proved, used his teeth as a weapon, in the same way that a dog now does. When he came to rely more on weapons of his own manufacture, the strength of the teeth was no longer called into service for protection or defense. This, also, has tended to make the human jaw recede Then, again, there is at the present time a great increase in the decay of teeth, especially among children. Eminent dental surgeons who have been consulted on the matter agree that the decline of the teeth is due io the present artificial mode of living, to adulterated provisions and to the habit of cooking everything until tender. One eminent specialist says that in Lent he is twice as busy as at any other time. The reason for this, so he asserts, is that there are fewer parties then, and people do not mind so much being in a few days "not at home" to their friends, should their front teeth want repairing. In this respect it is interesting to learn that men are even more vain than women The dentist in question tells a good story of a woman who certainly had an original reason for having her teeth attended to during Lent.

"I have put off coming to see you about my teeth until now," she began, as she sank into a seat, "because I have several to be 'stopped.' As, of course, you'll tell me to starve myself for twenty-four hours each time you stop' one, I may as well do it in Lent, when, in my case, I should have to do a little fasting!" Personal adornment in these degen-

This craze started in Chicago, but was never very popular on this side of the Atlantic, There are, however, at least four persons of wealth in London, known to the writer, who carry daily in their mouths valuables of the aggregate value of £350, As showing the decadence of the eeth of the present generation, it may be recorded that a physician has been studying the condition of the mouths of centenarians. He finds that out of forty-two centenarians only fifteen were without a tooth, and the others were in possession of an ample supply.

Yet in people about eighty years of age erate days has gone to the extent of fixing diamonds in the front teeth, the average number of teeth is rarely more than five.

Strategy. A little Somerville girl who is away for the summer is afraid of the dog at the house where she is visiting. The other lay, while the dog was lying in the front hall, she astenished the people on the front plazza by making her appearance through the door.

"Why, how did you venture to come by the dog?" samebody asked.
"Oh," she said. "I waited a minute, and while he was itching his leg I skah out."—Semerville (Mass.) Journal.
