Two Little Boys Thrown from Wagon and Narrowly Escape Serious Injury-Rescued by T. E Price and Others-Officers of Enterprise Lodge, L. K. of A. Installed-Societies Will Jointly Attend Mass-Funerals of a Dey. Other News Notes.

Two little boys had a narrow escape from serious injury at 6 o'clock last evening near the corner of Main avenue and Jackson street, which would undoubtedly have resulted fatally but for the timely assistance of Thomas E. Price, Patrolman James Hart and Albert Henne.

A horse attached to a wagon belonging to Harward Merchant Beers, of North Main avenue, became frightened by a woman with an umbrella while standing in front of the store at the corner of Lafayette street and dashed down Main avenue. At the intersection of Jackson street the animal started up that thoroughfare, but turning suddenly, collided with a wagon owned by a man named McKivett, which was standing in front of Heiser

The latter's horse became frightened and began to climb up on the side-walk, overturning the wagon and throwing the boys out. One landed on the street car track and the other under the vehicle. Mr. Price happened along at the time and, realizing the boy's perilous position under the wagon, dragged him out just at the horse made a leap into the air.

The other boy struck on his head, but neither were badly injured. One was removed to Jenkins' drug store and the other to Davies' pharmacy where they were tenderly cared for until their parents arrived and took them home. Patrolman heart caught the wagon as it was overturning and Mr. Henne caught the horse when the boy was under the wagon. The accident created much excitement.
