Said He Was Obliged to Resort to Extraordinary Measures to Prevent the Prisoner Being Rescued. An American Bark Hovered Near. The Women Weep at Rehearsal of Dreyfus' Appeals-General Roget's Testimony Is Exasperating-M. Labori Has a Fever-The Judges All Against the Prisoner.

Rennes, Aug. 16 .- At the opening of the Dreyfus court martial this morning M. Demange, counsel for Dreyfus, asked for an adjournment of the sessions until Monday on account of the condition of his colleague, M. Labori Carriere, the judge advocate, opposed the request and the court unanimously refused to grant it. Senor Querin was the first witness called. His testimony was the same as pre-viously given before the court of cas-The next witness was M. Lebon, who was the minister of colonies for the greater part of the time that Dreyfus was on the Isle de Diable Lebon has been accused of being responsible for the regime of torture to which the prisoner was subjected.

M. Lebon testified that there was no needless severity shown in the treatment of Dreyfus. He was obliged, he said, to resort to extraordinary measures because of the danger of the prisoner being rescued. He cited as an example the occasion on which an American bark hovered about Devil's Island without being able to explain why it was there. M. Lebon said he has proof that Dreyfus carried on 'an irregular" correspondence with his relatives and friends. He said he had copies of the prisoner's letters taken, but never seized any of them. During this testimony Dreyfus gazed intently but calmly at the man who was chiefly responsible for the crueities he had undergone. Lebon's testimony ended in a string of excuses and lame apologies to Dreyfus. When he had concluded the prisoner was asked if he wished to question the witness. "No," replied Dreyfus. "I have nothing to say to the man who for five ed to make my sufferings agonizing and barbarous. 1 am not here to complain, but to defend my

The recorder of the court then read from detailed government reports of the prisoner while on Devil's Island He quoted heart-rending appeals and complaints made by Dreyfus because he received no letters from his wife or word of his children. The recorder also gave details of the prisoner's illness and suffering. Women in the audience wept and when the reading was over there were few dry eyes in the court.

M. Lebon's face was a study in uneasiness as the recorder read. From time to time he protested that the account was inexact.

There was considerable interest man ifested when the widow of Colonel Henry was called to testify. She was dressed in deep mourning. Her testimony was brief and contained no revelations.

Mme. Henry said her husband has committed forgery to save the army from the disgrace threatened it by Picquart.

General Roget then testified. He insisted that Dreyfus and not Esterhazy wrote the bordereaux. When Roget concluded his testimony the prisoner was asked if he cared to speak. Dreyfus replied passionately;

"After listening for two hours to such abominable things my heart is wrung. I am incapable of thinking." The court adjourned until tomorrow

Judges Against Dreyfus.

The general impression left by to day's proceedings is unfavorable owing to the absence of such cross examinations as M. Labori would have given M. Lebon and Guerin and owing to the facts that General Roget's arguments received no reply. This, how ever, it is hoped, will prove damaging when M. Demange cross-questions him tomorrow, although M. Demange cannot be said up to the present to have shown to any great advantage. eral Rogerts spoke for three hours without adducing any new facts, only reiterating in the most foreible terms what has been bandled about in the anti-Dreyfusard press for a year past The most interesting part of his testimony was his attack on Colonel Picquart, which will undoubtedly lead to the confrontation of the two men.

He treated Dreyfus without mercy both in words and attitude. In fact it seemed at times as though he would provoke the prisoner into striking him. The general's manner was most passlonate. In his outburst at the end of his testimony he uttered the most outhless arracks with the air of delivering a pleasant Sunday school address, leaning over the front of the witness rail, sipping from a glass of water, wiping his lips and mopping his brow with perfect self satisfaction.

But again he would half turn his chair, pointing his finger at Dreyfus would repeat some cruel accusation, at the same time fixing his eyes on the prisoner, his head inclined forward like that of a cobra awaiting the moment to strike. Drevius, however, was not a hypnetized rabbit and stradily returned his gaze, sometimes throwing a glance of the president of the court, as though appealing for permission to reply. Once, when General Reget backfung one of these dariatstopped and deliberately paused, one could see the fire in Freyfus' eyes and in his tightly alinehed jaws could be divined the lam H. Perot.

struggle that was going on within him. The captain of gendarnies, scated be-side Dreyfus, watched him closely. The seconds passed like hours and the pectators held their breath. General Roget seemed purposely to prolong the silence in order to make a deeper impression. It was a perilous moment. But Dreyfus won the battle over his passions and when Roget's voice was vas at length heard again everyone knew the danger was past and a deep drawn sigh of relief came from the Labori's Condition.

The correspondent here of the Assoclated Press this afternoon paid a visit to M. Laborl, who is lying at the residence of Prof. Basch, a old rambling house situated in a wailed garden on the outskirts of Rennes. He found, un-fortunately, that the wounded lawyer was worse. A slight fever has ret had not been thought advisable to nform the patient today of the refusal of the president of the court-martial to adjourn the sessions in view of coun sel's condition. The decision of Colonel Jouanst not to adjourn the court has reated a very bad impression in Dreyfusard circles and pessimistic predic-tions are being made as to the outcome of the trial. It is pointed out that the decision of the members of the court not to adjourn being unanimous, shows that not one of the judges is well disposed towards the prisoner.

5.20 p. m.-The following bulletin was ssued this evening: "The condition of the patient is satisfactory in spite of slight fever. The X-ray has showed the bullet traversed the skin, subcutaneous cellular tissue and muscles around the spinal column, flattening against the right side of the fifth or sixth dorsal vertebrae." M. Matthew Dreyfus, brother of Captain Dreyfus, visited the wounded man today. Finding him to be progressing favorably, M. Dreyfus said:

"Well, mon brave, the revolver does seem to have done you much "Oh," replied M. Labori, smiling, "revolvers are no use against me. I am oo big. It needs a cannon shot to do ie much harm." This is a striking illustration of M.

Labori's pluck and cheerfulness in spite of the agony he is undergoing.

The premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, has telegraphed to the sufferer, expressing his sincere grief and express

TROOPS FOR MANILA.

Root Resolves to Push Reinforcements with Regularity. Washington, Aug. 16.—Secretary Root has been in consultation with the officers of the quartermaster's department with a view to expediting the movement of the Philippine reinforcements and as a result he this afternoon directed that four additional transports be chartered. They are the Pueblo Selgian King, Columbia and Charles F. Nelson. These fours ships have a capacity of 2,550 men. The Pueblo is now at San Francisco and the Columbla at Portland, Oregon. The other two vessels are expected to arrive at San Francisco in about ten days and it is expected that all of them will be ready to sail for Manila by Sept. 10. It is Secretary Root's desire that the entire body of reinforcements for General Otis' army may reach the Philippines for service during the month of October at the latest, and to that end he has been quietly negotiating for additional ships. It is now believed that all of the ten regiments will have landed at Manila by the time the dry season opens. A short and successful campaign by this new army would, of course, obviate the necessity for cending any additional volunteers to the Philippines and the plans under consideration at the war department are said to be predicted on that idea, it being the intention that whatever additional troops may be recruited will be held in reserve for possible contingeneles Altoons, Aug. 16.-Following the attemps of the borough to compel the Tyrone Water company to sell its works at a less price than it would take, came a raise in water rates for the use of fire plugs which the borough would not pay. This was done and the police have been guarding the plugs night and day.
