SCRANTON, AUGUST 23, 1899.

Aprons of the locker room racket at the board of control meeting Friday night it cannot be authoritatively stated that the selection of the new principal next day was made with a definite view to his presumable ability to keep order, but the fact that he stands six feet four in his stockings and weighs 270 pounds does seem to lend a certain significance to the hasty action of the committee not always to be noted in its decisions. It would appear that since the chief qualifications of a high school principal in this city is to keep order, the next man is admirably equipped in physique, not only to run the affairs of the high school but also to be of valuable similar service in the meetings of the board of control.

Protect the Children. A war is being waged in Paterson, N. J., against the employers of child labor and the fight is long and bitter. It has been found almost impossible to convict mill owners of abuse of the law, as when the factory inspector went in from the front door the children under age were promptly hustled out the rear of the factory and this evidence was collected slowly.

Finally, in desperation, Deputy Inspector Hunter proceeded along new lines. Disguising himself as a laborer, Booker T. Washington, is to be deployed. Through all the past years of oppression the negro has been stigmatically patient. In spite of color prejudice which has closed the avenues of toil against him in many instances he has steadily advanced and has shown himself in countless cases to be a better citizen than the individual who would condemn him to servitude in the lowest walks of life. It is therefore a matter of regret that the wise counsels of men like Booker T. Washington which have heretofore kept the negro leaders from following the teachings of malicious agitators, could not have prevailed. Little can be gained in the interest of the colored race by adopting resolutions denouncing the administration of President McKinley, or the earnest worker in the interest of his race who has been designated as traitor by his brethren at Chicago.

Nobody can longer doubt the efficacy of the Dingley tariff law as a revenue producer. It was originally intended that it should produce at least one-half of the ordinary revenues, which averaged before the war expenditures began, one million dollars per day, and no additions for war expenses were made to it except the tea duty which brings less than a million dollars a month. Yet the receipts under it since March 1st have been $103,000,000, or an average of almost $500,000 a day, instead of the $50,000 per day expected of it. During the same period of the existence of the lamented Wilson law, the customs receipts were $75,000,000, or less than three-fourths of the present law in a like term.

A Feminine Incendiary. Emma Goldman, the Socialist, is still further convincing the public that she is a dangerous element in advocating her version of freedom when she says: "Men and women who are congenial and who are fitted for each other's society should live together. If they discovered that they could not exist together happily then they should separate. If there is a progeny God will take care of it. Woman is as free as man. Why should she be bound by religion or state to obey the mandates of man, be they reasonable or unreasonable? There should be no marriage laws of state or church. I can look forward and see the time when this ideal existence will be possible. With the politics of the world reversed, and with the social laws reformed, people will enjoy perfect happiness, but not until then."

The Pottsville Miners' Journal has started a fund for the purpose of sending veterans who cannot afford to pay their own expenses to the G. A. R. encampment at Philadelphia. There are funds and funds, some of which are wise and some are foolish, but this particular bit of charitable work is to be commended. It is to be hoped that every veteran whose health permits may attend this great annual event. For many it will be their last encampment on earth and that they should be assisted by American citizens to do this bit of enjoyment is indeed fitting.

The people of the United States are sending $250,000,000 a year out of the country to buy tropical products, including fibers, fruits, coffee and sugar. The articles for which this money is expended can all be grown in Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines, to say nothing of Cuba. When American capital and Americans become interested in the industries of those islands this vast sum of money can be expended among our own people, instead of being, as at present, paid to those of other countries.

Matron Eyer, of the Trenton Girls' Industrial school, who is charged with having tortured one of her pupils in a manner that made the girl insane, is now suffering from a nervous strain occasioned by the fear of criminal prosecution. If there is any justice in New Jersey, Mrs. Eyer's nervousness will be apt to increase in the near future.

The farmers of New York are complaining of drouth this season, yet no one up there or in Pennsylvania ever complains when a few hundred nomads of the forest are cut down in the vicinity of a water shed to supply material for an acid factory or a dealer in tan bark.

swamp or from infected human or animal blood. Through the mosquito's stomach the malarial germs reach the blood. When it bites a human being the blood-sucking is accompanied by the injection of the contents of the salivary gland, charged with the malarial germs. This new theory of the cause of malaria will, if correct, no doubt explain many mysterious cases of the dreaded complaint and cause numerous readers to exercise more care in future in avoiding localities that are infested with mosquitoes. The troublesome insect on general principles is a pest to be regarded with dread and when additionally loaded with germs of malaria becomes an element of terror at the swampy summer resort.

Persons who are of the opinion that the much-advertised insect known as the "kissing bug," is a myth, should wait until Dr. L. O. Howard, government entomologist, has been heard from. Dr. Howard will read a paper at Columbus, Ohio, next week in which he will endorse the saffron journals in this feature. According to Dr. Howard there is such an insect. Its bite is not necessarily dangerous. It is painful, though. Lots of people have been bitten by spiders and mosquitoes lately and imagined that they were the cause of the kissing bug. On the other hand, too, many have been bitten by the kissing bug and imagined they had been attacked only by an ordinary housefly or ant." Dr. Howard says the kissing bug, so-called, has been known to science for from 50 to 75 years. He has found in his investigations that the bug is more frequent this year than heretofore, probably on account of the climatic conditions favorable to the propagation of the insect and the unusual opportunities for bug fame afforded by sensational journalism.

The action of the Afro-American council at Chicago the other day in expelling the talented negro leader, Booker T. Washington, is to be deplored. Through all the past years of oppression the negro has been stigmatically patient. In spite of color prejudice which has closed the avenues of toil against him in many instances he has steadily advanced and has shown himself in countless cases to be a better citizen than the individual who would condemn him to servitude in the lowest walks of life. It is therefore a matter of regret that the wise counsels of men like Booker T. Washington which have heretofore kept the negro leaders from following the teachings of malicious agitators, could not have prevailed. Little can be gained in the interest of the colored race by adopting resolutions denouncing the administration of President McKinley, or the earnest worker in the interest of his race who has been designated as traitor by his brethren at Chicago.

The wit of Jenny Lind was as charming in its way as her voice.

On going to feed the parrot one morning, the orderly was surprised to find the bird dead. He did not feel equal to facing his superior officer after this, so he enlisted the aid of a comrade-in-arms who was famous for his diplomacy throughout the regiment. Going up to the officer with a very sad face, this man saluted and said: "I don't think that 'ere parrot or yours will live long, sor."

Don Cameron's Foresight. In May, 1892, Senator Cameron had Senator Davis, of Minnesota, out driving with him one afternoon, and, stopping on the hill in front of Arlington mansion, where the view of the National Capitol in perfect and beautiful, Cameron said: "Davis, I am going to be a candidate for the presidency. I am going after the nomination and I'm going after it hot."

Breaking It Gently. Not long ago a troop ship was returning from the West Indies. Among the passengers aboard was a staff officer who had acquired a parrot as a living trophy of the war, which he placed under the special care of his orderly.

HUMAN NATURE STUDIES.

An Industrious Judge.

Speaking of the sitting of the Benes court-martial, which begins at 6 o'clock in the morning, an old lawyer remarked today: "I think it a pity that Martin Grover is dead, for if he were living he would be able to point to Colonel Jouast as the latest convert to his theory of making judges work. Why when Judge Grover was holding court in Wyoming, he amused all the lawyers he didn't disgust by opening his court at 8 o'clock in the morning, and running it with only an hour off at noon until eight in the evening. 'Taint as long as farmers have to work,' explained this wise old jurist, 'and I'll tell you what it is, if I had my way I'd open court at seven every day in the year.'

Cameron and His Gun.

Senator Quay's private secretary, W. F. Wright, tells this story of Don Cameron: "Cameron's stenographer was ill for a few weeks, and I was doing his work. One morning when I entered Cameron's office, which was at his residence, I saw a big horse pistol lying on the desk. It was about two feet long. I opened the stack of letters, and while I was at work Cameron came in,

R.I.P.A.N.S.

I am thirty-five years of age, by profession a traveling salesman, and being continually on the road, am used to eat my meals at all hours and times of the day. The result of these irregular hours for eating was that I had indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation. After eating a meal I would feel all bloated, and was constantly belching, had a sour taste in my mouth, and at times, while I was eating, the food would be forcibly ejected from my mouth, placing me in a very embarrassing position when eating with any one. I had violent headaches, was very restless at night, unable to sleep, became yellow as a colored man, the result of being constipated. In fact, my health became such that I was compelled to give up my position. After suffering five years I became discouraged with life, until about three months ago, when I stopped at Rockland, N. Y., where I had gone for my health. I became acquainted with a professor of medicine of the Yale University, who was stopping at the hotel and who was struck by my miserable appearance and asked me what the trouble was, and I told him. He said to me: "How much have you spent for doctors and medicine?" I said I guess about $500. "Well," he said, "what would you think if I should tell you I can relieve you instantly and cure you in a month?" I told him I would be in the seventh heaven of delight and major lasting obligations to him; but I was afraid that his bill would be more than I could pay. He smiled and said: "Never mind. If you think my bill is too large then you are not under any obligations to pay me." So I said all right, and placed myself under his care. He then sent me to his room and called down with a little vial full of brown tablets (Ripans Tablets) and said: "Take one of these after each meal and also one whenever you feel that bloated feeling." After taking the first dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the second dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the third dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the fourth dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the fifth dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the sixth dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the seventh dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the eighth dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the ninth dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the tenth dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the eleventh dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more. After taking the twelfth dose, and for ten minutes after calling felt that bloated feeling; also the food was vomited, and my belching, etc., when suddenly the feeling began to leave me, and in about a half hour I felt better than I had for six months, and by supper time the relief I had obtained from the tablet was a great deal more.
