WILLARD EVANS DIES.

Bright Young Life Came to an Un- timely Close Yesterday Morning. Willard Emerson Evans, son of Deputy Revenue Collector and Mrs. W. D. Evans, of Seventh avenue, died Sunday morning at 7:25 o'clock.

Decided was born and brought up in this city, having entered the world in the house from which he left it. He was a bright, studious and ambitious young man and gave up his place after much persuasion and with deep regret.

Decided had so mastered the details of his father's business that in the absence of the head of the family caused no interruption in business matters. In the death of this beloved son the family has certainly sustained irreparable loss.

The funeral will be held at the residence at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Rev. A. F. Chaffee will officiate, assisted by Rev. Charles Lee. A double quartette selected from the choirs of the Methodist and First Presbyterian churches will furnish music.

500 MINERS ASSEMBLED.

Big Mass Meeting on Sandy's Field Yesterday Afternoon.

Prompted by the recent strike of mine drivers and miners in this city, 500 miners and mine workers assembled on Sandy's field yesterday afternoon and listened to a spirited address by District Organizer Benjamin James.

APPEAL FOR FLORIDA.

Rev. John Moore, bishop of the diocese of St. Augustine, Florida, addressed audiences at the several masses in St. Rose church yesterday on the needs of his parish, the cathedral of which was recently destroyed by fire and resources of which have been crippled by the killing frosts which have ruined the orange groves.

NO WATER YET.

The artesian well being sunk by the Hendrick Manufacturing company is now 400 feet deep but there is no water. The work of drilling is being prosecuted with progress of about fifteen feet a day. The projectors are very confident they will strike what they want. If the force should be insufficient a pump will be put in.

PITTSSTON NEWS

Serious Family Feud on North Main Street—A Popular Candidate—The Lithuanian Excursion—Young Man Decapitated by Trolley Car.

Down at Alderman Barrett's office on Saturday evening there was to have been an interesting hearing, but owing to the absence of witnesses, who were at the Lithuanian excursion, the case was postponed until this morning at 10 o'clock, the defendant furnishing bail in the sum of $1,000 until that time. Joseph Connel and Ladislaw Logaylo reside in a double block on North Main street, and there is but one place upon the premises to procure water. The two families are not on the best of terms and are not very shy in making this fact known. Last week the enmity existing came to a climax, when the two women had a fist and a hair-pulling fight, when Mrs. Logaylo went on the Council lot and was assaulted. The Connell woman would have no more trespassing, and the owner of the premises furnished lumber to divide the aggressive families. On Saturday Logaylo was putting up the structure, and this so incensed Connel that the latter went down and picking up a piece of railing, he was assaulted like an ox. This brought the members of both families to the scene and for a while a fierce battle was on. The result is that Logaylo is laid up for repairs, and the warrant issued as above stated. An army of witnesses will be on hand this morning and the court interpreter will have his hands full in keeping within proper bounds.

JERMYN AND MAYFIELD.

The funeral of the late Alva Tompkins, who was instantly killed while at work in the Erie colliery on Thurs- day last, took place on Saturday after- noon. The First Baptist church, in which the services were held, was not large enough to accommodate all who were anxious to be present, and con- sequently many were unable to gain admittance. Rev. W. B. F. Brown, of Blossburg, a former pastor of the church, officiated, and was assisted by Rev. J. B. Cook, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. Mr. Brown delivered the funeral sermon, which made a deep impression. Be- fore concluding he alluded to the Christian fidelity of the deceased man, whose death will be a distinct loss to the community. There was a number of beautiful floral gifts, among which was "Gates Ajar," a pillow and a wreath. The members of James Stuart council, No. 523, Junior Order United American Mechanics, attended in a body. The pallbearers were: J. D. Wall, J. H. Seigle, Theodores Spettigue, Tom Price, Henry Myers and Lafayette Matthews. The flower bearers were: John Lee, Jacob Hiller and Elmer Tripp.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davies, of Second street, have issued invitations to witness the marriage of their daugh- ter, Clara, to Dr. W. J. Baker, of Car- bondale. The interesting ceremony will take place in the Methodist Epis- copal church at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Sent by Dr. Davies, 15c.

Edwin Lang, of Wilkes-Barre, who has been visiting relatives here, returned home on Saturday evening, accompanied by his cousin, George Bat- tenberg.

A large delegation of Knights of Pythias from Sheridan lodge, Pech- ubio, made a fraternal visit here to the local lodge on Friday evening and witnessed the conferring of the Third degree by the local team.

Rev. F. W. B. Brown, of Blossburg, conducted services yesterday in the First Baptist church and at both services preached forcible sermons. Mr. Brown before going to Blossburg was pastor of the church and his presence here yesterday afforded the congrega- tion great pleasure.

Miss Anna Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Jones, of North Main street, who for the past three months has been confined in the Pres- byterian hospital, New York, where she underwent an operation for appendi- citis, has returned home.

Mrs. Wall, who has been nursing her sister, Mrs. Bradford, who is ill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Swick, of Main street, returned to her home at Factoryville, yesterday.

Sound of a Man's Voice Precipitated a Catastrophe.

From the Rocky Mountain News. It is true that the sound of the hu- man voice may start a snowslide; James Perchard, clerk of the state court of appeals, is inclined to answer the question in the affirmative. He has for twenty years past been almost of the belief that a word of farewell which he shouted in one of the mountain canyons cost the lives of two persons.

"I never think of the event without a shudder," said Mr. Perchard yester- day. "I was mining at the time in the region above Georgetown. The snow had fallen to an unusual depth that winter and miners moving from one cabin to another were warned to look out for slides. I stopped in one of my trips at the cabin of an acquaintance and took dinner with him and his wife. At the close of the meal my host urged me to stay a while and take a smoke with him, but I felt nervous and im- patient for some reason which I do not know and so I declined and de- clined as politely as possible the kind invitation. I arose from the table and without delay started on my journey. Crossing the canyon I turned to wave a farewell to the friends who had en- tertained me. The man and his wife were standing at the door of the cabin and a third person was in the house. The air was perfectly still. Not the slightest intimation was given of the awful disaster which was about to hap- pen. I waved my hand and shouted 'Good-bye!'

"Hardly had the echoes of my voice died away before a muffled sound struck the ear—a noise like the boom of a cannon—and the whole side of the mountain seemed to be in motion. The snow, ice, trees and rocks started toward the bottom of the gulch and within five seconds the cabin was over- whelmed and the spot on which I stood one or two minutes before was buried under fifty feet of snow. I summoned assistance as quickly as I could be done and we frantically dug out two dead bodies. The third person after- ward recovered from the injuries in- flicted by the slide, but I have never entirely forgiven myself for the word which I shouted. I do not never to be forgotten day."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and there- fore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. subsequently he received strict orders from his mother to stay off the street during the afternoon. It seems that his adventure with the big boy had taught him to discount the declarations of his elders, for an hour later he was found playing with a small companion on the curbstone. He was hustled into the house.

"Didn't you distinctly understand that I forbade you to go on the street?" demanded his mother. He dug his toes into the rug and quipped: "Y-e-s, but—you say so very much—how was I to know?" he argued.

Another afternoon he appeared in tears straight from school, and sat in a corner and muttered to himself. When dinner was called he declined to have any. His father questioned him. "Here's how 'twas," said the boy. "Joe and me played marbles. Joe said I 'mehed.' I said Joe was a— didn't tell the truth. Then Joe 'jumped me like anything—an' I came home— an' cried."

His father spoke sternly, but with withering scorn: "You're a great chap, you are, to let Joe lick you. You're no son of mine if you allow an alley gam- in to get away with you. You could whip him if you would. Why don't you try?"

The boy seemed to see a great light. He straightened his face and ate, but sparingly. He seemed to be trying to get used to some grim purpose. Speedily he slipped away from the table and left the house. After the dinner the family sat on the porch. Suddenly the son and heir came around the corner. He limped, and his little blouse was a tattered disgrace. There was blood on his tear-streaked face, and he seemed worn and weary. His mother sat

THE COMING MAN.

A Boy's Will is the Wind's Will, and the Thoughts of Youth Are Long Long Thoughts.

The boy at our house was just an average, ubiquitous and irreplaceable little animal—morally well disposed in the main, but inheriting on his paternal side, his full quota of original perversity and a predisposition to look for trouble whenever there happened to be none being around handy. And he kept us busy. Probably that was what he was for, but—we had a time.

One day he came home from kinder- garten in a dreadfully demoralized con- dition. His Tam o' Shanter had been trodden under foot and his once natty little lunch-box was a battered wreck. He was muddy. His clothes were mud- dier. His umbrella was covered with mud. But he brought it all into the house:

"I met a big boy," he burst out. "He was a big fellow—awful big. He grabbed me and my basket dropped into the ditch, but I hung to the parasol. Then when he pulled me 'round I got a big stone off the street, an' said, 'Le' go, or I'll give you this!'" He said, "Hit me 'ith that stone an' I'll cut yer blame head off."

"An' then I—" with a stagger at a sneer, that ended in a sort of a sob, "I hit him with the stone, an'—he didn't cut my head off."

Subsequently he received strict orders from his mother to stay off the street during the afternoon. It seems that his adventure with the big boy had taught him to discount the declarations of his elders, for an hour later he was found playing with a small companion on the curbstone.
