Testimony setting forth the grounds on which the application is based and which was taken before Commissioner John Taylor the previous day, was submitted and then arguments were made by Major Warren for the company, and H. M. Hannah for the opposing property holders.

It was set forth by Major Warren that the conditions which moved court to overthrow the original franchise de not attach to the new one, adopted A total of 525 votes were east in the last month. The councilmen returned the passes they had accepted before entering upon the consideration of the second franchise ordinance, and no harge or even intimation of corruption ould be brought up in connection with its passage.

Mr. Hannah in reply to this pointed out that the councilmen had used a good part of the pass books before returning them to the company. He also dwelt upon the fact that some of them had received as high as $10 a day from the company while serving as witnesses in the injunction proceed-

Major Warren held there was nothng in this on which to hypothecate fraud. It was a very common practice, he said, for a party to give his witnesses extra compensation. It was only fair that such should be done, he said. As an instance he gave the is a barber, and who was obliged to close his shop every day his presence was demanded in court. The few dol-lars extra the company was pleased to allow him did not any more than compensate him for his actual loss of time, to say nothing of the loss resulting from the demoralizing effect his re prated absence from the shop would naturally have on his business.

Mr. Hannah also made objection on the ground that the new ordinance contains some of the objectionable lauses of the original.

Fell School Board Case.

Commissioner M. J. McAndrew, actng for Judge Edwards, took testimony. yesterday, in the Fell township text book case, in which, it will be remembered, Nicholas Glynn and other citizons of the township seek to annul a book contract made with Ginn & Co., f New York and Boston.

The plaintiffs allege that the con-tract was illegal because some of the American Book company's books, which Ginn & Co.'s works are to supplant, have been in use in the township schools less than three years; and further that the new books were adopted three weeks prior to the annual election of teachers. The law provides that text books shall not be changed more than once in three years and that the teachers shall be consulted in their selection

The plaintiffs presented the minutes of the board to prove their two main ententions and in further support of the second, Supervising Principal James E. Brennan was put on the stand to testify that he was the only teacher in the township under contract at the time the new books were seected and that he was in no wise consulted by the board in their selection

The defense was interesting in view of the apparent hopelessnes of its case. Two of the township teachers, Misses Smith and Kelly, testified that twelve of the regular teachers of the township, who had served during the previous year and who were re-engaged for this year, were by invitation present at the meeting of Aug. 7, when the new books were selected, and were one and all consulted in the choice of books.

Then, through several of the school board members, it was attempted to show that the board had never previously adopted any book, but simply purchased in the open market such as vere wanted from time to time. The objectionable conduct of Aug. 7 was reconsidered at a subsequent meetingafter the injunction was applied forand the books purchased from Ginn & Co. must be regarded, the defense would have it appear, as having been purchased, as books previously had been purchased, without being formatly adopted. Evidence was also adduced to show that no complete set of books had been adopted, even under the contract that was annulled. The books purchased this year were

Dockash Stoves and Ranges

A particular feature of the Dockash line of Parlor Stoves is the construction of the fire pot and grate, allowing their removal through upper mica door. You will appreciate the fact if you ever have to renew these parts.

Many persons object to nickel trimmings on a stove because it's hard to blacken the stove without soiling the nickel. In the Dockash the nickel parts can be removed without loosening a bolt or screw. Makes it easier to polish the nickel, too.
