The Roeber Company.

The clever company headed by Miss Katharine Roeber will close its week's engagement at the Academy of Music tonight, when "The Devil's Mine" will be presented, "Shall We Forgive Her?" is the attraction for this afternoon.

"My Innocent Boy."

The Buffalo Evening News say of 'My Innocent Boy," in which Otis Harlan will appear at the Lyceum tonight: "George R. Sims has male a capital bit of comedy in ' My Innocent IT Boy,' which Otis Harian brings out at the Star this week. The play is farcical-in spots-but it may be said here that Mr. Harlan has made a long stride toward his proper place in the ranks of those who are doing what is known, for want of better tecm, as legitimate comedy. At the Royaliv theater in London the play had a long run, and it pleased our English friends immensely-as it did a large audience inst night. There is genuine delight in finding on the stage in these days a play that has enough of a plot to maintain a constant interest; one that s clean all through: one that does not depend solely on horse play to produce a laugh. That's the sort of an affair that Otis Harlan has in 'My Innocent Boy,' and he is to be congratulatedas is everybody who is Tucky enough to see the comedy in its short run at

At the Gaiety Theater.

Hoey and Norton's Twentieth Century Comedians at the Galety this afternoon and evening is the best vaude ville show on the road. They have ten big acts and every one of them is good. The two Marons in their hand and head balancing are great. Johnson and Dean are great in their latest coon songs. They are the cleverest colored team on the stage. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 2, 3 and 4, the European Sensation company will be seen, with matinees dally.

Cameron Clemens Company. Below is a clipping from the Reading

Daily Review in reference to the Cameron Clemons company, which opens Monday evening at the Academy of Music. Any lady procuring tickets before 7 p. m. Monday will be admitted "The Academy was hardly able to hold the people who wanted to witness the opening performance by the Cameron Clemens company. A better balanced repertoire company has never before appeared in the Academy. Mr. Clemens puts into his acting the force and power which makes friends and holds them. Not once did he step over the bond of dramatic art.

"Jonah and the Whale."

J. Brandon Tynan, who plays the eading part in "Jonah and the Whale," the farce about which everyone is talking in New York, is one of America's most capable young actors. Daniel Frohman, of the Lyceum theatre, New York.has loaned Mr. Tynan to the management of "Jonah and the Whale." and the actor himself is so pleased with his opportunities in this play that he declares it to be the best of his career Tynan plays the young lover, whose unfortunate choice of a disguise gets him into such a peck of trouble that it is said the three acts of Jonah "go with a roar." It will be seen at the Lyceum Tuesday evening.

"The Carpet Bagger." The popular comedian, Tim Murphy, will appear at the Lyceum Wednesday ute to the dead man by whose death evening in a new play by Opic Read and Frank S. Pixley, entitled "The Carpet-Hagger." It is a political, romantic comedy, full of fun, thrilling in interest, and has been pronounced by a Chicago newspaper critic as "the finest to struggle bard to maintain their sen, F. R. Gill and Philip Baker, five years." Mr. Murphy gives it a magnificent production, carrying spe cial scenery and a very strong cast including A. S. Lipman. The play deals with the political situation just after the Civil war, and exposes with unmerciful, but humorous, satire the corruption of that period. It shows how a man, good at heart, but in business and politics utterly corrupt, may be purified and redeemed by the influence of a woman.
