FUNERAL OF JAMES TOOLAN.

James Toolan, the young man who met an untimely death at the Dewey celebration in New York, Saturday, was buried yesterday morning. The funeral cortege, which was a very large ons, proceeded to St. Rose church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. W. A. Nealon. At the conclusion of the mass, Father Nealon delivered a fitting gulogy. He spoke of the Christian character of the deceased and of the many good deeds he had performed through life. He also spoke words of consolation to the bereaved ones, telling them to look to God in their sad affliction. The remains were conveyed to St. Rose cemetery, where they were lowered to their final resting place. The pall-bearers were Matthew Flannelly, William Norton, Willlam Cox, Martin Lavin, Martin Harte, Patrick Gilmartin, James McHale and Patrick Scott. The flower-bearers were James Lynott, Edward Burke and Edward Kilgallon.

A very small audience saw "Jonah and the Whale" at the Lyceum last night, but the audience was as large as the merits of the farce deserved. "The Carpetbagger."

The advent of Tim Murphy on the local boards of the Lyceum tonight is an apt illustration of a brilliantly successful achievement in the exposition of reflued, artistic, original and poetic work. Acting which is classic because it is dignified, full of light and shade, forceful, impressive, magnetic and absorbing in interest. Tim Murphy is a comedian of the best school; he is one who does not strain for his effects. He is spontaneous and responsive to every demand of character, scene or situation. He charms by his repose and naturalness. Whatever the character may be that he is impersonating at the time, he makes his audiences feel, believe and realize that he is in fact the character they see before them. It is in "The Carpet Bagger" that he will be seen here in a role new ery opportunity and a rare chance to demonstrate with positive assurance Tickets to Scranton and return either that he is a great actor. The play is

The Mysterious Fluid.

The vast inroads that have been made in the past few years into the mysteries of electricity have most materially aided the theatrical mechanic in permitting him to produce certain effects which were absolutely impossible to present under the former conditions. This is evidenced very prominently in the magnificent big production of "Frederick the Great" by Lewis Morrison at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday nights, Octo. 6 and 7 in which the audience witnesses a battle between the Austrians and Prussians, where every shot, movement and devastation is produced and controlled by electricity. Again in the fourth act the fete scene, a huge prismatic mountain is operated and regulated by the same mysterious fluid. Mr. Morrison has many times heretofore demonstrated his faith in electricity, but never upon such an extensive scale as this season.

At the Gaiety. The attraction booked at the Galety theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 5, 6 and 7, with daily matinees, is the Butterfly Extravaganza company, which has been so success ful the past few seasons. This year it has outdone itself and has one of day evening from New York City, the best way-up shows. The first part and burlesque, which opens and closes days visiting friends and witnessing the performance, cause a continual roar of laughter and gives all of the cast full opportunity to prove the ability. The music of the first part, "A Female Seminary," is very catchy and the costumes are beautiful, while the burletta is on the farce comedy order and affords great chances for the artists to appear at their best.

The olio consists of the following well known people: Monte Collins and Norma Wills, Tom and Patys Barrett, Archer and Archer Sisters, Phillips and Mapnon and the Eldridges. The company numbers thirty people and carry all new scenery and electrical off cir.
