SHE WOULDN'T BE ARRESTED.

How a St. Paul Woman Foiled a Policeman. A very charming St. Paul woman who makes her summer home at White Bear routed the police force of that village after a brief encounter on Friday.

Mrs. B. rides a bicycle, of course, and when it became necessary for her to go to the grocery or the postoffice, or wherever it was that she had to go, she, of course, mounted her wheel.

Mrs. B. either did not know this or she did not care; she took to the walk and rode down town. She left her wheel outside and went into the store, and when she came out she found herself confronted by the dignitary who is the whole thing in police circles—the man who is to the police department what the lone mariner was to the Nancy brig.

He said to the lady: "You are under arrest." She looked at him and made a dash for her wheel, which he had captured. He retired before the onslaught in disorder, and she got the wheel.

"I am what," she demanded. "You are under arrest for riding on the walk."

"But I won't be under arrest," she said. "But you are," he said. "I am not anything of the kind. You mind your own business."

"But, mum, it is my business, and you must go to the justice's office with me, or promise that you will be there at 9 o'clock in the morning."

"I won't do anything of the kind." "But I tell you I arrest you!" "And I tell you I won't be arrested. There you are. Now what are you going to do about it?"

"Oh, come on, now; come to the justice's office."

"I won't do it. I'll pay a fine, if that's what you want. How much is it?"

"I don't take the fine. You must go to the justice," said the unfortunate copper.

"Where's the justice then?" "He's down on the bridge, fishing! I guess. Won't you promise to be on hand in the morning?"

"No, I won't." "Then I'll have to arrest you." "And I tell you I won't be arrested, and I'm going home."

The copper scratched his head and looked as though he was going to make another dash on the bicycle. Mrs. B. got aboard of the wheel.

"You're a nasty, mean thing, and I'm going to tell my husband that you said I was arrested," she said, and she got off and the copper went down on the bridge and helped the justice fish and the crowd that had gathered rose like the laugh.

LARGEST BIBLE IN THE WORLD. Engraved on Seven Hundred Slabs of White Marble.

From the Boston Traveller. In 1857 Mindon-min, king of Burma, erected a monument near Mandalay called the Kutho-daw. There he built 700 temples, in each of which there is a slab of white marble. Upon these 700 slabs is engraved the whole of the Buddhist Bible, a vast literature in itself, equal to about six copies of the Holy Scriptures.

This marble bible is engraved in the Pali language, thought to be that spoken by Buddha himself in 500 B. C. Photographs of some of these inscriptions have reached England, and Prof. Max Müller—perhaps the greatest linguist in the world—has examined them. But, alas for all this human ingenuity and perseverance! If his Majesty Mindon-min thought to perpetuate the touching of the great Buddha by causing it to be graven on the rock he nourished a vain ambition.

copy of any portion of literature, even the National Encyclopedia of China, in 5,000 volumes, occupies a comparatively small space. To reach the other end of the limits of the printers' and engravers' art we need only remember that "Smallest Bible in the World" and the Diamond editions of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish Bibles.

To engrave the Bible of Buddha on the marble slabs in the temples of Kutho-daw must have cost many thousands of dollars, but these sermons in stone are easily outlasted by a copy of the New Testament, which beautifully printed, can be bought for 25 cents, and, if carefully cherished, will last many generations.

How Lincoln impressed Him. Fred Douglas told me, when he came to speak, that, with all his long experience, he never could entirely rid himself of stages-fright. "During the first fifteen minutes when I front an audience," he said, "my knees will knock together."

"What is the meaning of the saying, 'The king can do no wrong'?" "I think it must be a sort of insanity plus a theory that most monarchs are non-compos mentis, or pretty near it," Judge.
