A BRILLIANT RECITAL.

Given by Marshall Darrach in St Luke's Parish House.

The most exclusive audience of the eason gathered last night at St. Luke's parish hall to hear Marshall Darrach, he renowned Shakespearean scholar and reader, in recital.

Much had been expected of this enertainment, as Mr. Darrach's reputaion is such that his particuar interpretation of the great dramatist is ceraln to interest the most critical student, as well as the listener who merely wishes to be entertained. He is richly endowed in voice, physique and grace f gesture to picture the most intricate

Mr. Darrach's repertoire last night ncluded many characters from "The Merchant of Ventce." The monologist must always labor at a certain disadvantage in the absence of the effective accessories of costume, stage setting and varied personnel in the play as I is familiar to the average theatre-goer but Mr. Darrach had proceeded with few lines before the stately Venetian age seemed to stretch far before the audience and almost the Palace of the Doges, the Plazzetta, the black-prowed gondolas appeared in fancy's mirror. It needed not the red gleam of Portia's cap and gown, the slashed velvets and satins of the distant period to bring it very near, for the entertainer of the evening made this gem of all the lighter plays of Shakespeare a series brilliant pictures.

Perhaps his greatest impersonation is that of Shylock, He makes no buresque of the role, but lifts it to the which only now and then it, has attained at the hands of a great

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY.

Major Millar's Horse Made a Lively Dash Up Lackawanna Avenue as Parade Was Dispersing.

There was a most exciting runaway on Lackawanna avenue yesterday afernoon, just as the firemen's parade was being dismissed. Major W. S. Milar, Grand Marshal Hickey's chief of staff, was mounted on a spirited horse owned by Lieutenant Colonel C. C. Mattes and when the head of the dissolving body was at Lackawanna and Penn avenues the horse took the bit between his teeth and dashed up the avenue, which was crowded with people from curb to curb. Major Millar is a dashing and experienced horseman and he did his utmost to subdue the fractious horse, at the same time skilfully guiding the animal so as not to injure any one. He was successful until he reached the eleven-year-old girl, who lives on Merldian street, dashed directly in front of the horse and was knocked down and rampled upon by the horse.

A few yards further on Major Millar was thrown from the horse, but he esolutely clung to the bridle and, although dragged along the pavement, retained his grasp and succeeded in stopping the horse at Fritz's harness store, in the middle of the block between Wyoming and Washington ave-

After the girl was run down she lay on the pavement in a semi-unconscious condition and it was at first supposed she was dead. Great excitement folthe horse, notwithstanding that he was badly hurt himself, his first thought was of the little girl. He had her taken into Dr. N. Y. Leet's office, where it was ascertained that she had no bones broken, but had sustained a number of painful bruises. Major Millar sent her nome in a carriage in care of Dr. Leet, and directed that she receive every possible attention at his expense.

The major then went to his office, where he ascertained that he is a mass of bruises and contusions from head to His right arm is quite seriously

ARCH WAS SET ON FIRE.

Pretty Spectacle at Wyoming Avenue and Mulberry Street.

About 8.30 o'clock last night some one set fire to the evergreen arch at Wyoming avenue and Mulberry street. The pine and the wooden frame work to which it was attached blazed furlously for a few minutes and made a pretty spectacle.

Word was sent to the Crystal Hose house on Linden street and the company and its hose wagon made a ouick run to the blazing arch and extinguished the flame with chemicals. The beauty of the arch has been greatly marred, however.

Realistic Production.

Connolly & Wallace deserve credit for a most remrakable reproduction of a fire scene in one of their large show windows on Washington avenue. pictures a small brick building on fire on the inside, a fireman stands at one of the windows with a hose, while another ascends a ladder to the roof, which is made of burned boards; through the broken panes of glass a firemen is heroically saving the contents of the fated building. The burned curtains and carpets, broken glass and furniture on the grass under the windows, the red lights within the building, the gravel paths and trees, complete the most realistic window scene ever reproduced in Scranton.

OFFICERS OF THE BRANCH CHOSEN

MRS. CYRUS D. FOSS RE-ELECT-ED PRESIDENT.

Mrs. T. H. Darlington Declined Re-Election as Editor of the Quarterly and Mrs. T. H. Wilkenson Was Elected in Her Place-Number of Interesting Reports Heard from Missionaries-Only a Brief Session Was Held in the Afternoon-Address of Mrs. Baldwin.

The second day of the convention of se Philadelphia Branch of the Women's Foreign Misisonary society of the Methodist Episcopal church opened most auspiciously. October is more gracious than was the frowning chill eptember and the carnest devoted women who gather in Fim Park church in hese sessions looked back longingly from the doors yesterday morning and said, "How beautiful is Scranton." We always have company weather for our big conventions and on this occasion nature is surpassing herself in a smilner welcome

One of the most remarkable things about this convention is the fact that almost without exception the proggramme is literally carried out. There is no great effort made at secctacular ffects in parliamentary usage but with much simplicity and directness the details of address are rapidly carried out.

The devotional exercises in the Lincoln of the Wilmington conference, Darlington submitted the report of the uitism. editor of the Quarterly Friend.

IN THE AFTERNOON.

The afternoon session was rather brief and it was difficult to hold the attention of the audience when a coninuous succession of brass bands went tooting past the church. The devotional exercises were in charge of the Philadelphia conference. The report of election of conference and district offi ers was made after which the roll call of missionaries continued. Miss Llewellyn read a letter from Miss Lumber ger, who is in Mexico. Miss Williams read Miss White's letter from Central China and Miss Singer, of Japan, appeared and gave on interesting talk An open conference between confer-and auxiliary officers was opened by Mrs. O. H. Cook and participated in by many ladies. Mrs. S. L. Baidwin. speaker of the evening, was introduced and made brief remarks. The session adjourned early to enable vistors to attend Mrs. Connell's reception. The evening meeting was one of great interest. Mrs. Foss presided. The church quartette sang a selection and Mrs. S. L. Baldwin made an address. Mrs. Baldwin has spent twenty years in China. She went out in 1862, when all the east was a locked door to Chrislian missionarie: Her reminiscences of that long stay in heathen lands are most interesting. She spoke last evening on "The 4"resent Political Connection of the World with Reference to Evangelistic Work," and drew vivid contrasts between the aspects of the East at the time of her first visit and that of last year, when orning were conducted by Mrs. M. R. Dr. Baldwin and she returned to attend the fiftieth conference anniversary Mrs. A. H. Irwin offered prayer, Mrs. in China. She stated in strong terms Wakelin, of Philadelphia, that three great barriers still exist, ead the minutes of the previous meets namely: Mohammedanism, the prejuing which were approved. Mrs. I. NOTES OF THE CONVENTION. Mrs. Darlington, the associate corresponding secretary, is an interesting lady. She is the granddaughte; of the late Charles Miner, of Wilkes-Barre, and the daughter of Judge Joseph Lewis, of Philadelphia, a close per-sonal friend of Abraham Lincoln, who was to have been one of the box party the fatal night of the assassination. Her sister was the first wife of Wayne McVeagh, who at her death macried a daughter of Simon Cameron. Major McCauley, state auditor general, is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Darlington. The presence of Mrs. Christian K. Ross at the convention recalls many sad thoughts to the mind of those who know her life's tragedy. It was twenty-six years last Fourth of July since her little son Charlie went out of the door and has never returned to this was away from home at the She time with a sick child who needed sea air and the agonizing and frantic search for the lost little lad is something never to be forgotten by all Germantown and, indeed, the whole country. A few years ago her husband died broken-hearted from the sorrow of it No one ever speaks to her about the story, for she loses self-control and suffers again in repetition of the misery of that awful time.

RECEPTION TO THE DELEGATES. They Were Entertained by Mrs.

William Connell at Her Home. The beautiful home of Congressman and Mrs. William Connell at the corner of Clay avenue and Vine street was thrown open yesterday from 4 to 6 o'clock when Mrs. Connell in the name of the local missionary auxiliaries received the officers and delegates of the society. The occasion was one of the most delightful recorded in the history of the Philadelphia branch. Mrs. Connell's charming hospitality made even the most timid stranger at ease and the visitors lingered long about the handsome rooms. Mrs. Connell was assisted in receiv ing by Mrs. Cyrus D. Foss, Mrs. Prisicilla Bennett, Mrs. S. L. Keen, Mrs. J. L. Darlington, Mrs. T. H. Wilson, Mrs. Amos Wakelin, Mrs. C. M. Giffin and Mrs. J. S. McAnulty. About the various rooms were Mrs. C. R. Connell, Mrs. C. B. Penman, Mrs. S. T. Jones Mrs. A. E. Connell, Mrs. Clearwater and Mrs. W. A. Connell.

In the dining room, which was pret tily decorated with La France roses, a number of young ladies served refreshments. Among them were: Miss Ruth Dale, Miss Ada Eone, Miss Jose phine Phelps, Miss Grace Peck. A very large number of guests came during the hours of receiving. They included wives of various pastors of the city and prominent church workers in the missionary society here and dsewhere. Among the ladies present ere: Mrs. P. L. Bennett, Mrs. M. J. Edward O'Malley, of 354 Second avenue, Bellevue, employed as a lineman by the Suburban Electric Light company, was instanty killed at 10 o'clock yesterday morning while at work repairing wires in Hitchcock court, in the ear of Hahnemann hospital. Thomas Finnegan, another employe of the company, was also engaged with O'Malley, but was standing on the ground when he heard a groun from O'Malley, who was working on top of pole. He looked up and saw his associate topple over from an arm upon which he was sitting. Realizing that O'Malley had received a shock, he expected the body to fall to the ground, but this did not occur

The man was dead, but O'Malley had so entangled his legs around the pole that the body hung face downward. Finnegan quickly secured a ladder and mounted the pole. He released the body, and carried it to the ground where a large crowd had congregated in the meantime. A physician was summoned, but his services were not equired.

The body was removed to Cusick's undertaking establishment, where is vas prepared for burial. Deceased was years of age, and was the son of Mr and Mrs. Thomas O'Malley, of Bellevue. He was also a brother of Plumb-ing Inspector M. F. O'Malley.

Coroner Roberts viewed the remains and found marks on the back of one hand and on the wrist of the other There was also a mark over the breast bone. The direct cause of death has not yet been ascertained, but is supposed to have been caused by O'Malley grasping a live wire which he had just cut before receiving the shock. The oroner will empanel a jury, who will riew the remains.
