The fair of the Artesian Hose company will open next Wednesday evening in Enterprise hall. The company has answered every call since their organization and have always rendered whatever assistance they were able in subduing conflagrations. They are, however, badly handleapped because of lack of complete equipment and it is to raise sufficient funds to overcome this disadvantage that the coming fair will be held. It is, therefore, hoped that the people of the borough, appreciating the services of the young men, will patronize the fair and by so doing they will make it the success hope for and enable the Artesians to attain their desirable object. On the opening night there will be a parade in which both local and some out-of-town companies will take part. The Columbias, of Carbondale, and the Archbald firemen and Crystals, No. 1, have already promised to be in line and at the meeting to be held this evening it is expected that acceptances of the invitation sent out will be read from some other companies. The parade will be headed by Hogarth's band and will form in front of the Artesians rooms on A street in the following riogarth's band, Archbald, Columbias, Artesians. The line of march will be up Main street, where, at the intersection of Bacon street, they will be joined by the Crystals. to Odd Fellows' hall, up Rushbrook street, down Second to Cemetery, to Main, to the hall, where the fair will then be opened. The booths will be in charge of Miss Annie McAndrew and Miss Ella Mulhearn and a number of assistants and a short entertainment will be given each evening. The parade will move at half past seven o'clock.
