HE HAS NOT RETURNED.

The Smooth-Mannered Man Did Not Keep His Word.

Some time ago a number of prominent ladies of this city received letters from a firm which alleged that it had been commissioned to dispose of the salvage of the steamer Paris, which was wrecked at sea. The circular offered to sell silk stockings, laces and the like at prices so low as to create astonishment.

The circulars were followed one day the latter part of last week by a smooth-mannered man who appeared to bring the goods around the following day and sell them at the prices named in the circular. In every instance he requested the lady of the house to get for him the circular she received from the firm which he represented. His object seemed to be to want to be alone in the room for a few minutes.

When the circular was secured the smooth-mannered man would bow himself out of the house, promising to return on the morrow. He has not yet returned.

All of this would probably not have created any great amount of excitement if it had not been learned that a similar game was worked in Brooklyn, N. Y., some time ago and that about a month after the visit of the smooth-mannered man there was a series of very mysterious burglaries in these same houses.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The much longed for and expected game between High School and Williamsport will take place Saturday if the weather permits. This game will be the climax of all others, for if the school team comes out victorious they may claim to the championship of Pennsylvania. Although the admittance is to be a quarter it is expected that the crowd at the park will exceed that of all other games. Several merchants in the city have contributed prizes to the victorious eleven. The rooting of the day will, beyond doubt, equal if not excel that of the game with Lackawanna. The game will be the hardest contested of any preceding one, and although the boys from Williamsport are rather light they play a very fine game in every respect. The boys from the school are working hard to make this game a grand success and are at the park every day practicing and endeavoring to strengthen themselves in every way possible.

The "Scrub" has two games scheduled to take place this week. The first one, which will be this afternoon, is with the eleven of the Dunmore High School, whom they defeated last week in very fine style. The second will be with the Scranton Business College eleven. Both these games will be very exciting and interesting, as the contestants are very nearly equally matched.

The work of the school is going along in a commendable manner. Every pupil is beginning to learn what is expected of him and to do it with a will. The harmony between teacher and pupil is something admirable and the lessons, in most cases, are well learned and recited in a befitting manner. The meetings held every Monday in connection with the principal, at which they discuss the best manner in which to teach their different subjects and how to increase the interest of every pupil in his and her work. In this they succeed to such an extent in most cases that the pupil goes at his respective subjects in a manner not as though it was a duty, but as a pleasure.

Monday the musical classes succeeded very well in the singing of the scale. The four parts were practiced separately and sang very fine. Prof. Dermau manifests a great amount of patience and will beyond a doubt raise the musical standard of the school very high. During the practice the classes sang many selections from sight and with a very good effect.

It is thought by many that one day in every week is insufficient for the studying of music. They say that at least two days each week should be devoted to this subject. This would give the students a better opportunity of remembering the lessons and of acquiring a better idea of what is needed and what is expected in this line.

The first of the series of lectures on Ancient Rome will be given on Thursday evening at the auditorium. The pupils have succeeded in selling many tickets and the lectures will no doubt prove a grand success.

The attendance of the pupils, although there is so much sickness, is very fine, and it is said that the tardy pupils are decreasing very fast.

The girls, although the weather is rather cold, still persist in leaving the building and walking the streets at intermission bareheaded.

POLICE COMMITTEE MEETING.

To Take Action on Police Matter Thursday Night.

The police committee of select council will meet Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in the city clerk's office, just before the regular meeting of that branch of council.

The committee's communication removing Patrolman Sheehy and appointing Thomas M. Conroy in his place will come up and there is no doubt expressed in city hall circles but that the committee will offer a favorable report to council on the matter and that Conroy will become a permanent member of the force after Thursday.

It is very improbable that the telephone ordinance will be reconsidered on Thursday evening. In order to do this a two-thirds vote would be necessary to suspend the rules, as only under suspension of the rules could the chairman be again brought up, according to Chairman Williams' ruling, and unless several of the members have changed their views on the matter since last meeting this two-thirds can not be obtained.

CASE STATED TO BE DRAWN UP.

Opinion from Court to Be Asked in Poplar Street Case.

Ex-Judge Knapp, for the Lackawanna Coal and Iron company, ex-Judge Jessup, for the Delaware and Hudson company, Attorney C. H. Welles, for the Lackawanna city, and City Solicitor Yousberg, for the city, held a consultation yesterday morning in the office of Willard, Warren & Knapp in regard to the Poplar street fence difficulty.

It was decided to draw up a case stated to be presented to court and an early opinion on the same to be asked for. This case-stated will be drawn up and signed at another meeting which will be held this morning.

Elks Entertain.

Scranton lodge of Elks gave an euchre, followed by a smoker at their club rooms on Franklin avenue last night. About seventy-five members were in attendance. H. J. Schubert won the euchre prize. Following the card game a splendid lunch was served and the rest of the evening was devoted to the smoker. Everything was arranged with the utmost care and painted in a most creditable manner to the house committee to whose charge the evening's proceedings were.

Will Investigate.

SOME OF THE MEN HAVE RESUMED WORK.

All of Them Would Have Gone Back Yesterday Had It Been Possible for Them to Do So—A Number of Men Went to Work in No. 1 Yesterday Bailing Water—By This Morning It Will Be Possible to Work a Number of Chambers—Condition of Affairs at No. 2.

There was a sincere feeling of joy yesterday at Old Forge over the settlement of the strike at Jermyn No. 1 and No. 2, which began on Oct. 13 and which during the last week seemed likely to cause the shedding of blood. As announced in The Tribune yesterday morning, the strike was settled in a satisfactory manner Monday night and yesterday the deputies were withdrawn and as many of the men as place could be found for resumed work yesterday.

All was quiet and serene yesterday at the little mining hamlets that cluster around the mines. Many of the men who were not at work could be seen during the afternoon trudging through the snow towards the mine openings with their tools, so that they can resume work as soon as the chambers they abandoned on Oct. 12 are cleared safe by the fire-boys.

While a number of men were at work in No. 1 yesterday, the breaker was idle. No effort was made to screen any coal because a sufficient number of chambers could not be worked on account of gas and water. No attempt was made to do anything at No. 2.

CONDITION AT NO. 2.

The mines were taken out of that mine at the beginning of the strike and will have to be shod and taken down again. There is also a lot of water to be pumped out and chambers to be cleared of gas. It is probable that No. 2 will not resume until Monday. By the early part of next week it is confidently expected that the 1,600 men and boys affected by the strike will be at work again.

Monday afternoon Edward Jermyn, as the representative of Jermyn & Co., met a committee made up of miners of the No. 1 and No. 2 collieries, at William Hill, where the entire situation was reviewed at length.

As a result of this conference, Mr. Jermyn agreed to allow the men to have a voice in the selection of the docking bosses.

It was because of the alleged unfair actions of the docking bosses at the No. 1 and No. 2 collieries that the men struck on Oct. 13. They demanded the right to hire a man to represent them at the head of the breaker, where the coal is dumped and the docking done.

This the Jermyns refused to do. They said it would mean two docking bosses at the "head," representing conflicting interests, and that confusion and incessant bickerings would result.

Thereupon the men struck, and they have been out ever since.

MONDAY'S CONFERENCE.

At the conference Monday afternoon it was suggested that the men name three men employed at each colliery who would be agreeable to them for docking bosses and from these Mr. Jermyn would select one to act as inspector of coal at the head of the breaker. The proposition was agreeable to both sides, and the names were presented after Mr. Jermyn had given the assurance that the strike would be officially declared off in a few hours.

The committee at once notified John Morgans, president of the local union of Mine Workers, of the success of the conference and immediately gave him a call for a meeting of the union for that night in Cusick's hall to act on the report of the conference committee. It was adopted without any extended discussion and amid general expressions of approval.

The men employed at Jermyn No. 1 and No. 2 collieries then convened and selected John C. Davis, Wilson Franklin, Frank Apple, James Bell, Griffith Jenkins and Tony Sallori as men who would suit them in the office of docking boss. These names were presented to Mr. Jermyn and he selected Wilson Franklin as the docking boss for No. 1 and Frank Apple for No. 2.

Mr. Morgans, the president of the local union of Mine Workers, which comprises all the men employed in the half dozen collieries in that vicinity, said yesterday that the miners will pay the two docking bosses who have been selected. If they are not fair to the owners of the colliery and the men they cannot retain their places.

MORGANS PLEASED.

Mr. Morgans was much pleased yesterday over the settlement of the strike. He is employed by the Pennsylvania Coal company, but because of his office as president of the local Mine Workers' union was projected rather prominently into the strike difficulties. After the strike was officially declared off Monday night he congratulated Edward Jermyn on his attitude toward the men at Monday's conference, which had much to do with the promptness with which the strike was ended. Mr. Morgans had a big task on his hands while the strike was on. The members of the union speak a half dozen different languages and it was necessary to conduct most of the debates at meetings through the medium of interpreters. The difficulty of getting a proper and uniform understanding of any question on the part of all the members will readily be appreciated.

T. S. Lewis, the foreman at No. 1, was kept busy yesterday answering the questions of miners who wanted to know where they would go to work. Many of those who resumed work yesterday were sent in to bail water. Mr. Lewis said the mine will probably have its full quota of men at work tomorrow.

Every man will be given his old place. All of the men employed during the last two weeks belonged to the working force of the colliery before the strike. They will, of course, be retained. As men from other collieries were not imported, there will be no annoyance arising from the disturbing of workmen.

EFFIGY SHOT AND BURNED.

After the strike was declared off Monday night the effigy of a man hung by the strikers on a tall pole on the main road between Portown and Muldown was cut down, shot, kicked about the fields and finally burned.

Edward Jermyn, when seen by a Tribune reporter yesterday, expressed his satisfaction over the settlement of the difficulty. "We have conceded to the men just what we were willing to grant the day they struck," he continued.

ASKS FOR AN INJUNCTION.

Trolley Company Wants to Enjoin Archbald Authorities from Interfering with Their Work.

The trouble at Archbald between the trolley company and the borough authorities, which is described at length in the Archbald correspondence, has gotten into court.

Yesterday afternoon James E. Burr, attorney for the Carbonate Traction company, applied to Judge Edwards for an injunction to restrain the Borough of Archbald, Mark Price, president of the council, and John McHale, chief of police, from interfering with the company's lines, with which it will connect.

When the writ of injunction was granted, it was undertaken, one week ago Monday, Chief of Police McHale notified General Manager Charles E. Flynn and Roadmaster William J. Gordon that they had passed a resolution to the effect that the company should not be permitted to disturb the tracks without permission from council. Last Monday, when the work was under way, the borough authorities caused the arrest of General Manager Flynn and fifteen of the trackmen and "Squire" Gildea held them for court.

The company claims the right to narrow its tracks under the ordinance giving them a right of way through the streets in which measure the stipulation to track the rails that they shall not exceed five feet two inches in width. This, it is contended, only prevents the company from widening its tracks and does not restrict it in any way from narrowing them.

The declaration of the petition as sworn to by Frank Silliman, as vice-president of the Carbonate Traction company.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE DREYFUS CASE

INTERESTING LECTURE BY REV. D. J. MACGOLDRICK.

He Reviews the Case as He Became Acquainted with It in Reading the Stenographic Reports in the Paris Figaro and Gives the Impressions He Formed from a Perusal of the Evidence and the History of the Events Leading Up to the Trial of the Now Celebrated Case.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Catholic Historical Society and Newman Magazine club, at Quaker's hall, last evening, Rev. D. J. Macgoldrick gave the first of a series of talks already announced to be given by him during the winter months. The subject of his address was "The Impressions of the Dreyfus Case." Rev. Macgoldrick, in a careful reading of the detailed report of the trial furnished by the Paris Figaro.

In order to make his remarks easily intelligible to all, he described at some length the history of the leakages at army headquarters in 1893-94, the incidents leading up to the arrest of Captain Dreyfus, the submission to his judges of certain documents upon which the verdict of his guilt was in great part based, and the withholding of the same documents from the accused and his legal advisers.

ACTION OF THE CIVIL COURTS.

Then it was shown how, in after years, this mode of procedure was brought to the notice of the legislature and the civil courts, with a view to having the original sentence quashed and a new hearing ordered, and how the civil courts entertained the appeal and granted the motion for a new trial, because of the informality complained of.

Then the speaker referred to the fact that even in the second trial the secret documents were not submitted for public examination any more than in the first trial, and how the verdict was virtually a confirmation of the original finding.

The speaker desired it to be understood that his purpose in treating of the Dreyfus case was not to decide as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, but rather to give an accurate history of the case, and to call attention to impressions gathered by the way while reading the testimony.

In the first place the speaker called attention to the remarkable attitude of the German emperor relative to the accused and accused. What, said he, would we have thought of a like interference in the case of a captain of engineers lately tried by court-martial in the United States? And if unwarrantable in the case of a captain of engineers, would we have thought of a like interference in the case of a captain of engineers? The point to which the speaker referred was the known hostility of Dreyfus' friends to civil and religious liberty, and their appeal to race antipathies and religious strife to create a prejudice in favor of their case. The greatest evil of all this, however, the speaker pointed out, was the inability of France to unite all her forces, retrieve the past, and become again what she should always have remained, "the leading member in the household of the nations."

THE CAUSE OF IT ALL.

The whole trouble as the reverend speaker viewed it was caused by the outside enemies of France, principally by Germany and that the secret societies were the instruments by which the affair was engineered.

Much of the cruel diatribes addressed to France from this and other foreign quarters as the result of ignorance as to the true merits of the case. Mr. Dooley, the famous Chicago philosopher, very likely had these in mind when he said the French language is hard to read and harder to understand. Some of those who have been foremost in criticizing the case have had no more of an understanding of it than they have of the geography of the off-side of the moon.

Anyone reading the official reports of the trial or the stenographic reports in the Paris papers and then comparing them with the report current in this country would agree with him in the above contention.

In dealing with the allegation that the Catholic church was a strong agency in prosecuting Dreyfus, Father Macgoldrick said that of the one hundred and thirty-five members whose testimony he read not more than four were Catholics, while one of the principal anti-Dreyfus witnesses was a Jew.
