LIFE SKETCH OF

THE STORY OF A REMARKABLE CAREER.

Success of the Late Vice-President in Business and Politics-His Identification with the Interests of the State of New Jersey-His Experience as a Political Leader.

New York, Nov. 21.-Garret Augustus Hobart was born on June 3, 1844, at Long Branch, Monmouth county, N. J. His ancestors were English on his father's side and Dutch on his mother's. He himself was thoroughly rep-resentative of New Jersey, his boyhood, youth and manhood having been passed within the bounds of his state, and all his successes, business, pro-fessional and political, identified him only the closer with it. He was graduated from Rutgers college in 1863, when he was old nineteen years old, and almost immediately after his graduation determined to study law. After teaching school for awhile he went to Paterson with the intention of studying law in the office of Socrates Tuttle, one of the ablest lawyers in northern New Jersey. Mr. Hobart arrived in Paterson with a new suit of clothes and $1.50 in his pocket, but from the time that he began his studies in Mr. Tuttle's office his rise in material prosperity and professional reputation was constant.

In 1866 he was admitted to the bar, and three years later received his parchment as counsellor. After serving in a number of unimportant offices, such as clerk to grand juries, he was in May, 1871, chosen city counsel. The following year he was chosen counsel to the Board of Chosen Freeholders and at the expiration of his term declined a re-election. In 1872 he was elected to the assembly. He was reelected and without any special effort on his part chosen speaker of the house. He took the place untram-melled by promises or pledges and was consequently enabled to select his committees and direct the work of the house with no other end in view than the welfare of the state.

Chosen to State Senate.

In 1875 he declined a re-election. In 1877 he was chosen to represent Pascounty in the state senate. His success as senator was equal to that in the lower house. In 1879 he was re-elected. During 1881 and 1882 he was president of the senate and he closed his legislative career with the highest encondums on his ability and fairness, receiving the expression of approbation of legislators as well as the public. In 1881 he was the Republican caucus candidate for United States senator. The assembly was largely Democratic and the Republican members were left to indicate their choice without solicitation. Mr. Hobart received more votes than all the others together; the measure of this compliment will be better understood the light of the fact that among those voted for by the Republicans were George A. Halsey, the late Fred- with Mr. Hobart. He seems to be able eric A. Potts and others of equal prominence. The election resulted in the choice of John R. Mclinerson.

In his career as senator Mr. Hobart was made a member of the state Rapublican committee. to which it has owed its subsequent success. He was also receiver of the Montclair railroad and the Jersey City GARRET A. HOBART and Albany line. In 1880 the First National bank of Newark failed. Mr. Hobart was appointed receiver; in less than six months he had closed up its affairs, paying all the depositors in full, His reputation as an able financial manager having been thus firmly established, to him was offered several fiduciary places, and his advice was sought in many important business en> terprises. His Many Places of Trust. He had charge of the general management of the East Jersey Water company with its allied interests. He was the president of the Passale Water company, the Acquackanonk Water company, the Paterson Rallway com-pany's consolidated lines, the Morris County railroad and the People's Gas company. He was a director in sev-eral banks, including the First National bank of Paterson and the Paterson Savings Institution. He was also on the directory boards of the New York, Susquehanna and Western railroad, the Lehigh and Hudson River railroad, the Barbour Brothers' company, the Barbour Flax Spinning company, the Pioneer Silk company, the Edison Illuminating company, the American Cotton Oil company and about forty or fifty other corporations. In many of these he also held the place of legal adviser. Mr. Hobart was also selected as one of three arbitrators by thirty railroad ic association In 1869 Mr. Hobart married Miss Jennie Tuttle, the daughter of Socrates Tuttle, with whom he had studied law. She was a mere girl and he was but twenty-five years old. There were two children, Fannle and Garret A., Three or four years ago when Jr. Three or four years ago when Mr. Hobart was traveling with bis family in Italy, the daughter, then 22 year old, died of diphtheria. She was buried near Lake Como. It was a severe blow to Mr. Hobart and he never fully recovered from it. Mrs. Hobart, as a young girl, was remarkable for her beauty. She is gracious and acomplished, and has much of the keen intellectuality and sparkling wit for which her father was noted throughout New Jersey. Mr. Hobart's character accounts for the success that followed him in whatever channel he chose to direct his energies. He was a nran of unruffled temperament at all times, who made friends and knew how to keep them. He was quick to decide and almost in-variably decided for the best; and when he had made up his mind, he was untiring in carrying out what he had determined to do, Attorney General Griggs long ago paid a tribute to Mr. Hobart in the following words:

seems intuitively to know what to do no matter what the emergency may be, and had he hours and days to con-sider the subject he could not reach a better decision than he does on the jump, as it were. And another happy faculty of his is that when he one makes a friend he never makes the mistake of losing that friend. Once a friend, always a friend, is the case to read character as if it were a book. No man can deceive him. A Marvelous Pianist.

That Godowsky is not only a marvelous planist, but also a composer of promise is shown in the critique in presidents, representing the Joint Trafthe magazine "Music" on Godowsky's new pianoforte studies founded upon certain of the Chopin studies, several of which he is to play in his recital in the Parish House tomorrow evening. In the six pages of this critique by the editor, W. S. B. Matthews, occurs the following: "These pieces give a clue to the sources of the masterly inerpretations of Godowsky, the planist, for it is through the marvelous dominations of half-told suggestions in the master works of the great composers that his concert performances attain their original charm."

Yesterday We talked Mason & Hamlin Pianos and Organs to the public, through the columns of this newspaper, and every word we said about them was absolutely true. It has been, is now, and always will be our policy to advertise nothing but facts and any promise which may appear over our firm name will be fulfilled to the letter, of that you can rest assured.

Today We continue our Mason & Hamlin talk of yesterday, it being a good sub-ject and one we like to discuss. We are selling a great many instruments of this unequaled make, and why shouldn't we, they are the best in the market today.

For fifty years Mason & Hamlin Organs have been the standard of the world. Their pre-eminence has been unquestioned. The same qualities that have made their organs so famous are also found in the Mason and Hamlin Pianos, which the company have been making since 1882. Recent improvements, worthy of the examination of musicians and connoissieurs, render them absolutely unequaled.

NEW SCALE, STYLE AA.

Believing that there is always demand for the highest possible degree of excellence in a given manufacture, the Mason & Hamlin Company has held steadfast to its original principle, and has never swerved from its purpose of producing instruments of rare artistic merit. As a result, the Mason & Hamlin Company has received for its products, since its foundation to the present day, words of greatest commendation from the world's most illustrious musicians and critics of tone.

This new model has created fairly a sensation among artists and music lovers.

"Highly Esteemed Sirs:-What a magnificent organ for for which I have to thank you! It is a marvel, and really praiseworthy? Even players of moderate ability will be able to create much admiration in its use."

able to create much admiration in its use." This is an extract from a letter written by the great Liszt in reference to the organ which now bears his name, as it was first manufactured for and always used by him, and deservedly valued by him above all others. Many music lovers are not skilled musicians, and to these such an instrument as the Liszt Organ is an especial boon, since it responds so sympatheti-cally to true musical feeling, and by its perfection of tone sup-plements the player's skill. plements the player's skill.

Removes to Washington,

After his nomination and election to the vice-presidency on the ticket headed by Mr. McKinley, he went to Washington and took up his residence in the old Cameron mansion.adjoining the site historic old Seward house, on of the Lafavette scuare, where Blaine died, The h. "art residence during the last two years has been the scene of many delightful affairs. Socially the vicepresident and his wife divided the honors with the President and Mrs. Me-Kinley, Vice-President Hobart's genial temperament and charming personality made him very popular, not only in the senate, over which he presided, but with all who came in contact with him.

Mr. Hobart's business successes were hardly dess noteworthy than those he gained in the field of politics. Starting as a penniless young man, with nothing but an education, intelligence and plenty of grit and determination to help him along, he soon made for himself a competence which in twenty-five years, more or less, had grown to be a large fortune, and this fortune which Mr. Hobart possessed during the later years of his life was the product of hard work, well directed.

The first trust of importance which fell to him was the charge of the New Jersey Midland rallway as receiver, He so managed the affairs of that corporation as to place the road on a basis
