

Social Personal

Seldom has a Thanksgiving season approached with so little of social note in prospect. It was hoped that a dance would be arranged for Friday night, but as yet nothing definite has been announced. There will be a number of out-of-town guests returning with the college men and maidens and it is rather a pity that something in the way of entertainment cannot be planned. All energy in that direction seems to be held in abeyance for the Christmas-tide when the bachelors' ball and several handsome functions in honor of the Princeton Glee club will be important matters.

The doll show on Spruce street is a great success. Last night it was said that the pretty exhibition room could scarcely accommodate the throngs who desired to see the unique collection. The tea room was an attractive setting for tableaux vivants, with its oriental rugs and draperies, the palms and chrysantheums, with the daintily appointed tables in the background, where Mrs. T. H. Watkins poured tea. Among the ladies who assisted in serving were Mrs. W. W. Scranton, Mrs. R. Q. Powell, Mrs. C. S. Weston, Mrs. J. Benf, Dimmick, Miss Elizabeth Howell. A number of well known gentlemen, including Messrs. T. H. Watkins, W. W. Scranton and J. H. Torrey, lent their aid in making guests welcome.

As to the exhibition, it is not more interesting to children than to their elders. In fact the latter will probably find it an unlimited field for study and observation, and its value from an ethnological point of view is vast. The specimens from out of the way parts of the world, the racial characteristics that are evident in the queer little figures, the costumes and the attitudes all afford an exceptional degree of interest and amusement.

Today tea cream will be served and the doors will be opened at 10 o'clock for the day and evening. No one can afford to miss the exhibition, and every visitor helps the free kindergartens of the city.

The sale opened by the guilds of St. Margaret and St. Luke's at St. Luke's parish house yesterday was largely attended and with excellent financial results. The beautiful rooms of these guilds were charmingly decorated, and the pretty tables were laden with quantities of beautiful articles, which found ready sale to the many visitors.

Last evening the entertainers were attended to a considerable degree. About the rooms Mrs. Mary Throp Phelps, like the good fairy of the palace, was conveyed, giving a smiling word of encouragement to the young ladies who had worked so hard for the success of this annual feat.

Mrs. W. H. White, Miss Kraemer, Miss Chubb and others presided over the refreshment department. Miss Susan E. Dickinson acted as treasurer, Miss Jermyn, Mrs. S. B. Thompson, Miss Helen Stevens, Miss Rosa Sherer and others assisted at the various tables. Miss Lees was in charge of the book table, which makes interesting gifts. Among the attractions of the doll table were Swedish dolls in native costume, provided by Mrs. Knickerbocker.

The sale will continue today and this evening and many desirable articles remain to be secured.

The lot of the amateur theatrical promoter is not always a happy one. If some scheme could be devised whereby there could be enough star roles to go around, much of the difficulty might be obviated but sadly enough none of the dramatists seem to have thought out a play which contains only leading ladies and gentlemen—no thinking parts, no walking ladies, no second maids, no footmen, no stars of second magnitude.

Of course the professional has time to work up through various gradations until he arrives at the top, but the amateur must rise to fame through one fell swoop—if the decidedly mixed metaphor may be permitted—if he is to get there at all. He cannot afford to wait, hence he must be the hero if he cannot be the leading lady. Thus it is that the average amateur performance is ever produced it must be after vicissitudes varied in character and more picturesque in detail than the play itself.

The last lecture in the art course at St. Luke's hall will be held Monday night. It is by far the best of the series, and that is saying much. Professor Van Lauer's familiarity with American art's and his great knowledge of their style and subjects make it a most valuable lecture, which no one can afford to miss who cares for art and a comprehension of what Americans are doing. The professor's own operator will come from New York on Monday to arrange the details of the exhibition.

The Phelps-Yocum wedding reception was the event of the week and was a beautiful affair. The bride was most attractive in her lovely robes. The handsome house was thronged with a representative gathering and the details of the function were carried out with excellent taste.

One of the most delightful social affairs of the season was the reception tendered Miss Elizabeth Doersam by her large circle of friends last evening at the Parish House. One of the enjoyable features was the utter accomplishment depicted upon Miss Doersam's face as she was ushered into the beautifully decorated parlors filled with her friends. As she entered the door the orchestra, hidden behind a bow of palms, played a selection from Victor Herbert's "Serenade."

Miss Michie explained to Miss Doersam that the entertainment to which she had been invited was in reality a complimentary reception to herself, expressive of the love and esteem of the scores of girls to whom she has endeavored herself during her connection with the Y. W. C. A. work in this city. She was quite unprepared for a time by the surprise and meeting with her old friends. The orchestra consisted of Charles Doersam, Will Allen, Will Stanton. There were songs by Misses Black and Garraghan, Miss Clara Saunders, Miss Mammie Davis and Miss Perry. Refreshments were served and Miss Doersam was presented with a bouquet of chrysantheums.

Mrs. W. H. Jessup, Jr., gave a thimble tea Tuesday in honor of Mrs. Woodin, of Berwick, when among the guests were: Mrs. F. E. Platt, Mrs. Everett Warren, Mrs. A. H. Storrs, Mrs. H. W. Kingsbury, Mrs. W. M. Dickson, Mrs. F. J. Platt, Mrs. W. G. Parke, the Misses Gilmore.

Mrs. E. C. Dimmick has issued invitations to a reception next Friday afternoon to introduce Miss Dorothy Dimmick.

The Green Ridge wheelmen enjoyed a stag party at their club house last night. Peter H. Zurliff won the first prize, a box of cigars, and the booby prize, a live lobster, went to Joseph M. At. At the conclusion of the game luncheon was served by the club's steward.

Miss Mabel Schlager has gone to New York, where she will be bridesmaid for Miss Clara Toth at her wedding, which will take place about Dec. 7 at Hotel Marlboro. Miss Toth is to marry Mr. J. De Smet Maguire, a nephew of Archbishop Ryan, who will perform the marriage ceremony.

Miss Mildred Howe has been added to the force of pleasant and obliging young ladies at the Albright Memorial library.

The Young Ladies' society of the First Presbyterian church has secured Ruth McEnery Stuart in readings for January, 22. It is also probable that announcements will soon be made that another noted figure in literature—one of the most talked about writers of the day—will also be on the list of entertainers for that enterprising organization.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Dickson had their first reception on Tuesday since returning from their wedding journey.

The engagement of Miss Nettie Coleman to Dr. Otto Eriksson is announced.

A number of Scranton people attended the wedding of J. D. Stocker at Asheville, N. C., Wednesday evening.

Another club has been added to the list of those in which women are deeply interested in this city. The Scranton Ceramic club was formed on Tuesday afternoon last with Miss Ella MacNutt as president; Miss Grace Norton, vice president; Miss Anna Robinson, treasurer; Mrs. K. S. Cross, secretary. The membership consists of the following: Mrs. T. H. Dale, Mrs. Frederic Edwards, Mrs. F. D. Brewster, Mrs. Shoen-maker, Mrs. Moser, Mrs. Penman, Miss Elizabeth Sanderson, Miss Ruth Dale. The first annual exhibit will be held during the week of December 1, when the porcelain decorated by the members of the club will be shown.

The many friends of Mr. Mortimer B. Fuller will be glad to learn that he was so far recovered as to be able to leave town yesterday. He is now in New York, where tomorrow he will be joined by his mother. Mr. Fuller has been seriously ill with typhoid fever but it is now hoped that his health will be better than it has been for some years.

Dickson Kaye entertained a number of his young friends at his home on Sanderson avenue Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McDonough, of Phelps street, celebrated the seventh anniversary of their marriage at their home Wednesday night. A large number of their friends were present.

Movements of People

Mrs. Sidney Henwood was in New York this week.

Mr. C. P. Griffiths called for Santiago on Thursday.

Mrs. J. L. Crawford is recovering from a severe illness.

Messrs. James Blair, Jr., and J. H. Brooks are in New York.

Mrs. H. P. Reed, of Montrose, has been visiting Olive street friends.

Miss Vinie Rosen, of H. Media, was the guest of Mrs. C. C. Roe this week.

Mrs. R. M. O'Brien and Mrs. J. J. Barrett are visiting friends in Philadelphia.

Miss Cora Stewart, of Philadelphia, was the guest of Mrs. William Connell this week.

Mr. Myer Davidson, the shoe man, leaves tonight for New York, Boston and the East.

Mrs. W. H. Pierce, of Wilkes-Barre, was the guest of Scranton friends on Thursday.

Miss Mary Metz, of Sedalia, Mo., is spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. George G. Mahy.

Miss Joseph Dimmick returned from Washington this week to remain until after Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Selden Blair and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Shafer will go to New York next week to attend a wedding.

Rev. Frank Cannan, of Eckley, returned home yesterday after a visit with friends in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Salmon, of Honesdale, have been the guests of Scranton friends for the past few days.

Mrs. Robert M. Scranton has been called to Hartford, Conn., by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Henry T. Sperry.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Olmsted and Mr. James M. Larrabee, of Wilkes-Barre, are spending Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Warren.

F. E. Greene, H. F. Hollier, R. Larrabee, William McMillan, H. A. Beason, F. R. White and wife, Miss Jennings, Margaret McCann, Clarence Steele and wife were registered at the St. Dennis in New York this week.

Dr. George W. Phillips, recently principal of the High school, has accepted the position of general manager of the Pennsylvania Casualty company, New York City. This company has an immense amount of capital back of it and the position tendered Dr. Phillips is considered an enviable one.

Dr. Phillips, of Baltimore, who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. C. G. Spicker, returned to his home today. Dr. Schaeffer is a most genial man of seventy winters, but his stay in Scranton has made many friends. He was greatly interested in the various picturesque scenes in and about Scranton, and has taken numerous snap shots with his camera.

W. H. Hull, of Scranton, Pa., arrived in the city last Friday. He left Monday for Capt. and other points along the line on a tour of inspection.

E. S. Peck, of Scranton, Pa., brother of P. L. Peck, president of the Alamosordo lumber company, was an Alamosordo visitor in the latter part of last week. He left Monday for Capt. and the coal fields to inspect the development work being done there.—Alamosordo News.

HER POINT OF VIEW

Electricity is the latest thing. Of course it is. Everybody knows that. But as a beautifier it has grown to be the fad of the hour. If you are a man and come home some day to find your mother rejuvenated and looking anywhere from ten to twenty-five years younger, you may be a little suspicious. You may wonder how she has been so suddenly discovered that your wife is prettier than she was when you married her; that the gray hairs she had last week are invisible today, and that you must have dreamed she was acquiring a few wrinkles in beauty treatments from an expert in beauty making. If she becomes suddenly very grasping and prefers money to theatre tickets or new curtains, you may be equally sure she is going in for the new fad.

The doctors have discovered that wrinkles and other stupid accompaniments of age and worry result from a lack of electricity in the flesh and skin. So if you are a patron of the new treatment you sit down by the dressing table and hear a persistent buzzing which calls up unpleasant recollections of dentistry. You are told to clasp a convenient little cylinder attached to the buzzer by a fierce green string, which a sponge similarly attached, and wet with a tonic is rapidly passed over your head close to the roots of the hair.

It is a little like being electrocuted, but not quite, and it raises your hair literally, together with any dandruff accruing thereto, and it gives you queer little thrills, while if you've had a headache that disorder will have fled. But it is good for the scalp, very, and it stimulates the growth of the hair, arrests grayness and seems to destroy any disease germs. One is always intensely sleepy after a treatment, which is a good thing in Scranton, where the days and nights aren't long enough to permit sufficient slumber.

The electrical application is equally good for the face, as it gives new life to the sluggish pores and strengthens the flabby muscles. Careful massage and a plentiful supply of skin food after an electrical treatment will work wonders in even the most haggard countenance.

You can't convince me that the world isn't growing better. Even fashion is setting the pace for more conscientious living. As an illustration, it is no longer an evidence of special good taste and breeding to regard everything and everybody with a cool stare of indifference. It is fashionable to give some expression to emotions, to make no effort to studiously conceal the pleasure which is felt at the sight of the beautiful or interesting. In fact, we seem to be coming to an age of enthusiasm when to repress sentiments of delight at something delightful; to be cold and sharp in criticisms and unsympathetic is to openly bear the mark of affectation or lack of intelligence.

The woman who will not laugh heartily or weep, who will not frown or smile much, will go down to her grave with a brow which has never needed a massage or electricity for effacing its lines. There never will be any lines. But what a cold, hard life, when feelings of grief or gladness must not be entertained lest they mar the mask. It is so much better to laugh when there is something pleasant, to cry as heartily over somebody else's woes; to smile at the world and to go through life with a beautiful enthusiasm, a capacity for enjoying goodness, beauty, truth and a frank acknowledgment of that pleasure.

The person who sees life forever sitting in the sunshine and crowned with a halo may not have the superfluous ear, the over-cultivated eye, the hypercritical taste, which here, sees and recognizes flaws in everything, which has lost the joy of enthusiasm; but there is a richer strain in the mere fact of living, a daily renewed zest that will recompense all loss, for there is a law of compensation which works in the ratio of giving and receiving. What we send forth in the way of thoughts, words, deeds, returns to us in kind.

In meditating on the truth of this inflexible law we cannot but be struck with an awed sense of the responsibility we assume presuming to sit in judgment on the other mortals in our vicinity, and to estimate the gradations in blackness of their own particular sins or errors. How do we know that in the eyes of One who ever weighs these matters from the serene heights of infallible justice, the little "white" lie we told yesterday may not be as dark a blot on the page of all records as the hateful sin of another, at the same time which we should have honored? How do we know that the big grudge we have held for years against one who has wronged us may not leave as deep a scar on the fair face of the soul as did some act of another's which in our eyes was shameful? What a profound comfort it is that we are not expected, with our limited, one-sided point of view, to make an irrevocable decision as to the grade of other people's failings in the scale of immortality. Saucy Bess.

MUSICAL GOSSIP.

The second concert of the course presented by the Conservatory will be given by Mr. Ernest Gamble, a basso of European fame, and Miss Mauda Ribli, pianist. The concert, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 5, is expected that the great success of the Godowsky concert will be repeated at this time, for these artists come to us with the highest recommendations. Miss Katharine Timmerman, of the Conservatory, is a warm friend and admirer of Gamble, and she is undoubtedly one of the finest soloists now upon the concert platform. He was a great favorite in London when I was there, and during the succeeding years he has had an increasingly brilliant career. He has a voice of great volume and compass, which is exceedingly flexible and highly cultivated. His having been chosen soloist at Trinity church, New York, is one of the most indications of his merits as a thorough musician.

Mr. Made Ribli, who comes with M. Gamble, is an exponent of the famous Leschetitzky of Vienna, and teacher of Paderewski, with whom she studied three years after taking all the honors at the Royal Academy, London. The playing of this beautiful young artist is highly spoken of by both Patti and Mauda, with each of whom she has toured. Her engagement for Scranton with the famous basso ensures a concert of the highest merit and also of pleasing variety.

The organ and choral concert which is to be given in Elm Park church on the evening of Tuesday, Dec. 5, under the direction of Professor J. Alfred Pennington, will be one of the finest musical events ever given in the church. In the choral numbers the church quartette will be assisted by a number of picked voices, accompanied by organ and piano. The program will also assist in the playing of a sonata for piano and violin. No admission fee will be charged, but all will be expected to contribute a silver offering at the door.

The choir of the Eben Avenue Baptist church, under the leadership of Prof. Haydn Evans, will give an Old Folks' concert at the church on Thanksgiving evening. A very choice musical programme will be rendered, and the choir will sing many of the familiar songs of olden time. Such an evening of melody and song is eminently appropriate to Thanksgiving time, and this famous choir promises a most enjoyable evening's entertainment. Miss Imogene Chandler, one of the most popular soloists of Philadelphia, will participate in the exercises and under several choirs reading. The pastor has frequently heard Miss Chandler recite before great throngs of people in Philadelphia, and he gives her an unqualified endorsement.

The following musical selections will be rendered tomorrow evening at Elm Park church in connection with the praise service, which has "Thanksgiving" for its theme. The service will be largely musical, the pastor being heard in short address only: Organ Prelude—Allegro in G.....Soprano Quartette—"Give Unto the Lord," Bridge Contralto solo—"Kedjos in the Lord."

Haydn Trio—"On Thee Each Living Soul Awaits".....Haydn Organ—Offertory in D.....Wely Quartette—"All Thy Works Praise Thee".....Pattison Soprano solo—"With Verdure Clad."

Haydn Duet for tenor and bass—"It is of the Lord's Great Mercy".....Molique Organ—Postlude in D.....Gullmunt J. Alfred Pennington, organist and music director.

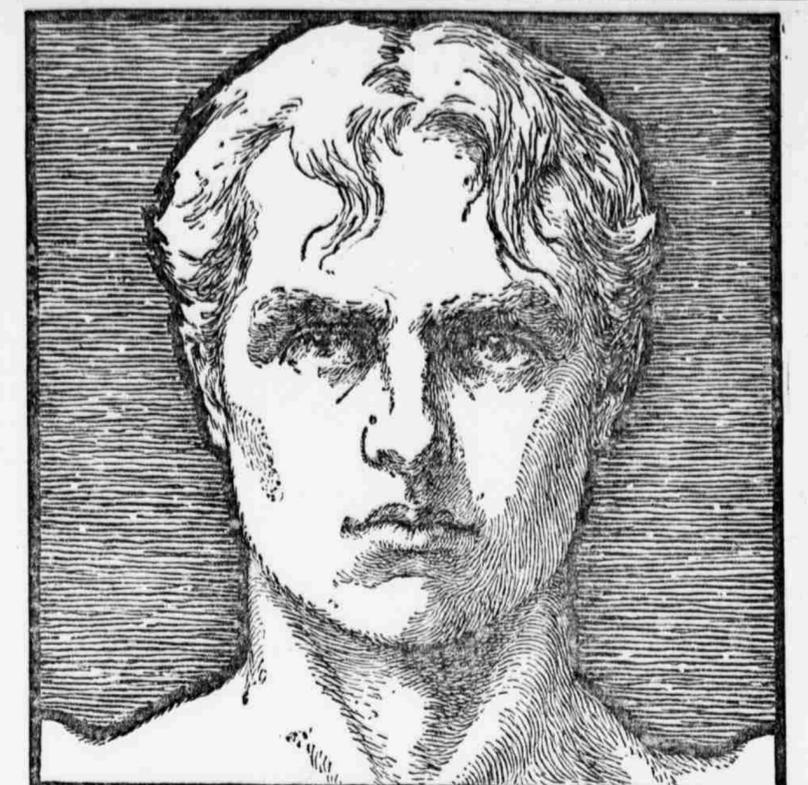

The Beynon testimonial promises to be a great success. The boxes and loges have been disposed of to Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Fuller, Hon. William Connell and Mrs. Connell, Colonel H. M. Boles and Mrs. Boles, Mrs. Thomas Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Bourke, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Blackinton, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Shafer, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Schadt, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Courson, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Robathan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Courrier Morris. The programme will be in all probability the finest ever presented to a Scranton audience. All efforts are being set forth to make it a fitting tribute to the unquestionable talent of Mr. Beynon, who some day will be sought for others than by his friends at home. There are very few things more noble than the recognition of talent and of past services. Voices of far less promise than Mr. Beynon's have been sent abroad and educated at the expense of their home. We predict the brightest future for our Mr. Beynon and a packed house at the Lyceum Dec. 7, Thursday evening.

Tom Beynon will be heard at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow. He will sing DePue's "Lead Kindly Light," at the morning service.

The music at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow will be as follows: "Te Deum"—(Festival) ch. Dudley Buck.....Choir Offertory—"Lead Kindly Light."

Tom Beynon Anthem—"The Lord is My Shepherd".....Marston Trio—"Evening Prayer".....Liddle Soprano, alto, tenor.

The Studio club, the ladies' chorus under the direction of Miss Freeman, held its first rehearsal of the season last week at the Southworth studio. They will meet every Saturday afternoon hereafter, from 4 until 6. In connection with the club there will be given once a month "Composers' Afternoons" when the programme will consist of violin, piano and vocal numbers by one composer, together with a short sketch of his life.

ENDURING STRENGTH PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND Restores Wasted Nerves: Sustains Vitality: Keeps the Body Free of Morbid Poisonous Matter: Helps the System to Renew Strength.

Max F. Abbe, 25 Cortland St., New York City, writes:

"About two years ago I noticed that nervous symptoms had commenced to trouble me. I decided to try Paine's Celery Compound, and after using several bottles I noticed that the greater part of my nervousness had disappeared, my thoughts had become clearer, I did not pass any more sleepless nights, and I felt as young as I did ten years ago, without having to stop my smoking."

Overwork, worry, or business cares wear upon the nerves, the vitality of the system is impaired; there is suffering from indigestion, torpid liver or weak kidneys.

Paine's Celery Compound sustains vitality, keeps the body healthy and free from nervous exhaustion and Pain.

teacher, Miss Freeman, considers her unusually promising.

Mr. John T. Watkins will officiate as musical adjudicator at Wilkes-Barre Thanksgiving day, the occasion being the annual estabod of the Dr. D. J. J. Mason Glee society.

Miss Edith Davis, a member of Miss Julia Clapp Allen's advanced class in violin, was the soloist at the commencement exercises of the Carbonade hospital a few days ago.

Mr. Gipple, of the First Presbyterian church choir, will exchange places tomorrow with Mr. Beynon, of the Second church.

HIGH SCHOOL GOSSIP.

The question of a class pin for the graduating class of 1900 is exciting much interest. Several meetings have been held and yet no permanent pin has been decided on. Many of the boys who are opposed to the triangular shape pin on the ground that it resembles that of a secret organization in too many respects, are opposed by a certain few who are in favor of it.

The "scrub" will play the eleven of the Duvernoy High school again today. This game will undoubtedly be as successfully played as the one a few weeks ago. The line up is especially strong and the players in excellent condition for the fray. The score at the last game was 10 to 9 in favor of the "scrub."

Yesterday the unwelcome mistakes telling the parents that the pupils have made below seventy left the office. Many of the pupils who received these letters will return Monday resolved in mind to commence the new month in fine style and continue to do good work. A number of letters sent from the Latin classes is considerably lower than that of last month.

One of the most enthusiastic demonstrations which has been caused by the victory over an opponent took place when the victorious old gold and blue banner was carried to the platform on Thursday morning. Mr. Santee, of the freshman class, was the standard bearer.

The game Wednesday between High School and St. Thomas college proved to be the best played at Athletic park this season. The surprise of many of the persons was extremely great when it was learned that the High school won the game. Nearly every one thought it was well nigh impossible for so light a team as the High school has, compared to that of St. Thomas, to for one moment hope for victory. But they did and so fine was the line bucking and end runs that they placed the ball near the goal of their opponents. Here Tropp made a successful drop kick. The game was a fine specimen of strength and weight opposed to skill and it proved that the latter generally come off as victors.

Tropp again distinguished himself by his fine playing on Wednesday. He was almost completely discouraged with the way he was treated for his bad playing on Saturday last. It is said that he was even on the point of resigning his position as quarter back. But Wednesday he so completely wiped out the disgrace, if there was any, by the way in which he tackled and placed kicks that he has again risen in the estimation of every player on the team and every pupil in the school.

The school paper "Impressions," will be on sale Monday at the class office. This edition will far exceed the one of last month, as the editor has endeavored and succeeded in collecting an abundance of material. But what will be the use of the editor in trying to make the paper a complete success if it is not read by the students? A new interest in the pupils toward the paper should be awakened and by doing so the paper can be made one of the best in this state.

The regular meeting of the Literary society was held yesterday, at which a goodly number of the pupils attended. The meeting was called to order by the president, and after the reading of the minutes by the secretary, the report of the committee which was to see Professor Grant as to the advisability of having Thanksgiving exercises was heard. The committee reported that they had not seen Professor Grant yet. There being no business to come before the society, it was decided to have a period of parliamentary practice. Mr. Kaun, of the freshman class, gave an exceptionally fine talk on "A Typical German Dinner." It was followed by a few other persons, who gave very short talks on different subjects. The meeting adjourned at about twenty minutes of two.

Prof. Hughes is especially interested in the doings of the Literary society. He attends every meeting and aids the pupils in every way he can. He shows deep interest in the society and has the respect of every member.

Funston a "Big Fool."

A Manila correspondent of Collier's Weekly tells this characteristic incident of Brigadier General Frederick Funston, the Kansas whirlwind: Funston has a right to be proud of his promotion in that there is nothing political about it. General Otis is exceedingly fond of him, and recommended him purely out of recognition for his spirit and valor. On the same day that the little colonel, who always wanted to swim in a stream when he saw a Filipino on the other side of it, was notified that he was to be a brigadier, he was wounded in the hand. When he went to report to General Otis for duty in his new rank his arm was in a sling.

"Well, I was going to assign you immediately," he said, "but now I think I'll have a medical board report on that wound of yours first."

With the due formality which the general respects in all things, a board was called, and the board gravely notified Major General Otis that if Brigadier General Funston were to expose himself to the hardship of active campaigning before his wound healed there was danger of blood poisoning. "Confound it, but I was a big fool to wear that sling," Funston said. "I might have known that it would get me into trouble."
