Mrs. Henry Oberts met with a painful accident while at the Baptist bazaar Tuesday evening. At the rear of the Morgan store building, where the bazaar is being held, a few steps lead from the door to the ground. Oberts, not knowing that some of the steps were missing, tried to descend in the dark and pitched headlong to the ground. Her cry of aid brought several persons to her aid. She was taken to her home on South Main street and a physician summoned. Her injuries consisted of a compound fracture of her left arm at the wrist, so that the bones protruded. She was also badly bruised by the fall.

The Baptist bazaar at the Morgan store building is proving a decided success. Tuesday evening the building was thronged. The programme gave the people most abundant enjoyment. Mr. Hartley, the noted ventriloquist, kept the audience in a roar of laughter by his remarkable performances. The other numbers received the hearty applause they deserved. Today the ladies of the bazaar will furnish a first class Thanksgiving turkey dinner for 25 cents. Supper will be served for 15 cents. The programme for the evening | beadache.

THEATRICAL.

"What Happened to Jones."

"What Happened to Jones," one of the laughable farces that are rapidly making the fame and fortune of George H. Broadhurst, was seen at the Lyceum last night, by a greatly pleased

The farce has been seen here before and is familiar to theater-goers. The fun is evolved from the old idea of a confusion of identities, but the idea is worked out in a new way.

An excellent company was seen in the farce last night. It included John Allerson as Jones, H. G. Hackey, M. W. Montgomery, Charles Charters, Louis Reinhart, Lillian Young, Olive McConneil, Maude Allison and Marie Haynes,

At the Academy.

Last night the Spooners company pleased a large audience with "Fanch-on the Cricket." This afternoon they will present "Trilby" and tonight "The Old Lime Kiln."

"Kerry Gow" and "Shaun Rhue."

There has never been a period in the history of the theater in America, where so great and so good a variety of legitimate dramas and comedies have been put before the people of the United States, as during the past ten years. During that time also the mechanical resources of the theater havbeen more than doubled in variety and efficacy. Antedating the period referred to, competing with all that was popular in 1886-and before that for that matter-and staying in the race up to the present time without losing their hold on popular public favor, the two Irish plays, "Kerry Gow" "Shaun Rhue," are still in the fore front as profitable theatrical attrac-

To do this in the face of the remarkable rivalry alluded to, constitutes an argument in favor of Joseph Murphy's ability as an actor that is simply unanswerable. A century of theories, however gilbly presented, would not obliterate such a decade of facts. This afternoon and evening "Kerry Gow" will be presented, and tonight "Shaun Rhue."

The Sporty Widows.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Gaiety will be presented what may be truly characterized as an original burlesque in the "Sporty Widows," combination of high art, magic and popular music, first class specialties, bright and witty sayings and eccentric novelties. Unlike most burlesques the "Sporty Widows" has a plot. There is a chorus of twenty laughing-eyed maids and eight big first class specialty acts, among which are Gib-ons and Barrett, Tom and Gertle Grimes, Ruth Everett, Cushman and Gilbert, Helen Russell and this season's novelty, Top-Toy-Wing and Ah Eim, the two wonderful Chinese actors

Return of Thomas E. Shea. Thomas E. Shea in his stirring naval drama, "Man-O-Wars Man," will open at the Academy of Music Monday night for a week's engagement. This play, although written three years ago, anticipated with considerable accuracy the late trouble between the United States and Spain and the destruction of the Spanish navy by the American navy, also the questions which are now occupying the central figure in politics, particularly the ownership and control of the Nicaragua canal by the United States and the retention of the Philippine Islands. The mainstay of the "Man-O-Wars Man" is Mr. Shea, who, as Captain Conway, of the U. S. S. New Orleans at once wins the favor of the audience by his bold and dashing, yet natural, impersonation of the hero.

"The Village Postmaster."

There is a great deal that is attractive about "The Village Postmaster," the New England play which will come to the Lyceum Monday evening next. It is a picturesque play of New England and the time of action is supposed to be in 1852, the time Pierce was president. The scene is laid in little new Hampshire town. The authors have successfully depicted the New England character as it appeared at that time. There is a good deal in the plot above the common play and much delightful comedy. It is mingled and one's interest is held from the rise of the curtain to the end of the

THE BREAD WE EAT.

It Has Not Been Improved by New Milling Processes. From the Lancet.

It is commonly supposed that wholewill be made in the Presbyterian dinary white bread because it contains a higher proportion of nitrogenous and mineral substance. But, as we have frequently pointed out, the nitrogenous value of a given food is not necessar-By indicated by an empirical chemical analysis. Not all nitrogenous substances are feeding stuffs, and further. ood partaken of is the quantity of food assimilated. In other words, eating is not necessarily feeding. There are many substances containing a very high proportion of nitrogen which are valueless as food stuffs, and on the contrary there are many edible materials which contain a comparatively small proportion of nitrogenous substances which, however, are completely available for nourishing the organenough for chemical analysis to record merely the proportion of nitrogenous substances: the nature of these substances must be declared, without which the food value of a given substance cannot be estimated.

It was formerly assumed that wholemeal bread contained more nitrogen than white bread, but in the light of recent analyses this is not true. Whether or not, however, wholemeal bread is superior as regards its nitrogenous contents it is certainly inferior as regards its digestibility. This may be attributed in a large measure to the fact that wholemeal bread contains comparatively large, indigestible and irritating particles of husk. There seems, however, no reason for doubting that wholemeal bread would be much more digestible if the branny particles were finely comminuted. In several patent breads the germ of the wheat is retained, which adds considerably to the nitrogenous value of the bread. But the germ of wheat tends to excite fermentative changes in the "sponge" and produce an unpalatable loaf. Several processes, however, have been devised which avert the possibility of this undesirable effect. We do not believe that with the improvements in machinery generally the dietetic value of bread has pari passu increased. We still hold that a more nourishing article, as it is certainly more palatable, is the old-fashioned farmhouse loaf, which presents a gold wheaten color rather than the blanched appearance which seems to be looked upon as a guarantee of quality in the modern white loaf. Our own laboratory experience, at any rate, shows that probably on account of the increased employment of roller-milling processes the important mineral constituents of white bread have very materially diminished. When it is considered that these constituents play not unimportant part in supplying the bone-forming factors of the organism this fact assumes a serious importance and may even throw light upon the prevalence of dental decay. On the other hand, wholemeal bread and germ bread contain an enhanced proportion of mineral salts such as the phosphates of time and potash, which are necessary in the building up of the entire human frame,
