PERSONAL

Mrs. William Baumann, of Honesdale, is the guest of Scranton friends.

J. H. Brooks and Willard Matthews attended the West Point-Annapolis football game on Saturday.

Mrs. A. J. Bloom, of Washington avenue, is entertaining as her guest, Mrs. R. G. Earl, of Atlantic City.

James A. Mellon, chief draughtsman for the Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western company, was in New York yesterday.

Layton M. Schoch, who has been playing on the football team of the Duquesne Athletic club of Pittsburgh, returned to the city yesterday.

James Wagonhurst, of Mansfield, O., who has been visiting his parents for several weeks, at their home on Mulberry street, returned to Mansfield yesterday.

Mrs. Gilbert D. Murray gave a delightful tea on Saturday at her home on Wyoming avenue. She was assisted in receiving by her hostess, Mrs. Albert J. C. Twitchell and Mrs. Albert Jessup. About the rooms were: Mrs. T. F. Penman, Mrs. James P. Dickson, Miss Elizabeth Howell and Mrs. A. H. Storrs. At the table in the dining room, which was decorated with chrysanthemums, were Mrs. B. M. Winton and Mrs. R. J. Matthews. Those who assisted were: Mrs. Helen Matthews, Miss White, of Woodstock, Canada, and Miss Chauncey Reynolds. Mrs. C. S. Weston and Miss Flora Matthews served frappe.

SPIRITUALISTS ARRESTED.

Edward Davis and David Roberts Sent to Jail for Thirty Days.

For several years Mrs. Hewitt, of Court street, has been a devout believer in spiritualism and her home has become the rendezvous of mediums who, it is said, have swindled her out of about $1,500. She was always desirous to commune with the spirits of departed friends and relatives and the quacks who conducted the seances made $70 out of each one.

Mrs. Hewitt's neighbors, however, complained about the goings-on and the police have made several ineffectual attempts to capture the spiritualists. The latter, however, invariably dodged the police officers until Saturday night, when Lieutenant Spellman and Patrolman Saltry descended on the house and captured Edward Davis and David Roberts, of the West Side. Davis was acting as the spirit of a dear, departed friend, while Roberts was impersonating the Holy Ghost.

The prisoners were taken before Alderman Myers, who fined them $25 apiece and gave them thirty days in the county jail on the charge of disorderly conduct and being inmates of a disorderly house. Mrs. Hewitt's neighbors were the complainants.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

New York Brokerage Firm Prosecuting a Local Agent.

William R. Teeter, of 420 Elm street, Dunmore, was served with a summons on Saturday evening to appear before Magistrate Poole, of the central district court, New York city, tomorrow, to answer a charge of embezzlement preferred by J. A. Russell & Co., stock brokers, also of the metropolis.

Teeter has been in charge of a local office lately established in this city by the firm. The latter allege that two or three months ago a check for $200 was given Teeter by J. B. Bryden, of this city, and that this sum was never credited to him on the books of the company. Mr. Bryden communicated with the New York office regarding his money and in this manner the firm say they first became cognizant of the transaction.

It is further stated by Russell & Co. that Teeter was called to New York to explain matters and that after conversing for a few minutes in the office he asked to be excused for a moment and his return never appeared. They say they are determined to push the case to the end.

JOHN I. BLAIR DEAD.

Story of the Wonderful Career of One of the Most Marvelous Men of His Time.

John I. Blair died at Blairstown, N. J., Saturday morning at 5 o'clock. So often has a sketch of this remarkable man been printed during late years that every newspaper reader is more or less familiar with his marvelous career.

He lived nearly ninety-eight years; he began life a poor boy and died worth $200,000,000; during his life time he owned at one time or another 2,500,000 acres of land, he founded eighty towns, built or helped to build about twenty railroads and contributed the bulk of the money that went to the erection of eighty different churches, besides endowing a college, making liberal contributions to other institutions of learning and giving to his church, the Presbyterian, as a whole, not less than $500,000.

Deceased was a brother of the late James Blair, of this city.

John Insee Blair acquired his wealth by his own efforts and aided many others to build fortunes on the same foundation. The founder of the family in this country was John Blair, who settled in New Jersey in 1729. This John Blair was a cousin of the great-grandfather of John Insee Blair.

John Insee Blair was born Aug. 22, 1821. In the winter months he went to nearby country schools and in the summer time he worked on the farm. He began to accumulate money when a boy. He was fond of telling in after years how he earned his first money catching muskrats in Beaver Creek and selling their skins. At the age of ten he went to work as a clerk in a country store kept by a cousin. At fourteen he was considered an excellent storekeeper and at seventeen he started in business for himself at Blairstown, his cousin furnishing half his capital. The whole capital of his business was $500 at the start.

He married a daughter of Captain John Lock, a soldier in the Revolutionary war, who was killed in the War of 1812. Mrs. Blair lived until 1888, when she died at the age of eighty-four.

In 1846 Mr. Blair joined George W. and Joseph Scranton in developing their iron business at what was then Slocum, Pa. Among the other men who later became associated with him in business were Moses Taylor, William E. Dodge, Gardner Colby, Israel D. Condit, Christopher Robert, Marshall O. Roberts, Robert C. Winthrop, Samuel Sloan, S. B. Chittenden, Oliver P. Morton, C. N. Bliss, C. H. McCormick, Charles Scribner, Oakes Ames, Oliver Ames, John A. Gray, Joseph Nickerson, F. T. Glidden, S. L. Thorndyke and J. M. S. Williams.

Mr. Blair took up the building of railroads to furnish a means of getting Scranton's products to the chief markets of the country. He and his associates first bought a railroad which ran from Oswego to Ithaca, which in 1849 they extended and rebuilt. In 1851 they built the Legett's Gap road, from Scranton to Great Bend, and in 1852 the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad was organized. Mr. Blair always retained his interest in that road, and was one of its largest stockholders.

He was in politics originally a member of the old Whig party, but became a Republican when that party was born, and was delegate from New Jersey to many Republican national conventions. Only once was he a candidate for elective office. In 1868 he ran for governor against Theodore Randolph, spending $50,000 in his campaign. In spite of his personal popularity he was beaten.

His gifts to churches and institutions of learning were large. He gave more than $120,000 to Princeton university, and $50,000 to Lafayette college. The Blair Presbyterian academy at Blairstown cost at least $100,000 and was given by Mr. Blair to the Presbytery of Newton. His fortune is estimated at from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000. A daughter of Mr. Blair's was the wife of the late Charles Scribner, whose two sons, Charles Scribner and Arthur H. Scribner, constitute the firm of Charles Scribner's Sons, the publishers.

The funeral will take place Tuesday at Blairstown.

REMAINS WERE IDENTIFIED.

The body of the man killed on the Delaware and Hudson tracks Friday night was identified Saturday as that of Martin McKenna, of Dunmore. The man was 37 years of age and together with his brother, worked in the Calico mine.

A brother, William McKenna, and a sister, Mrs. Maloney, of Sport Hill, survive him.

A general meeting was held yesterday afternoon, Division No. 26, A. O. U. of which he was secretary, and arrangements were made for his funeral.

FUNERAL OF THE CRAIG FAMILY

IMPRESSIVE SCENE AT NEW HAVEN SATURDAY.

Grand Avenue Congregational Church Where the Services Over the Remains Were Conducted, Was Crowded to the Doors—Interment Was Made in the Fair Haven Cemetery, Where the Four Bodies Were Laid Side by Side—Gloom Cast Over the City of New Haven.

The New Haven, Conn., Union yesterday contained the following with reference to the funeral of the Craig family, which was held at that place Saturday afternoon:

One of the saddest funerals which ever was held in this city, was that of yesterday afternoon, when the last rites of earth were paid to the Craig family, at the Grand Avenue Congregational church. It is doubtful if ever before in a single grave in this city were so many bodies laid to rest.

The services were for the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Craig and their daughters, Esther Sanford and Jessie Hager Craig, who were killed in the railroad accident at Paterson, N. J., Wednesday evening. They had resided in Scranton, Pa., several months, removing there with their family, which previously been their home. At the time of the accident they were on their way to Brooklyn, N. Y., to spend Thanksgiving with friends.

At about 2:15 o'clock the remains of the deceased were removed from the undertaking rooms of Lewis & Maycock to the funeral home of the Congregational church, in four hearses, drawn up abreast, two and two. The hearses were preceded by carriages containing the bearers.

HUNDREDS AT THE CHURCH.

In front of the church, as the procession arrived, were hundreds of people. The caskets were borne up the main aisle and placed directly in front of the pulpit platform and at right angles thereto. The caskets of Mr. and Mrs. Craig were first brought in and later the bearers, selected from the former associates of the little girls, carried the caskets of the latter to the platform. The casket of the oldest daughter was placed between the caskets of her parents and that of the younger daughter was placed on the right of the mother's.

As the removal took place, there was hardly a dry eye in the church. Some of the intimate friends of the departed were weeping bitterly. There were fully 1,500 people in the church, while several hundred more waited on the grounds and in the cemetery at the rear of the church grounds. As the caskets were tenderly borne up the aisle, a solemn dirge was played on the organ by Harry Jepson.

Upon the pulpit platform, just back of the caskets, were arranged palms and chrysanthemums, and many palms stood at either side of the altar. Each of the four caskets was completely covered with roses, pinks and other flowers.

The service was begun by the reading of Scripture, beginning with the verse, "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God, believe also in me," by Rev. D. J. Clark, of the East Haven Congregational church. Mr. Clark read a chapter from Revelations, concluding with the verse, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

Rev. J. Lee Mitchell, D. D., the pastor of the church, then made appropriate remarks, which were as follows:

REV. MR. MITCHELL'S REMARKS.

"He who imagines that he stands now in the presence of death, and that by death finally, the end of living, mistakes vastly the situation. We stand in the presence of the resurrection and the life beyond the grave. We are too much for us to lay hold of. We are dim, primeval, mere barbarians of the time to be; we have somewhere lost the link which binds us to the lives we lead here, and our minds cannot cross from one shore to the other without some rock to cling to in mid-stream."

"My fellow-men, we must believe in Jesus Christ, the rock in mid-stream, and not try to believe so many other things."

"The very God! Think Alibi dost thou come a human voice saying, 'O, heart I made a heart, beyond that I escape, hands fashioned, see it in myself! Thou hast no power, nor mayest conceive of mine. But love I gave thee, with myself to love, and offer myself to thee who have 1 for thee. Believe in God first. It is as the order of conviction for Jesus himself. He could not doubt the life beyond that I escape. He walked with God, throbbled with God, this life had to Him no meaning but to do the will of God. If God be all else is naught; if man inhabit by God looking on, lifting up one of our lives into 'eternal unvanishing, 'tis natural fit. God, as natural as any strong deed is any strong man."

"But how may I believe in God? Why, trust in God is planted in you, it grows wild in every human heart and needs only the nurture of a pure life and a holy pursuit to become self-conscious, a conviction. Men doubt God as they doubt the value of anything else for which they have paid little. If it cost little to believe in God, we deny ourselves nothing for God's sake, and so He is nothing. He doesn't cost us enough to become a very potent conviction, and we walk with God. He was all things to Him and that He life taught Him to expect the resurrection. Our lives must similarly teach us to expect the resurrection and he who has nothing fit to rise of his own must accept of the fitness of our faith Christ, and he who has nothing fit of his own to raise of a faith in Christ's fitness, must forever doubt that he will rise."

TRIED TO KILL HIS WIFE.

Stephen Mabey, of Green Ridge, Attempts Murder and Then Gives Himself Up.

Stephen Mabey, who lives at the corner of Green Ridge street and Dickson avenue, Saturday afternoon attempted to shoot his wife. It seems that the couple were making preparations to move to the South Side, and in the midst of them Mabey suddenly drew a revolver and shot his wife. She sprang through a window out onto an adjoining roof and there yelled, "Murder!"

Mabey nonchalantly went down stairs, summoned Dr. Neild to attend to his wife, and then walked to the Central police station and gave himself up.

The woman was not seriously injured, the bullet of the 22-caliber revolver simply passing through the fleshy part of her left leg, just above the knee.

Mabey and his wife were married fifteen years ago in Wilkes-Barre, and were never separated. Mabey's first wife kept a hotel at the corner of Main avenue and Lafayette street, and afterwards served as bartender in different hotels, the last position of the sort being at the Conway hotel, opposite the Erie and Wyoming station. Last week he assisted his brother, George Mabey, proprietor of the Bristol house, Providence.

The couple were far from a happy one, Mabey being jealous of his wife, it is alleged, and having frequently beaten her. Mrs. Mabey stated that she had threatened her, and that not long ago they separated, but rejoined. They have four children, a boy of 14 being the oldest. After the shooting George Mabey came to the house and removed the injured woman to the home of her father, it is believed, and there she lay until she became insane, and they will try to place him in an asylum.

The general opinion at police headquarters is that Mabey is a little out of his mind. All Saturday night he prayed loud and long in a manner far from sane, and his general delirium denotes at least that he is slightly demented.

about faith or lack of faith in other things. It is not impossible soul feasts that God wants of us before He can work, but just what He himself. It was so with Martha, the sister of that Lazarus. She very likely had some wild notion that she might yet get Lazarus back. As Jesus hovered straight to the tomb it may have panted into something like faith in a resurrection, but when the imperial voice commanded so that she should see, she lost it if she ever had it. Don't do it, Lord! Don't take any chances, failure would be awful. Don't try it. No faith there except faith that God is God and this great wild-hearted woman suddenly wants to take the Christ that made the world up in her arms and shield Him from faith in moving Christ to Him in fear while that loud voice rang down the startled aisles of paradise calling back the soul of Lazarus.

It is interesting with Christ to believe in Him and let Him raise your dead.

"This has been an accident to us we were not prepared for. God was. Did you never think of the quiet room, which, nevertheless, a stir of expectation runs, a timid hope in gentle eyes, busy fingers plying swift needles, little garments made in haste, the sweet, busy, a couch that never yet has swung to croning cradle song, messengers hourly bringing little mystic tokens? Lazarus so back. As Jesus hovered, they were all ready there for the coming of these new-born souls, with glad fore-welcome."

Mitchell was followed by Rev. Dr. E. S. Lines, rector of St. Paul's church, who pronounced the usual prayers of the Episcopal church, concluding the services in the church. The caskets were then borne from the church through the side entrance to the vestibule, where the four hearses were drawn up. As the caskets were carried, the bearers wended their way to the Fair Haven cemetery nearby, they were followed by carriages containing the members of the congregation and people on foot. It is probable there were fully 2,000 people in the cemetery.

AT THE GRAVE.

As the caskets were borne from the hearses to the grave, Rev. Dr. Lines repeated passages of Scripture used at the committal service. The remains were then lowered into the large grave, together, by patent lowering apparatus. The grave was then covered with green and cut flowers. Dr. Lines pronounced the words, "Dust to dust, ashes to ashes," and sprigs of evergreen were thrown on the caskets. Prayers were said by Rev. Drs. Lines and Mitchell, and the benediction was pronounced by the former associate of the little girls.

The bearers were Frank Sperry, of the firm of Sperry & Barnes; Prof. Sydney I. Smith, of Sheffield Scientific school; Edward Thompson, of East Hill; and Paul W. H. Deane, of Deane and Charles A. Tuttle.

The bearers for the children were Herbert Nelson, Frederick Smith, William Smith, Frank Page.

The floral offerings were the most beautiful and numerous ever seen in New Haven. Among them was an immense bank of cyprus leaves and chrysanthemums from the directors of the Scranton Tribune; large bouquet of roses from Editor L. V. S. Richard, of the Tribune, and wife; cluster of roses on gala leaves from the employees of the Tribune, cluster of roses from Master Sarah B. Warman, of Scranton; casket bouquet from the members of the sophomore class of the High School, of which Miss Esther Craig was a member; white flowers from a lady bearing this inscription: "They were lovely and pleasant in life and in death were not divided."

FROM THIS CITY.

The following from this city attended the funeral services: Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Richard, Mrs. E. T. Sweet, Howard Davis, J. F. Mitchell, John Crane and S. B. Stillwell.

New Haven was inexpressibly shocked by the tragic death of the Craig family. All of the members of it were known and beloved by hundreds of the residents of that city, and each seemed to feel a sense of personal loss in the removal of their friends. The scenes in the church and at the grave of the four bodies were lower side by side into their last resting place were indescribably pathetic and will not soon be forgotten by those who attended the services.

At the head of today's list is the celebrated Mayfield robbery case.

TWENTY-SIXTH ANNIVERSARY

SPECIAL SERVICES YESTERDAY AT GRACE CHURCH.

Observance of the Establishment of the Reformed Episcopal Church in 1873—Sermon of Rev. George L. Airich, the Pastor, on the Causes Leading Up to the Foundation of the Tenets of the Denomination. Short Sketch of Local Church Established in 1881.

The twenty-sixth anniversary of the establishment of the Reformed Episcopal church was commemorated yesterday morning in the Grace Reformed church, on Wyoming avenue, with a special sermon by the pastor, Rev. George L. Airich.

He took as his text Nehemiah 4-8: "So built we the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof, for the people had a mind to work." The sermon was in the nature of an interesting and complete account of the denomination and the causes leading up to it.

Mr. Airich stated in opening his remarks that the church was organized under special and peculiar circumstances, being an outgrowth of the Evangelical Alliance of 1872. The alliance of that year was held in New York city and among those who attended it was Bishop George Davidson Cummins, assistant bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church of Kentucky.

ESTABLISHMENT OF CHURCH.

One morning during the sessions of the alliance a union communion service was held at Rev. John Hall's Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church. At this service Bishop Cummins and a number of other visiting clergymen assisted. The bishop was severely criticized and scored by his fellow-workers in the Episcopal faith for this violation of the canons of that church, which forbid the assistance by its clergymen of any service of any other denomination.

Bishop Cummins had always held other views at variance with some of the doctrines of the established Episcopalian church, and he accordingly, in company with several other ministers, established the Reformed Episcopal church on Dec. 2, 1873, in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, at the corner of Fourth avenue and Twenty-third street.

A set of certain principles were drawn up and the new church rapidly grew in numbers throughout the country, its membership coming principally from the regularly established Episcopal church.

The Grace Reformed church was established in this city in 1881, Rev. G. A. Redler being the first pastor. One year later the congregation erected and moved into the present church building on Wyoming avenue. Among the charter members were the following: Misses Rebecca and Mary Drinkwater, George W. Fritz and wife, Richard M. Hackett, William T. Hackett, J. E. Chandler and wife, R. H. Frear and wife, C. P. Matthews and wife and Thomas E. Lyndon.

PASTORS OF THE CHURCH.

Rev. Mr. Redler served as pastor for five years and was followed by Rev. D. M. Kearns, who acted for seven years. The next pastor was Rev. A. B. Bates, who was followed a year later by the present incumbent, Rev. George L. Airich, who came here from Brooklyn, N. Y.

The church is at present in a very flourishing condition; in fact, more so than it has been for years. It has always been a missionary church, the members of the congregation always taking special interest in this missionary work.

SERMONS OF REV. JAS. HUGHES.

They Were Preached in the Adams Avenue Chapel.

The Rev. James Hughes preached yesterday morning in the Adams avenue chapel on the words, "If thy presence go not with me carry us not up hence." He said those words expressed his own feelings as he entered on the new engagement into which he had entered with the people there. Then he proceeded to say:

Firstly, if God will not be with us some one else will. The evil one is ever on the alert and ever ready to enter for the purpose of scattering and devouring the flock of God.

Secondly, God will go with us if we invite Him in a becoming manner. If we are in position, self-abasement and prayer we seek the Divine presence God will go with us into the work of the future.

Thirdly, Should God go with us we shall have no reason to complain of the new relationship into which we have now entered. There will be given us the peace of love in action, peace on the wing. There will be the spirit of mutual forbearance and friendship. And we shall witness the growth of the congregation and the conversion of souls.

In the evening Mr. Hughes took for his text, "Glorying in the Cross of Christ." He informed his audience that his intention was to make the theme of his ministry among them "The Cross of Jesus Christ." It was his only hope of the redemption of the human race. It was the power by which alone the world could be transformed into the likeness of heaven, the only magnet by which the lowly could be lifted up, and he hoped to make it the warp and woof of his ministry.

What He Says About "Courtied Into Court."

Manager Burgunder has received the following letter regarding "Courtied Into Court," which comes to the Lyceum Tuesday evening:

In reply to yours of the 29th inst., would say that Clifford and Huth, in "Courtied Into Court," present a clear farce comedy, interspersed with good specialties and laughable dialogue and situations. Is a well balanced comedy. Maud Huth is inimitable in her various songs, and Mr. Clifford likewise. The finales are remarkably strong and certain calls were numerous. It will surely please your patrons, as it did ours.
