BANQUET OF U. P. MEN.

At a Meeting Last Night Arrangements for Event Were Considered at Length.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Northeastern Pennsylvania Alumni association of the University of Pennsylvania was held last evening in the office of Dr. Lewis Frey, on Washington avenue. A large number of "old grads" were present and waxed enthusiastic over the propsect for the annual gathering. It was decided to have the banquet on December 27 and to hold it in the Board of Trade rooms. Arrangements are being made to have a musical programme given, and it is likely that a very fine one will be arranged. Alfred Wooler will sing at the banquet and will also have charge of all the musical arrangements. Some clever University of Pennsylvania men will also be secured from those at the college this year, who are prominent members of the Glee clubs. Among the famous alumni who will take part in this part of the programme is Will-iam Goeckel, the young Wilkes-Barre lawyer. While at college he was very prominent both in athletic and musical circles. In the former respect he was known as one of the best first basemen that ever stepped on a college diamond, and in the latter was regarded as one of the best planists in the college, and was also known as writing most of the college songs. He will be present at the banquet and render several musical selections.

Samuel Boyle, who played end on the 'Varsity football eleven a couple of years ago, will also attend. Among prominent men connected with the university who will be at the banquet are Provost Harrison, from whom a letter was received stating that he would be here, and Samuel Huston, one of the prominent men on the board of trustees of the university.

Thomas Donaldson, secretary of the General Alumni association of the University of Fennsylvania, has sent word that he will be present, and the athletic side of the college will be well ented by Coach Woodruff, of the football eleven.

Three members of last year's Glee club will materially strengthen the programme. These gentlemen are Messrs, Megargee, Bailey and Duing, and they will probably be the guests of Dr. J. L. Wentz, of this city. Delegations are expected to the banquet from Wilkes-Barre, Stroudsburg, Carbondale, Pittston and various other places in the locality, and all indications go to show that this will be one of the most successful affairs the association has ever held.

NEW TELEPHONE COMPANY

Joseph J. Jermyn and Dr. John L. Wentz, of This City, Are Largely Interested in It.

Joseph J. Jermyn and Dr. John L. Wentz, of this city, are the president and the secretary and treasurer, respectively, of a long distance telephone company to be known as the Columbia Long Distance Telephone company, which was incorporated yesterday in Albany, N. Y., with a capital of $50,000. Messrs. Jermyn and Wentz are also the president and secretary of the Syracuse Telephone company, which is at present engaged in installing a local plant in Syracuse. This is now twothirds completed and will be finished about the latter end of January.

It is the intention of the new long distance company to connect Syracuse with Auburn and also with Rochester. There are independent companies controlling the telephones in each of these cities and arrangements have been perfeeted by the new company to connect. Syracuse is the centre of a large circle of cities having independent companies, and it is the intention of the company to in time connect with as many of these as possible. The new local company in Syracuse is meeting with much favor and already has 3,000 contracts as against about 1,800 held by the present company.

ACCUSED BURGLARS MAKE NO DEFENSE

CONTENT TO ESCAPE CONVIC-TION ON FIRST COUNT.

Strong Intimation That They Will Succeed in Doing This-Interesting Arguments on the All Important Question as to Whether or Not the Bunk Room in the Burglarized Power House Made the Premises a "Dwelling House" Within the Definition of Law.

As foreshadowed in The Tribune on Tuesday, the defense in the Mayfield burglary case consists mainly in an effort to reduce the grade of the crime to statutory burglary, for which the maximum penalty is four years' imprisonment and $500 fine. If common law burglary is proven a penalty of ten years and $1,000 fine may be imposed. If the verdict is one of statutory burglary and the prisoners are sentenced now they cannot be given the full term of four years, as the law requires that a prisoner's sentence must so run that it shall expire in the summer time.

The fact that the defense offered no testimony entities it to make the last address to the jury. Mr. O'Brien will do the summing up. It is generally expected that he will intimate to the jury that his clients had nothing to gain by going on the stand and telling who they are and what their business was around Carbondale on the morning following the burglary, and then argue that the Commonwealth has failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendants belonged to the party that robbed the Mayfield power house. The story the prisoners have held to all along is that they met by accident in the Carbondale yard at different periods of the early morning, some of them joining the party after the train had started. Gaughan and Cummings are the only two who admit they knew one another before that morning.

PROSECUTION RESTED.

The presecution rested at 3.55 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after having presented one of the most complete, logical and connected stories of a crime that was ever unraveled from the witness box in the Lackawanna courts.

Mr. Kelly forthwith moved the court to compel the district attorney to elect the count of the indictment which he would ask a verdict, alleging that the second count, statutory burglary by breaking in and the third count, statutory burglary without breaking in, were inconsistent with the first count, common law burglary, in which it is essential that the burglarized premises shall be a dwelling

Judge Edwards announced that here was no evidence, as he viewed the matter then, on which to rest the charge of common law burglary, and that he would probably charge the jury to that effect. He would not, however, compel the district attorney to elect which charge he would press until after the defense had closed. Messrs, O'Brien and Kelly held a short whispered consultation and then Mr. O'Brien called out : "The defendants rest."

Judge Edwards then listened to arnot the bunk room over the office in the power station made it a dwelling house within the meaning of the law. Undaunted by Judge Edwards' announcement that he was of the opinion that the evidence had not shown the premises to be a dwelling house, within the definition of the law, Mr. Jones proceeded to prove it was and cited a long string of authorities in support of his contention.

MR. JONES' ARGUMENT. A building takes on the character of a dwelling house, Mr. Jones argued, and becomes such in the eyes of the law under the following circumstances; A store in which a watchman regularly sleeps; the room of a guest at a hotel even though he is a transient guest; any premises having internal communication with apartments under the same roof which are occupied as sleeping apartments. He also contended that the court should define what a dwelling house is under the law, and leave it to the jury to say whether or not the premises in question meet the definition.

Mr. Kelly argued that the only question on which the charge of common law burglary hinged was whether or not the power station was a dwelling house. It could not be such, he said, under the reading of the very indictment itself, which used these terms; 'Used as a power house and a dwelling louse by the Carbondale Traction company, a corporation, etc." A corporation, Mr. Kelly averred, was so constituted physically that it could not very well be accredited with a dwell-

The fact that a few trolley men were in the habit of sleeping there did not make the place a dwelling house. Why did they sleep there? "lecause it was more convenient at times for them to stay there than to go-where? To go to their dwelling houses.

WHAT MR. KELLY URGED. An engineer on the Delaware and Hudson road might come in late to the ound-house in Green Ridge and, rather than walk a long distance to his home in the darkness, he would stretch out on a bench and sleep till daylight. Would this make the round-house a habitation? Mr. Kelly asked. If a lawyer should come back into town on a late train and go to his office to sleep, instead of traveling to his home in the suburbs, would a man who burglarized the building in which the lawyer's office was located be guilty of common law burgiary? A sleeping car is frequently occupied by a party for four or five days on a trip to California, for nstance, yet no one would hold the car to be his habitation. A booth or tent at a county fair have been held by the courts not to be a dwelling house. In the present instance, Mr. Kelly pointed out, the men who slept in the bunkroom in the power station at Mayfield would be found registered as voters in Carbondale, Jermyn, or wherever else they happened to hall from. It is safe to presume, he said, that none of them ever voted in Mayfield borough on the strength of their occupancy of the bunk room in the Traction company's power nouse. A dwelling house is a place where a man lives. It is his habitation and no man can have two habita-

Judge Edwards will decide the ouesion this morning. If he decides that the Mayfield power station was not a "dwelling house," and he was disposed to decide this way before hearing the arguments, the defendants cannot be in Ararat.

given more than three years and a few months' imprisonment, even though the court was inclined to impose the maximum penalty.

When court adjourned Tuesday, District Attorney Jones had finished the examination of George Dimmick, en-gineer of the Eric train on which the defendants rode from Bracebrook to Ararat. His story of the unsuccessful effort to nall the doors of the box car In which they rode and the manner in which they left the car at Uniondale and entered it again farther up the road was corroborated by Conductor Siegel Robbins and Brakemen Walter Rowens, Richard Huddy and Horton Warden W. T. Simpson identified four derby hats as the headgear worn by the defendants when they were received at the county jail, Jesse Vail, the miller, who helped

Leach halt the gang at Ararat, told a story that was substantially the same as that of Engineer Dimmick. He insisted that the first shot came from the gang that got out of the car. Judge Edwards reminded counsel that it was not a case of manslaughter that was being tried, and that the ques-

SAW DALTON AND ZOLLNER. Della Payne, a servant girl in the employ of Gaylord Gellatt, of Comfort Pond, testified that on the morning of the burglary she saw two men pass the house and that one of them stopped some distance down the road and turned into a clump of bushes for a few moments. She identified Dalton and Zollner as the two men. Farmer Gellatt testified to the same thing. Seward Wall, a 15-year-old boy, Night Clerk Brokenshtre and Clerk Ell Nicholson, of the Traction company, testified that the office door was burst in by the burglars, the catch being forced off.

The last witness was Leach the man with the gun. A general hush fell over the crowded court room when he took the stand and continued during the entire recital of his story. He was doing his early morning chores when the telegraph operator came running over to him with a message telling of the Mayfield burglary and of the six supposed burglars being on the train that had just left Uniondale.

TOOK HIS RIFLE ALONG. Taking his rifle he went to the station. Jesse Vail came along soon afterwards armed with a revolver. When the train stopped Leach and Vail went to the west side of the train, which nents on the question of whether or | pulled up past them the length of a few cars. The gang was in the first

One man got off on the west side and started ahead. Leach called to him "Stranger hold on a minute, I'd like to talk to you." The man whipped out a revolver and whirled around and fired. Vall fired at him and the fire was returned. Leach took a shot at him but missed him. Looking beneath the cars they could

When he approached the five men the first of them took aim at him and fired. At the same moment Leach raised his rifle and shot. Barry dropped with a builet through his brain.

The other four fired a volley, or, at all events, a volley of shots came from the semi-circle and then they broke and retreated towards the swamp, scattering as they ran.

CAUGHT ON THE FENCE.

Gaughan's trousers became caught in the barbed wire fence enclosing the wamp and Leach started towards him. Gaughan turned around as far as he could and, taking aim at Leach, fired, Leach shot at him and sent a bullet through his shoulder. He broke away form the barbed wire and staggered along some distance through swamp, finally dropping down behind a clumn of bushes. Leach says that when he called to Gaughan, "Halt, or I'll shoot," Gaughan answered, "Shoot and be d-" Leach then shot. Cummings, after clearing the fence stopped in his flight, rested his big Colt's revolver in the hollow of his bent, left arm and, aiming at Leach. fired. Leach shot at Cummings and shattered his right arm. Cummings zig-zagged up the hill, but only went a short distance, when he returned and sat on a stone. He and Gaughan submitted quietly when Leach and Vail went up to them. Zoliner and Dalton, who got over the fence first, disappeared over the hill, while Leach was ngaged with Cummings and Gaughan, On cross-examination Mr. O'Brien brought out the fact that Leach did not tell the men he was a constable or that he had orders to arrest them. He said he did not have time to tell them anything. Vall was not asked to assist him.

He denied that one or the men asked him why he was shooting at them and that he made no answer except with his rifle. Leach would not admit that he shot uny of them.

"Did not these men ask you if you were shooting at them just because they were stealing a ride on the train?" queried Mr. O'Brien. "What men?" retorted Leach,

"The men you shot," said Mr. O'Brien, "I don't know that I shot any men," quickly responded Leach. It was further elicited by Mr. O'Bries that Leach is a peace officer appointed by the Susquehanna court and that his commission was left up in his saloon

AN ECHO OF THE OLD FORGE STRIKE

DEPUTY AND NON-UNION MAN - ARRAIGNED IN COURT.

Charge of Pointing Fire Arms That Grew Out of One of the Exciting Early Morning Incidents in Which the Women Were the Principal Participants - By Agreement the Case Was Not Pressed-Defendants Fared Well Before Judge Biddell, Only One Conviction.

An echo of the Old Forge strike was heard in Judge Biddell's court, ves-terday, when John Byers and Thomas Scavo were arraigned to answer the charge of pointing fire arms, preferred by Constable John S. Davis. Byers was a deputy and Scavo one tion of who fired the first shot had of the workmen, who was escorted to and from work each day during the continuance of the company's effort to run the mine without the aid of their old employes. One morning Scavo and Byers were held up by some women strike sympathizers, and they displayed their revolvers. Scavo fired a shot, but he avers the pistol was aimed in the air.

When the strike was settled, the prosecutions instituted by one side or the other, it was agreed, should be dropped, and, yesterday, when this case ame up, a verdict of not guilty was agreed to upon the defendants paying the costs.

A verdict of not guilty was directed in the case of Martin Jos ochik, charged by his fellow-bon er. Andrew Strus, with the larceny eft the money under his illow in the bed in which he and Josepchik slept. He went out at early morn leaving Josepchik asleep in bed. When he returned the money was gone. sepchik was there but dealed all knowledge of how the money disappeared, and submitted to a search, which failed to discover any of the

A verdict of not gullty was likewise tracted in the case of William Green charged by John McCabe with the larceny of a horse. Green, it was made to appear, owned the horse originally and sold it to a man named Ander-The latter sold it to McCabe. The horse wandered back to Green's premises and he put it in his barn to await the call of the owner. Mc-Cabe came for it, but Green refused to give it up, not knowing that he was the owner. Lizzie Labotsky, charged with having secured credit from the Swift Packing company by falsely stating that she owned eleven unincumbered properties, was returned not guilty by direction of court, the prosecutor having failed to establish that there were any false pretenses, within the definition of the law. Miles Finch was accused by Joseph

Pool, the son of his boarding-boss, with the theft of a gun, but the jury believed his statement that the gun was given him by the prosecutor's father as security for a loan of $6, and returned a verdict of not guilty. John Sarto, of Minooka, was tried for assaulting and robbing a pack peddler named Morris Gisberg. was found guilty of assault and battery, and not guilty of larceny. Not guilty, costs divided, was the jury's return in the assault and bat tery case from Priceburg, in which Robert Davis was defendant, and Matthew Harrocks, prosecutor.
