"Cyrano de Bergerac." Francis Wilson has long been recognized as one of the bright, luminous stars in the light opera firmament and he is always sure of a full and attentive hearing from theater-goers. Even if his vehicle happens to be a little shaky it "goes" if there is plenty of Wilson in it.

There is naturally plenty of Wilson in "Cyrano de Bergerac," in which he appeared at the Lyceum last night, and the only thing the audience regretted was that there wasn't more of Wilson. There were not many bright moment: when Wilson was off the stage unless the charming Lulu Glaser came on to help the merriment along.

Cyrano de Bergerze is not the kind of character around which a model comic opera can be constructed. Harry B. Smith did some good work on the book and Victor Herbert's music gives no indication that he is writing himself to death, but one can't escape the conclusion that the whole thing is rather flat. Wilson realizes this and he worked like a Trojan last night to overcome the handicap and was rewarded by real, honest and hearty applause. The Cyrana he is now giving the public is evidently not the individual carved out by the comic opera constructors. Wilson is at present introducing to theatre-goers a burlesque on Rostrand's hero, 'Tis a dignified, unaggressive burlesque, let it be said. There was nothing left for Wilson to do but burlesque, Only in that way could be induce any laughs o exude from Cyrano,

Miss Glaser's Roxane was a triffe more broadly burlesqued than Mr. Wilson's Cyrano, but it was delightful and introduced that talented young woman to a Scranton audience in a new light, Her ability as a comedienne has not heretofore been appreciated here. The leading woman of a light opera comedian is ordinarily now expected to do much in the way of affecting the risibilities of the audience, but Miss Glaser has ignored that fact. She easily divided the honors with Wilson last night.

There were a number of good voices in the company and Mr. Smith's lyrics were very pleasantly rendered. Two of Victor Herbert's waitz numbers won instant favor with the audience. The music, taken in its entirety, is delightful, and Mr. Wilson has staged the opera in a strikingly magnificent manner. It does not follow the lines of ree that was to be in the Methodist the original poem very closely. Roxgiving her hand to the chivalrous Cy-

O'Neill as a Swordsman.

It almost goes without saying that as D'Artagnan in Liebler and Company's gorgeous production of "The Musketeers," which is to be the Christmas attraction at the Lyceum, James O'Neill has another opportunity to display his superb swordsmanship. The public remembers, of course, the ease with which he, as the Count of Monte Cristo, used to dispatch Danglars, the banker, to his deserved death. During several seasons it was necessary to change the actors who were first engaged for that part, as they refused to play it after a few months had passed, claiming that they did not engage to have two or three fingers cut off in the duel scene for the privilege of playing opposite to Mr. O'Neill. In his younger days Mr. O'Neill crossed swords with all the noted actors of the period in whose companies he served. Edwin Forrest, Barry Sullivan, Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett all matched their fencing skill against his. On one occasion the illustrious Booth caught him off his guard and promptly knocked out one of his leading man's front teeth. As D'Artagnan was known among the musketeers of King Louis as the best swordsman of his time, so James O'Neill enjoys the reputation of being one of the cleverest men with the foil in the world today. Mr. O'Neill will be seen at the Lyceum Christmas afternoon and evening.

Holiday Attraction.

The Elroy Stock company will commence a week's engagement at the Academy of Music Monday, Dec. 25, presenting for Xmas matinee Edwin "Friends," and, on Christmas night. the grand scenic production ,"Land of the Midnight Sun." Tuesday nigh the romantic drama, "Northern Lights." will be offered, in which J. Frank Burke will be seen at his best as John Swittwind, the Indian graduate of Yale and assistant surgeon at the post.

Mr. Burke has made this character special study, having spent three months on the Crow reservation in the Little Big Horn Valley, where the action of the play takes place. The repertoire for the balance of the week will be "The Secret Enemy," "A Spring Chicken," "Why Jones Left Home."
"Cotton Spinner," "District Fair" and
"Turned Up." There will be daily matinees, with change of bill at every performance.
