FOUND DYING ON THE TRACK.

Man Supposed to Be Mike Ruschak, of Priceburg Meets a Hard Death.

Employes of the Marvine colliery found an unknown man, mangled and dying, a few rods above the shaft, on the Delaware and Hudson tracks, shortly after daybreak yesterday morning. His legs were frightfully crushed and he was otherwise cut and bruised. Consciousness had left him and it was evident that he could not live long, but it was decided to remove him to the Lackawanna hospital and he was placed aboard the 8.38 train. On the way down he died, and the remains were given in charge of Undertakers D. D. Jones & Son.

An examination of the clothing disovered a store book made out to Mike Ruschak by Bellman & Co., of Throop, Inquiry there revealed the fact that such a man worked as a miner for the Pancoast Coal company, and that he lived on Lincoln street, Priceburg, The undertakers sent a man to Priceburg to look for his relatives, but his search was fruitless.

Ruschak was evidently about thirtyeight years of age, and at Bellman & Co,'s store it was believed he was a married man. How he came by his death is not definitely known, but it is supposed he was run down by a train ome time during the early morning.

POLICE NAB FOUR ALLEGED BURGLARS

THREE MEN AND A WOMAN TAKEN INTO CUSTODY.

Articles Stolen on the Night Previous from Prof. John T. Jones' Residence and a Large Quantity of Gold and Silverware Also Supposed to Be Stolen Is Found in the Possession of the Quartette-One of the Gang Was Trying to Sell Plunder in Public Places.

The police did a very good day's work vesterday by rounding up what is unthe gang of burglars who have been breaking into various dwelling houses throughout the city for the past two weeks, culminating with the robbery of Prof. John T. Jones' house on Sunday evening last, the details of which were published in yesterday morning's Tribune. There is the proverbial woman in the case also, and the police believe that she took an active part in the robberies.

Three members of the gang, which numbered four, are professional crooks and the fourth, Frank Courtright, of this city, who was arrested first. considered to have been the tool of the rest of the crowd.

It was learned yesterday morning by the police that Courtright was going from saloon to saloon in Green Ridge yesterday selling chances on a number of pieces of silverware, and in som instances having dice shaken for them, charging so much a throw.

The chief, together with Detective John Moir and Mounted Offieer Joseph Block, went up to Green Ridge, and about 2 o'clock found Courtright at the Delaware and Hudson station. He was seized, and a endered Mr. and Mrs. Ira Mitchell, of satchel he was carrying was opened and examined.

WHAT WAS FOUND.

It was found to contain several rings, pins, a medallion, two watches and various other articles corresponding to what was stolen Sunday night at the Jones residence.

Chief Robling took him to police he and his bag were given another thorough search.

Courtright is a well-known characer in local police circles, and it was next determined to visit his lodging place at 323 Centre street. Here was brought to her aid several men workdiscovered a large bundle containing ing nearby. They rushed into silver knives, forks, spoons, and also several small pieces of jewelry.

These latter were recognized as plunler from the homes of H. Bevan, of Sapouse avenue, whose home was burglarized a week ago last Sunday night, and also as spoils from the home of Mrs. F. S. Pauli, on Sanderson avenue which was entered last Thursday night, while the family was out. Mounted Officer Block made a trip out to Green Ridge, about 5 o'clock and returned with the half-deger spoons and sugar shell which had een removed from Prof. Jones' home These, Courtright had left at the some of his sister, Mrs. Davis, of

PROPERTY IDENTIFIED.

Professor Jones came to the station house and identified all of, his property. A silk waist of Mrs. Jones was also found, the loss of which had not | foot been known at all. Members of the Bevan and Pauli households also came down and identified their valuables. Besides these, there was a large number of knives, forks and spoons the ownership of which is not known.

Among the special articles which were recognized was a beaded purse of odd make, which was taken from Bevans' and also a gold watch, the property of Prof. Jones, which was known by the markings on the lid.

A large number of the stolen articles were yesterday returned to police headquarters by a number who had won them from Courtright, Several of those who returned the articles were very loud in expressing their own innocence. The police desire to say that all those who purchased or won anything from Courtright are urged to return them at

The chie? and Detective Moir held several interviews with Courtright yesterday, and it is believed that he "peached," as the profession call it, on his companions. At any rate, they two officials arrested a man who calls himself Jim Little, on Penn avenue Three hours later the chief, Detective Moir, Lieutenant Davis and Officer Joseph Bloch arrested "Jack" Crow and his wife in a resort located at 323 Centre street. Both of the men werarmed with revolvers, but they offered no resistance. Courtright's girl lived concert by the Home band in the with the Crows, or at least on the same floor. This led to their being sus-

James E. Gould, residing at 614 Madion avenue, was committed to the county jail yesterday, charged with ruelly beating his wife. Gould, it is said, has been drinking for the past week or two. Yesterday morning he came home intoxicated Mrs. Gould says, and procured a razor With this, she says, he drove her and their children out of the house, threatening to kill them. When they returned again, Mrs. Gould declares he rutally kicked her and beat one of the hildren very severely. Mrs. Gould fearing for her own peronal safety, went before Alderman Kasson and procured a warrant for his headquarters in the city hall, where arrest. While the constable was out searching for him, he again returned home and repeated his violence. This time, Mrs. Gould declares, he again kicked her. CHRISTMAS AT HILLSIDE HOME.

Superintendent Beemer Took Good Care of His Large Family. Even the Hillside Home was not forotten by Santa Claus,

With the aid of the home committee of the poor board and through the agency of Superintendent and Mrs. Beemer, a bounteous turkey dinner was provided for all the inmates, and such of them as could appreciate such a thing were given some little present that served as a reminder of the joyous season and made the poor unfortunates were not altogether forgotten and forsaken by the busy outside world. The old men received fancy pipes, or tobacco boxes, or neckkerchiefs, gloves or something of that sort, while the old women were made happy with shawls, shoulder blankets, handkerchiefs or the like. The younger inmates received gifts that were equally appropriate. It does not develop that there was any dispensing of the kind that John Gilibans was wort to insist upon against the protests of Mrs. Swan, but Superintendent Beemer saw that there was a Christmas tree and candies and nuts and oranges. That the inmates felt grateful for the treatment accorded them is evidenced in a measure at least by the following which were poked through the bars of two of the most heavily guarded cells, Extra guards were placed on these cells afterwards:

We wish you merry Christmas, And all the year around, And at the transfer mission. You will be heavenly bound.

Thank you. Mrs. Beemer, And all the ladles fair For our turkey dinner Cabbage and all the fare. We know you are successful With all your kitchen care,

Wednesday night there will be a amusement hall.
