Within thirty days they will use 5,000 horse-power. The buildings have been enlarged, and the total capacity of the works will be in-creased five-fold. The product is calcium carbide. It is used in the manufacture of acetylene gas. It may be said that new uses for this gas are being constantly developed. It has thus far been used chiefly for lighting purposes, but there are great possibilities for it as a power producer. The world moves. In these latter days of inventions and scientific discovery the term "impossible" seems to be almost obsolete. VIADUCT ORDINANCE MEETS WITH DELAY

MR. O'BOYLE HALTS IT TO MAKE A BLIGHT REPAIR.

Discrepancy Between the Title and the Body of the Measure That Threatened Its Legality Is Amended, Necessitating Its Reprinting and Further Consideration by Both Branches of Councils-It Is, However, All in the Best Faith and with Best Intentions, Apparently.

If the solicitation for the welfare of the vinduct ordinance evinced by the eelectmen at last night's regular meeting was as sincere as it seemed, the measure is as good as up to the mayor. Not a single vote or voice opposed it in any way during the time it was up for consideration.

It first came to notice in a motion by Mr. Fellows that when council adjourned it should be to meet next Monday night. This was in anticipa tion of an amendment that Mr. O'Boyle announced he would offer, which would if adopted necessitate the reprinting of the ordinance. There was a protest against this and the motion was defeated, but this probably had no significance one way or the other, it being simply an expression of the feeling that the contemplated amendment might not prevail, which would render the extra meeting unnecessary. That this was the case was evidenced by the fact that when the amendment did prevail there was an unanimous vote to hold an adjourned session this evening that the ordinance might be finally passed in time to give common council sufficient opportunity of getting together in special session to concur

ON FINAL READING.

The ordinance was called up for third and final reading by Mr. McCann, when that order of business was regularly reached, and then Mr. O'Boyle announced his amendment, accompanying the announcement with a motion to go into committee of the whole for the purpose of considering the amend-

The amendment was simply a bit of technical repairing. The body of the ordinance provides for the construction of a viaduct and the purchase of the right of way, while the title makes no mention of the matter of purchasing the right of way.

Mr. McCann thought the amendment unnecessary, but when Clerk Lavelle informed him that City Solicitor Vosburg thought like Mr. O'Boyle, that it was necessary, Mr. McCann said, "All

When the amendment had been unanimously adopted, Mr. Roche did some figuring on a calendar, consulted with the West Side citizens' committee, which occupied the spectators' enlosure, and then moved that adjournment be made till next Monday night. His idea was to have both branches meet that night and finish up with the ordinance, but Mr. McCann, Mr. Thomas, Mr. James, Mr. Fellows and Mr. McAndrew, after a hasty conference, deemed it best to have the selectwhen an amendment to that effect was offered Mr. Roche accepted it as his principal motion and it passed unani-

ONLY A FEW DAYS

The ordinance must be signed by the mayor before next Wednesday night. Common council can call a special meeting on twenty-four hours' notice and will likely meet Monday night. The ordinance will then be ready for the mayor's signature Tuesday.

A. B. Holmes, David E. Evans, David D. Evans, H. D. Jones, Common Councilmen Charles Godshall and W. V. Griffiths, City Assessor G. A. Jones and Councilman-elect Joseph Oliver were among the prominent West Siders who were on hand to help along the good cause.

An ordinance was introduced by Mr Melvin providing for the transfer of $125, being the balance remaining of appropriation for purchase of the new ose wagon, for the paying of claims for the construction of a catch basin at the corner of Wyoming avenue and Spruce street, and for the paving of Page court.

A communication from Street Commissioner Thomas telling of the deplorable condition of certain streets in the Sixth ward and advising that an appropriation be made for their repair was read and referred to the committee on estimates.

A communication was also read from the mayor vetoing the ordinance providing for three electric lights in the Twenty-first ward, on the ground that the present financial condition of the city does not warrant any increase of expenditure in this direction. Mr. Sanlerson moved that the ordinance pass despite the mayor's veto, but the modon was lost.

WYOMING AVENUE MATTER. A resolution introduced by Mr. Roche was adopted, directing the city solicitor to withdraw the exceptions to the awards of the viewers for the opening of Wyoming avenue and requesting the honorable court to confirm such award. The police committee reported favorably on the resolution directing that the special policemen appointed for service during the two big conventions be paid their salaries. A brief opinion by City Solicitor Vosburg was read in this connection, stating that the officers were entitled to their pay.

A concurrent resolution was adopted extending for thirty days the time for Market street, between the Lackawanna river and the boulevard. The following new resolutions were also adopted:

INOUEST IN PURCELL CASE.

Two Men Described by Attorney C. C. Donovan-One of Them Supposed to Be Purcell.

An inquest was held in the court house last night in the case of Michael J. Purcell, the young man who was killed by a trolley car on Hemlock street, South Scranton, at 11.40 Sunday night. A somewhat peculiar state of things was shown at the hearing. William Hughes, of 529 Wyoming avenue, testified that he was with Purcell from about 8 o'clock Sunday evening until nearly 11. When Purcell joined him he appeared to be entirely sober and while they were together Purcell drank only two glasses of whiskey, yet the witness said he had to chide Purcell for walking unsteadily. They went into the lunch wagon on Spruce street, between Wyoming and Washington avenue, where Purcell started to eat a ham sandwich, but became sick and began to vomit. He was helped out of the wagon and Hughes walked with him as far as the Mears building. There they separated shortly before 11 o'clock, Hughes says, and Purcell started east on Spruce street, toward the Roaring Brook bridge. Hughes went west Spruce street to Wyoming and thence to St. Peter's cathedral.

Attorney C. C. Donovan testified that about 11.20 Sunday night he was on his way to the Cathedral to midnight mass and near the South Side end of the Roaring Brook bridge saw two young men. One was somewhat taller than the other, who seemed to be assisting him. The taller of the two was either sick or intoxicated, more sick than intoxicated Mr. Donovan thought, and the smaller man was holding him up and seemed to be having some difficulty to do this. The tall man's coat was dirty, as if he had fallen.

The smaller of the two was sober and was urging the man he was assisting to keep awake. "Wake up, Mike!" men meet tonight and the commoners and "Come along, Mike!" he would say, tomorrow night or Monday night, and as he gave his companion a shake. A man named Mawn, and the smaller of the two asked him where Elm street was located. He was given the necessary information, and the two again

At the entrance to the bridge, Mr. Donovan joined Mawn and they walked on together. Near the centre of the bridge Mr. Donovan turned around and saw the two men standing under the electric light at Pittston avenue and Hemlock street. The smaller of the two men, he was almost positive, was William Hughes, the first witness. He looked just like him, the witness said. and taked like him, too. He saw Purcell after he was killed, and thought that in a general way he resembled the large man. William Neary, the motorman of the car that killed Purcell, said there is a slight down grade on Hemlock street from Prospect to Pittston avenue, and when the car left Prospect avenue he shut off the power and set the brakes He was looking ahead at the time of the accident, but did not see anything on the track. The first intimation he had of it was when the wheels struck the body. It was going only four or five miles an hour at the time, and was stopped within twenty-five or thirty feet of the place where the body was first struck.

Edward Gilleran, James McGoveran and Amos Bennett, the conductor of the car, were also sworn and gave unimportant testimony. The jurors adjourned to meet again Tuesday night when Mr. Mawn and one or two other witnesses will be examined. The jurors are Patrolman John Peuster, F. L. Ward, P. W. Costello, J. F. Mitchell, T. Owen Charles and Michael Rafter,

DICKERT'S ANSWER

POOR BOARD CASE NOW SQUARE-LY BEFORE THE COURT.

The Claimant of the South Side Seat Sets Forth in Detail the Grounds On Which He Rests His Case. Says He Was Elected in the Interim Between Terppe's Resignation and Dickert's Appointment, and Consequently There Was No Vacancy for the Court to Fill.

Through his attorney, I. H. Burns, John J. Murphy, the claimant of the seat on the poor board now occupied by F. J. Dickert, filed a demurrer yesterday to the answer the defendant recently made through Attorney John F. Scragg.

Mr. Murphy contends that the anwer is insufficient in law to sustain the respondent's plea and then goes on at length to recite the various rea-

The appointment of F. J. Dickert by Judge Archbald March 2, 1899, for the unexpired term of F. I., Terppe, who resigned December 14, 1898, was unlawful, the relator avers, because there was no vacancy existing at that time, the relator, Mr. Murphy, having been elected to the office in the interim, namely, on February 21, 1899.

The act of 1862, Mr. Murphy contends, specifically states that vacan-cies shall be filled by the judges of the court of quarter sessions of Luzerne county, and therefore Judge Archbald, as president judge of the court of common pleas of Lackawanna county, had no authority to make the appointment. The appointment, it is further contended, is contrary to the opinion of Judge Edwards, in the case of the Commonwealth against F. J. Dickert, No. 717, September term, 1898, which decides, positively, that the office of poor director in the Scranton poor district is elective; that the supplementary act of 1866 does not change or modify the system of electing poor directors, as provided by the Act of 1862, and that if an election could have been held the proper time to hold it would

Mr. Murphy sets forth that he was elected February 2, 1899, but yet Judge Archbald appointed Mr. Dichert March 2, 1899, and re-appointed him November 28, 1899. The law in the case is found in the Act of 1862, and its supplements. As originally passed, it simply authorized the "erection of a poor house by the borough of Dunmore, borough of Scranton and township of Providence' and provided for the election of poor directors. In 1866 a supplementary acwas passed providing that vacancies caused by death, resignation or otherwise should be filled by the president judges of the court of common pleas of Luzerne county. This supplement was construed to mean that all vacancies, including those occurring by reason of the expiration of a term, were to be filled by the appointment of court and this practice has obtained ever since, the only change being that the Luzerne county court refused some years after the creation of Lackawan na county to fulfill this duty and allowed it to devolve upon the local court. Judge Archbald has been exreising the power ever since. The demurrer further contends that the supplement of 1866, under which the president judge of the court of ommon pleas of Lackawanna county claims authority to appoint poor directors to fill vacancies is unconstitutional for two reasons, as follows: It contains two distinct subjects, and they are not clearly expressed in the title as required by Section 3 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State. It now becomes a question of law for the court to decide. This court has already decided in a previous suit brought against the same defendant by Mr. Murphy, that the office is elecive and that the proper time for election is the year 1899. The only re maining point for decision is whether or not Mr. Murphy was duly elected as required by the law.

Willard, as special master, sell out the traction company at auction if its obligations to the plaintiff are not liquidated before January 15, 1900. The decree also sets forth the finding that the obligations amount to $358,016. When the Carbondale Traction company and Forest City Railway com-pany amalgamated in 1896, an issue of $450,000 of bonds was made. Of this amount $150,000 was given to the Central Trust company, of New York, to protect an outstanding issue made by the Forest City company. A mortgage for the protection of the remaining $300,000 worth of bonds was given to the Real Estate Trust company. The company has defaulted in its semiannual interest payments, and under the terms of the mortgage the trust company is entitled to take charge of the company's property. A receiver was asked for, but by a mutual agreement this other course was decided upon. The traction company makes no defense, simply admitting its insolvency and throwing itself upon the court to be dealt with as may best conduce to the interests of the parties concerned.
