Drivers Cause Trouble-Other News from Archbald.

Yesterday morning the drivers at the Forest mine, Archbald, struck because Superintendent Jones discharged a boy who had badly beaten a mule. The boys demanded that their companion of taken back. After having investigated Mr. Jones refused to do this and he gave the boys until 4 o'clock to decide whether they would work today or not. The boys again decided that they would not work unless their demand was conceded. Then Mr. Jones posted a notice that work would not be resumed until further orders, and now it is not known when the mine will be operated again. It is the general opinion that the boys have made a mistake and that the action of Mr. Jones in no way justified a strike. Joseph Jordan and his sister, Mary of Green stidge, spent Sunday with friends here.

with the Navajos and the Apaches Mrs. Robert Inglis, of Yatesville, is perhaps the wildest and most warlike savages on the continent. Upon one occasion the writer, together with 200 soldiers and other officers, was making a long night march upon the Navajos in New Mexico, having left Fort Bayard for the nurnose of inflicting severe punishment upon that wily and warlike tribe for their many murderous raids upon settlers. When, at about 3 o'clock in the morning of a moonlight night, after a long march through the grama grass which covered the ground with a covering soft as velvet, we balted for a few minutes' rest, the writer and the guides at the head of the weary columns fell upon the ground to rest, while the latter "spied out" the situation. There, while everything was quiet and nothing to be heard save the murmur of the low voices, the old guide heard a noise not in accord with the others. A moment's listening revealed the fact that it was a snore from some sleeping person, and that person was sleeping in a bunch of bushes near by.

Juan Aroya the leading guide. Mexican of 45 years' experience as a government guide and scout, recognized this fact in an instant, and started upon his hands and knees, dagger in mouth, for the spot. A moment later he dragged from the bushes by the long hair a half-awakened Navajo who had been left there to guard a herd of 600 sheep, which were varded in a stump corral nearby. He was compelled at the muzzle of a revolver to pilot us to the camp, a mile or two away, where about 509 of them were camped, and where the murderers received proper punishment.
