IMPROVEMENTS FROM AMER-ICAN OCCUPATION.

Evidences Which the Visitor Can See That the Incoming of the Yankees Has Been in Most Respects Beneficial-The One Exception Is in the Introduction of the American Bar Room.

From a Havana Letter by Dr. Charles E. Fisher, published in the Chicago Record. To the tourist who was here last spring it is not difficult to note that improvements of the most substantial and satisfactory kind have been going on during the summer, though perhaps not in the degree expected or desired. Put Havana is in infinitely better condition than when the American soldiers entered its gates at the close of 1898, and far and away improved over the spring of 1899. Not only are the improvements of a character to please the eye in many instances and gratify the olfactorics, but they are also of a character to appeal to the considertion of the incomer from the point of convenience and personal comfort.

Beginning at the very beginning, the methods at the customs house landing are more satisfactory. Last spring there was confusion worse confounded on almost every hand. Employes who had been accustomed to the Spanish regime were often annoying in their officiousness, and always indicating their wish to be tipped for every movement made, even though legitimate in his business this is all different. Courteousness has taken the place of ofseded the tediousness of old-time methods. The fees of the office are to have his baggage handled during examination. Last spring trunks were as rudely emptied on the dirty floor of the inspection room as is too often the case in New York and some other American ports, while this year a reasonably careful and not annoyingly thorough inspection satisfies, unless, series of unlor Bible readings, to be perchance, the trained official of the office is fed to believe a critical examination is required.

EVERYBODY IS BUSY.

The streets are just as old, just as narrow, just as interesting, because of their foreigness, but they are a hundred fold cleaner, a thousand fold lessmelly. The older and narrower streets, paved with heavy blocks of stone, are just as rough and noisy Little improvement has taken place in the wholesale district in the appearance of the houses themselves, but beld many offices of trust here. street, a Cuban organization too much given perhaps to gaming for the con-dition of the people, has failed. Its building is shortly to be occupied by the Spanish club, an organization of good character and morals, whose social features are among the most pleasant of the day. Many of the streets crossing the Prado in the northern section which were last spring in a wretched state have been so decidedly improved as hardly to be recognized. Colon, Trocadero, Animas, Virtudes and some nearer the sea have been substantially macadamized, attention having been given to drainage, whereby the lakes and puddles before making them almost impassable in places are altogether done away with. The Prado itself has been made the recipient of a great deal of labor, but the street is so abused by heavy traffic, which should be made to take to the side streets, as in all cities having boulevards for light driving, that it is difficult to keep it in ing, that it is difficult to keep it in repair. Eventually it will be paved The Tribune by M. S. Jordan & Co., with cement blocks or asphalted and made a most beautiful delva A record 5900: made a most beautiful drive. At present it quickly becomes dusty in dry weather and muddy in rainy seasons.

A SOURCE OF REGRET.

Law-abiding Americans, who realize that their example is far-reaching among a people whom our government is trying to teach the principles of good conduct and correct self-government, regret to see the encroachment upon the better part of Havana's residence and business district of American bar-rooms. This is not necessarily a question of morals or religion, but of governmental economics. few nights ago there was an "opening" of one of these places on the Prado. Passing it late at night I noticed that it was crowded with American prospectors and residents in a more or less glorious state of hilariousness, many of them well beyond self-control, while every sense. The market places of Havana have been improved in many particulars, though some of them will bear further overhauling and sanitation. The streets in the worst sections are daily sprinkled with disinfecting fluids, and whenever yellow fever or other serious illness shows itself in a particular district the sanitary force gets after it at once. All the sewers for surface water drainage are daily treated to chloride of lime, old gutters are flushed and likewise given attention, dingy and unwholesome walls are scraped and whitewashed, and garbage is removed from hotels, cafes, shops and residences with a promptness to which this populace has never before been accustomed.

ALONG THE PRADO.

Arriving at Central Park and tra versing the Prado again it is noticeo that improvement has been the orlar of the day. The park is cleaner and better kept. Where occupied last spring by Uncle Sam's troops, the Prade has been filled into the depth of several inches with gravel and treated to a heavy rolling with a steam roller; several of the business buildings have had another story a ide i, or this work is now going on; the Inglasary expenses during entire trip, $550 terra hotel has been enlarged by the addition of a three-story building to Railroad System east of Pittsburg; $545 the north, the upper floors of which from Pittsburg. For itinerary and full are to be used by this hostelry, and the whole course of the Prado has had the same treatment that has been accorded it in front of the Hotel Pasalo, where our troops formerly bivouacked. An especially delightful improvement is the lighting of the esplanade of the Prado by arc lights, a row of tall white poles having been planted in the center from La Punta to the south end of the course, beyond the Pasaje. This work has been well done, and as the nightly promenade of the Prado is a striking feature of Havana fife, the brighter light of the arc lights, elevated beyond the distance of annoyance to vision. makes the evening scenes of the esplanade especially attractive. Many changes have occurred on the Prado during the summer, some for the better, some, unfortunately, for the worse. To the south, beyond the park, the business district has been somewhat bettered by a higher class of shops having crowded out many of the dens formerly located thereon. New American shops have taken the place of some of the dingy ones of the Spanish regime, and modern American bars have found their way into some of the buildings in that section. A decided improvement in the character of the shops is also noticeable in the Pasaiarcade, though here there is yet room for betterment.

ONE BLEMISH.

Down the Prado to the north, where the promenading is done, there is also a considerable change. The American bar has, unfortunately, encroached upon this residence district. There are a number of cafes not here last spring. There has been some buildng in this section also, several new two-story houses having been erected during the summer, with others now hi the process of construction. Paint and calcimine have been liberally used, many a residence formerly dingy and weatherbesten showing now as a mod-ern and attractive home. The well-known Sport club, half way down the two-story houses having been erected

Wall Street Review.

New York, Jan. 31 .- Today's stock market showed the stimulating effect of yesterday's sharp advances and increased activity in a largely augmented outside demand. The commission houses had more buying orders to execute this morning than for many weeks past, and their brokers made a lively opening on the floor of the board room. The great activity of the market and the steadiness of prices during the first hours made it obvious that speculators who had bought stocks yesterday were feeling the new demand with a judicious liberality so as to realize profits on yesterday's rise and yet not disturb the new level of values. The steady and confident absorption of these offerings proved highly satisfactory to the professional builts and before the end of the first hour they commenced to bid up prices again and to take on new lines of stock. The market was a good deal unsettled by a sudden break of four points in sugar and the announcement of the failurof an important stock exchange house. The closing out of the accounts of this house under the rule of the exchange caused a pause in the speculative activity, though the shares were well absorbed and prices well sustained. The hest prices of the day in the majority of stocks were made after this episode, the demand from the short interest becoming eager and pressing for some of the stocks which have recently been targets for bear operations.

But while the frightened shorts were eager to cover it cannot be said that the bull contingent retained the same placid confidence during the latter part of the day. They disposed to avail themselves of the forced demand from the shorts to realize and prices yielded quite materially during the last hour. The mixed soutiments thus manifested were parily due to the facts disclosed by the day's incidents that an important part of yesterday's large buying was due to a reckless and inunchanged. temperate attempt to recoup bear loss-
