SORROW OF THE BAR EXPRESSED

ACTION ON THE DEATH OF JUDGE F. W. GUNSTER.

Resolutions Expressive of the Feelings of the Members of the Bar Adopted-Remarks by Judge Archbald, Judge Edwards, Ex-Justice Alfred Hand, Ex-Judge Willard. Attorney Welles, Colonel Watres, Colonel Hitchcock, Attorney Horn and Attorney Comegys.

In the main court room of the Court House a meeting of the Lackawanna County Bar association was held yesterday morning at 11 o'clock to express the sentiments of the bar with reference to the death of Hon. Frederick W. Gunster, the senior additional law judge of the county. There was a large attendance of the members of the bar whose sorrow was plainly evident. Each member felt that he had lost a kind and generous friend. The chair on the bench that had been occupied by Judge Gunster was heavily draped in

In the absence of Attorney J. H. Torrey, president of the Bar association. who was not in the city, Attorney C. H. Welles called the meeting to order and suggested Judge R. W. Archbald for chairman of the meeting. This suggestion was unanimously agreed to and in taking the chair Judge Archbald spoke feelingly of his departed associate. He said: "The blow has fallen. Death has come. The anticipated has happened. That which in anxiety and sorrow we have contemplated for the past three months is a certainty. Hon, Frederick W. Gunster, senior additional law judge of this county is dead. For the accound time in its history this court is compelled to mourn the loss of one of its members, stricken down in the midst of his labors, with his attainments at their highest, with the promise of the best work and the highest efficiency yet to come. Truly it is an occasion not only for the court and bar, but for the community at large to deplore his loss. A PROMINENT FIGURE.

"So prominent a figure has Judge Gunster been in the life, progress, and development of this city, so large a place has he filled in the public eye, that there is little that can be said, at this time, that is not already known. But very few, if any, have known him longer than have I. We were boys together in the High school of this city from its very earliest, until each went on his way to college. He was a few years my senior, and I looked up to him with emulation. Of not only a scholarly but a literary turn of mind, he stood foremost in his classes and ranked as a young man of the greatest promise. When he entered Williams' although brought in competition with one of the his t set of men ever graduated from that institution, he took rank with the best and graduated with the highest honors. Returning to this city his merits were anew recognized, and he entered upon the practice of the law, I remember well, when I entered on the study of the law, being advised to secure a place in his office although he had then been in heart the secure and th been in practice but three years. A few years later he was elected to the legislature, and the high vote which was given him showed the support which he received regardless of party. That was the second session after the adoption of the new constitution and the importance of the legislation to be considered was correspondingly great. But in that legislature there were to found some of the strongest men ever sent to the capital, of whom Ira T. Mitchell, Judge Albright and Judge Yerkes may be mentioned. Judge Gunster still held his own, and is spoken of to this day by those who met and knew him there.

"I do not need to mention the other more recent public honors which came to him. As first district attorney of the county, that office has never been more efficiently filled, and when by the resignation of Judge Hand, a va-cancy in this bench was to be filled, the bar, with marked unanimity, supported the nomination of Judge Gunster, and the people ratified the choice,

HIS RE-ELECTION. "Barely a year has passed since he was again nominated and elected, regardless of party. This recital conveys but a brief mention of the honor and positions of responsibility which he held, and they one and all testify to the confidence reposed in him by the people of the community.

"I might not so let this occasion pass "I might not so let this occasion pass without leaving my personal and official testimony to his worth. I have been associated with him for over eleven years. He was of the highest legal and judicial attainments, and never came to the consideration of a question before the court, without successive abservation man, it. He suggestive observation upon it. He was firm in his opinions, which were judicial, not personal, and he was fearless in the expression of them, as the occasion required. His life is now but a memory. But in recognition of its high worth, let us keep it green for the emulation and example of this as well as the early generations."

After Judge Archbald concluded, Atorney Joseph O'Brien was elected secretary of the meeting and on motion of ex-Justice Affred Hand, a committee of three was appointed to draw up suitable resolutions expressive of the sentiments of the bar with reference to the death of Judge Gunster. On this ommittee ex-Justice Hand, ex-Judge E. N. Willard and Attorney C. Comegys were named.

While the committee was preparing its report culogies were pronounced by several of those present. Judge H. M. Edwards said that he found it difficult to express his feelings in view of the great calamity that had befallen them. "I do not feel like commenting on the life of Judge Gunster in its manifold activities. I cannot assemble my thoughts to express what is in my heart this morning. It may be that after this dark cloud of sorrow has passed away that it will be possible for me and other members of this bar to do justice to the character and worth of Judge Gunster. I cannot do it now.

WORTH AS A LAWYER.

"Many of the older members of the bar know his great worth as a lawyer; they have felt his keen intellect and great mind in the trial of cases. These may speak of his great intellect for he was pre-eminent in this respect. Of this there is no doubt. I will not speak of his career as a judge, for that has been done by Judge Archbald with whom he was for years associated on the bench, but I will speak of the feeling that is uppermost in my mind, of his greatness as a man.

"For nearly a quarter of a century I have been associated with him, and as I look back how that period of time has flown. I read law with him and in my early career at the bar greatly indebted to him for his advice and assistance. He had a great mind and a great heart that always responded to the chords of sympthy.

many members of this bar felt his wondrous sympathy when they came before him to plead for some erring one and I have seen the tears in his eyes when his duty compelled him to pass sentence on some law breaker whose case appealed to him.

"Judge Gunster was truly one of the noblest characters I ever knew and our only consolation in this dark hour is that he has gone to his eternal rest and that his memory will be forever green.

Attorney C. H. Welles, who was Judge Gunster's law partner for seventeen years, said that his memory will ever be a fragrant one with those who knew him "I knew him at school," Mr. Welles said, "when he stood at the head of his class and where all predicted a brilliant future for him. During the seventeen years we were associated as partners I had an opportunity of knowing the man thoroughly and always found him the soul of honor. His whole life has been as an open book. He has stood at the head of his profession and of the jurists of the state and left us a record of his life work that is pregnant for good and that can well be followed by those who are entering the profession-

THE RESOLUTIONS.

Praise.
The versatility of Judge Gunste readers the just estimate of his mind and character no easy task. He was well versed in literature, vigorous and well versed in literature, vigorous and original in thought, ready of utterance, learned in the law, quick and clear in apprehension, elequent in expression, sound in judgment, peculiarly appreciative of the principles which underlie the political principles of our American liberty, at the same time that he understood the regits of the land which gave him birth.

A GIFTED ADVOCATE. As a lawyer he was gifted in the art of advocates and with scholarly acquisition, carnest and true, and defence of legal principles and individual rights, jealous of right and justice, courteous in his profession, true to court and client, and zealous of professional honor.

As a judge he was upright, impartial, strong, laborious, with partial, strong, laborious, with a thorough and comprehensive grasp of facts and legal principles. His opin-lons show ripe judgment, careful re-view of evidence. He won the esteem and spontaneous respect and love of his professional brethren, and courtesy sweetened his judicial, professional and social life.

As a man and citizen we join with thousands of his fellow citizens in laying on his brier our profound and hearty tribute to his worth, his de-portment and rounded character. It was anchored in the apprehension and acceptance of the priceless virtues of religious faith and experience. His death is a personal loss to every citi-zen of this county. In his band we could all feel that the rights of the individual, society, business, and the home are absolutely safe.

Mr. Hand spoke of the fact that Judge Gunster, like all truly great men, approached public office with many misgivings as to his ability. When tendered the judgeship he consuited with the speaker about the acceptance of it. "I had no doubt of his qualifications; I had no doubt of his sincerity and I had no doubt about the success that was to come to him in the discharge of his judicial duties," said the speaker. "It is a significant fact that in Lackawanna county, where the race for office is usually bitter, this man was twice, by almost the universal voice of the people, called to the office he so adorned. This constitutes the greatest eulogy of him that could be written. His death is an irreparable loss to this court and bar."

JUDGE WILLARD'S TRIBUTE. Ex-Judge E. N. Willard spoke with nuch feeling of the dead judge. "We have met here," he said, "to take suitable action on the death of a member of this court, we have met to mourn the death of one of Pennsylvania's brightest jurige, for few men were so well titted intellectually and morally for the office of judge as Frederick W. Cunster. There is a vacant place on this bench and in social and business circles and in the book of true friendship that cannot easily be filled. There is a vacant place in what was one of the happiest nomes in the city, and there is a vacant place in St. Peter's cathedral where he worshipped God according to the dictates of his conplicit confidence in his redeemer and knowing his faith and trust I cannot but believe he is today sitting at the right hand of that redeemer he so loved. As we gaze at his remains for the last time we will say farewell to a great and just judge."

Ex-Judge W. H. Jessup said he could not let the occasion pass without expressing the deep emotion he felt on earing the news of the death of Judge Gunster. "I cannot help but think," Judge Jessup said. "that his death has lesson for all of us. This man was stricken down in his strength and in the fulness of his power and the lesson this brings home to us is 'be ye also ready.' That is the lesson I take home o myself; that is the lesson that ought to be impressed on the members of this bar and on this community for the sorrow his death has caused is not cirumscribed by these walls, but is as wide as the community."

Short addresses were also delivered y Colonel L. A. Watres, Colonel F. L. Hitchcock, George S. Horn and C. Comegys. Mr. Comegys moved that a committee of three be appointed to secure a suitable picture of the deceased udge which will be hung in the court This committee will be an- Waynesburg Man Wants to Find room. nounced later.

Attorney Welles announced that It as the wish of the family that pallearers and flower bearers be selected from among the members of the bar and on motion of Mr. Welles, Judge Archbald named the following: Pallbearers, George S. Horn, O'Brien, F. L. Fuller, J. H. Torrey and Hon. H. A. Knapp; flower-bearers, John M. Harris, W. S. Diehl, Robert J. Murray and P. W. Stokes. The bar adjourned to meet again at recover. It was at first feared that on account of his old age and the fact that his injuries were very severe, that it would be impossible for him to live. but he is now doing very nicely and high hopes are entertained of his pulling through.

Of the other men brought to the hospital as a result of the accident one. John Smith, was discharged a few days later, and the other one is now practically cured and will probably leave the institution in a few days.
