DR. MOFFAT DISCUSSES "EVIL WITHIN THE CHURCH."

Discipline in Church Government Is More for Correction Than Ejection, Which Is Only Meant for Those Who Are Notoriously Evil in Their Lives-Rev. Frank J. Milman Appointed to Temporary Vacancy. Father Mathew Anniversary. Other Notes and Personals.

Rev. J. P. Moffat, D. D., paster of the Washburn Street Presbyterian church, delivered a timely and effective sermon yesterday morning to a large congregation on "Evil Within the Church." His text was taken from Matt. xiii, 30, and he spoke in part as

"The church is the place wherein holiness is produced, but in that case the evidence of the fact ought to be manifested; that is, the holiness of those within ought to be conspicuous. No faulty person or thing ought to be retained in it; but the church will not

"While its membership manifests a holiness superior to that of the world, yet there are many within it who are bad. This always has been so. The idea of a perfect church either in doctrine or discipline at some place or time in the past is an empty imagina-

"However, it is probably more near to ideal purity today than ever before. Ought not then a society with such claims and such sanctions to adopt the most drastic methods to bring the outward church to conform to the inward

"An attempt has been made to eject and eliminate all that is faulty in the church of today and was made centuries ago, but to adopt even reasonable methods would defeat the very purpose of the church. Practically, the church must be as broad as the field within which it works.

"Discipline in church government is more for correction than ejection. Ejection is only meant for those who are flagrantly, notoriously evil in their lives. No human agency can be trusted to assort the good and the bad. "Much of the unrest in the Presby terian church arising from doctrinal discipline, in my judgment, has been unnecessary. It has become a fad in these latter days upon the part of certain classes of men to say something antagonistic to orthodox truths. Books are then written, our secular and religious papers give whole columns of free advertising and the books are in demand, but most of the socalled heretical books would die a speedy death were they not so continually brought before the public. "In manner and actions the ethical distinction upon which Christianity rests is too subtle for us to decide which is the right and the wrong when applied to the individual. Can you draw a sharp line between good and bad impulses?

"They shade into one another. When does thrift become selfishness? When does righteous imagination become anger? When does gentleness become softness? The power entrusted to the church is to bind and loose things, not persons, not whomsoever ye bind on "The church represents the organized moral hopefulness of the race, but there will be a harvest-the everlasting distinction between good and bad, Righteousness shall be rewarded and unrighteousness shall be punished."

OBITUARY

Amara A. Swingle, aged 61 years, died nt his home, 511 Main street, Peckville, on Saturday afterroon. Death was due to heart trouble. Deceased was born Match 12, 1825, at Cherry Ridge, Wayne county, Pa. At the age of 10 years his father, Joseph Swirgle, tendered him a position as driver on a canal boat of which his father had charge. The boat plied between Honesdale and Rondout. On his leaving the canal service he entered school at Prompton. Pa., and later was made a teacher of a district school in Cherry Ridge township. He retained the school two years and in 1862 he left home and came to Archbald. where he secured a position at the coal colliery of Simpson & Eaten, now known as the Jenes & Simpson colliery. He remained with this company several years and when he left their employ he was acting as coal inspector. The Delaware and Hudson company offered him the position of weighmaster, which he ac-cepted and in February, 1867, was trans-ferred from the Archbald colliery to the Grassy Island colliery of the Delaware and Hudsen company, located at Peckville. In April of that year he was mar-ried to Miss Jennie Curtis, of Hamlinton, Pa. Four children have been born to them, three of whom are living, youngest, a daughter, Hattle M., died in 1884. Deceased held the position of weighmaster under the Delaware and Hudsen company for ten years and in 1879 he was made deputy postmaster to the late Joseph Travis, which position he held until the death of Mr. Travis on April 4. 1889. He was by appointment under the Harrison administration made postmas-ter in 1895. The office was raised to the third class, but the next year on account of an office being opened up at Jessup it was reduced to fourth class. Since that time, owing to his efforts the office has again been made an office of the third class. He was received on probation at the Cherry Ridge Methodist batton at the Cherry Riage Methodist Episcopal church on Jamaary 22, 1835, and on August 27 of the same year was re-ceived as a member of that church, Since his residence here he has been an earnest member of the Peckville Meth-odist Episcopal church and was a faith-ful attackent with illness consulted his Daniel Jenkins, of Oak street, is suffering with a severe attack of the grip.

SPORTSMEN ARE ANXIOUS.

Wondering What Will Be Done with Porter's Lake. Scores of fishermen and gunners in these towns and vicinity are wondering what will be done with Porter's lake after April when that famous resort passes into the hands of a trio of Philadelphians. Last week the deed recording the transaction was filed at Milford. Few know the early history of this great sporting place. The township in which it lies was erected Dec. 16, 1851, from parts of Delaware and Lehman and named for James H. Porter, a prominent Easton lawyer, who for many years practiced in Pike's courts. In 1849 he purchased several tracts of land, the one covering the pond of H. Dewey, and others of James Place, John T. Cross and Allen Cuthbert, in all above two thousand acres, and built a house on the shore of what was then called Fifteen Mile pond. The lake was known originally as Teddyusking and now is commonly called Porter's pond,
