BRITISH-BOER WAR

REV. JAMES HUGHES SAYS IT IS FOR JUSTICE AND RIGHT.

> Spoke Last Evening Before a Large Audience in the Penn Avenue Baptist Church-Gave a Detailed Account of the Causes Leading Up to the Struggle and Made the Statement That the Transvaal Republic Is Not a Republic But An

"The idea of annexation was never in the mind of the English nation until the Boers entered British territory and fired the first hostile shot, and I question very much if she would annex the Transvaal now should peace be declared tomorrow providing the Boer republic would pay the war indemnity."

Thus did the Rev. James Hughes reply to those persons who claim that the British-Boer war was precipitated by the "lust of empire" and the "greed for gold." in a lecture on the war delivered last evening in the Penn avenue Baptist church. Rev. Mr. Hughes proved a most entertaining speaker, possessed of a wide knowledge of South African affairs, obtained from residence of ten years in that part of the world. Being formerly a loyal subject of Her Majesty, the Queen, he of course spoke from the English standpoint, but his remarks were received with every manifestation of approval by the large iudience present.

In beginning his remarks he stated that war was deplerable at all times. ind that this one especially so on acount of the injurious effect it will work on the minds of the natives who ere being taught that Christianity is for peace, yet now have the spectacle of two Christian nations at war.

HE LIKES THE BOERS.

He liked the Boers for many things, he stated; for their love of freedom; for their strong and statwart patriotism, and for their deep religious instincts. "But." said he, "in considering this question we must distinguish between men and nations." In describing the Christianity of the Boers he quoted Horace Greeley's definition of a certain class of people. "They are feligious but not civilized." also quoted a remark made by one of the most enlightened Boers to be truest friends, who said in describing

The treaty of 1884 between the Transvaal and Great Britain was described nery, a friend of his, also had vitriol in detail, and the provisions of it were recounted by the speaker after he had told of the serious war which had preceded this agreement. Soon after it gerty and Dr. J. J. Waish were in at- had been signed gold was discovered endance on the men, and yesterday and immediately the Boers became decided, that in view of the extent of insolent, glorying in their indepen-Philbin's injuries, it was best for him dence. They never stopped taunting o be sent to the hospital. The story the English on the victories they had of the affair told to a Tribune man won over the latter, even the president himself boasting that England had shown the white flag.

"If you pick at a small sore on your hand you spread inflammation," said Mr. Hughes, "and the Boers by their taunts and jeers spread political inas it was too late to get a car for flammation." Continuing he said: "What is called the Transvaal reblic is not a republic back of the barroom, and went to a misnomer and a misfit. A republic is as Lincoln said, 'A nation ruled for about half an hour when Philbin sud- the people by the people,' but that doesn't apply in their case. Out of terrible burning in his feet. Just as the 266,000 inhabitants, 60,000 only are Boers, and out of this latter number only $,000 have a vote to elect the men bers of the Volksraad. This Volksraad elects an executive council of seven. which rules the Volksraad and th president in turn rules the executive council. It is more like an autocracy and is almost an oligarchy."

NOT FOR CONQUEST.

In refuting the statement that the war was solely for conquest, the speaker, in addition to the remark made at the beginning of this article. quoted from Lord Salisbury's speech at the lord mayor's dinner, in which the latter said that "England never wanted their gold, she only wanted that the white people of the country be given what is theirs in justice and in right." Rev. Hughes also quoted Cardinal Vaughan's letter in which the latter said the war was one of justice and in which he called upon the Catholic clergy of England to pray for the success of the British arms.

He then described a political meeting he once attended in Johannesburg. at which the Uitlanders present drew up a set of moderate demands for equal rights in the government and sent them to the parliament with a graceful note couched in courteous language, requesting that that body take some action on them. The note was passed around from hand to hand when it reached the Volksraad amid a chorus of jeers, and an eye-witness stated that finally one burgher read it, laughed aloud and tore it into shreds, remarking: "If that's wha: they want they'll have to fight for it." He described at length the various offers of equal rights made to prospective investors by the Boer government and how these promises were not fulfilled: the time of residence before naturalization papers could be taken out having been rapidly raised from twelve months to fourteen years. "Thus." said the speaker, "the mer who furnish the energy, brains and muscle of the country and who have developed it into what it is, are practically debarred from the rights of citizenship."

THE CONSERVATORY RECITAL. Large Audience Enjoyed It in

Guernsey Hall. conservatory recital, given last night at Guernsey hall, was an unqualified success. There was not even standing room for the throngs that surged at the doors. It was a fine programme, Mr. Pennington's piano pupils and members of Miss Timberman's class in voice culture appearing. Miss Duncan's solo work was much enjoyed, her method showing marked improvement and great capabilities.

Piano numbers were rendered with excellent effect by Miss Stella Parks. Miss Gwen Stetler, Miss Florence Peck. Miss Grace Browning, Miss Follansbee, and Harry Wilkins. The piano ensemble class, including Misses Hutchinson, Conrad, Bone, Wagenburst Browning, Gerlock, Foliansbee and Mr. Wilkins did exceptionally good work. Miss Mildred Howe read a Riley selection with pleasing effect and Ralph Williams sang delightfully, as he al-

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT.

There Is a Strong Possibility That Scranton Will Have a Ball Club Next Beason.

The outlook for base ball in Scranton for the season of 1900 seems bright. Prominent Scrantonians who are patrons of the sport have had their interest aroused and great efforts are being made to establish a team in the Atlantic league here, the directors of which organization held a meeting in Wilkes-Barre Monday.

As a result of that meeting Scranton was yesterday visited by a committee consisting of President Horace S. Fogel, of Philadelphia; "Billy" Sharsig, manager of the Allentown club; W. A. Clymer, manager of the Wilkes-Barre team, and Secretary George Zimmerman, of Allentown.

The gentlemen, in company with M. E. Sanders, John Kern and Chauncey Derby, visited local enthusiasts yesterday to enlist their services in the bringing of a team to Scranton.

It is intended to support the team by popular subscription and to do this $3,000 must be pleaged, which amount would tide the team over the season. Among the prominent local lovers of base ball interested in this scheme may be mentioned City Treasurer Edward Robinson and John and Thomas Brooks, all of whom have been connected with former Scranton teams, City Treasurer Robinson, when seen yesterday by a Tribune man, said:

"I am interested in base ball and I would be glad to see a team here. I think it a good idea to have the money raised by popular subscription and I certainly would be willing to put in my share, for the pleasure of seeing Scranton again represented on the diamond." Others spoke in a similar

Among the men mentioned as manager of the team are "Sandy" Griffin, the manager of Scranton's last East ern league team; Walter Burnham, of Portland, Me., and M. J. Finn, of New-port, R. I. All are anxious to come Frank P. Thyne, of Lowell, Mass., and George Black, of London Ontario, are two other men who are after the managership.

The circuit of the league would be a short, compact one, the cities comprising it if Scranton joins being arranged as follows. The teams being paired off into Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, Allentown and Reading, Harrisburg and Lancaster and Elmira and Binghamton. Atlantic City and Trenton, or Newark, might also be allowed in, making a ten club circuit. Messrs. Sanders and Kern will today begin the task of securing the necessary pledges of money to support the

by Rev. D. J. MacGoldrick. "What It Is to be a Jesuit." was the subject of an unusually interesting address by Rev. D. J. JUDGE CRITICIZES AN ADMINISTRATOR

CAN'T SEE HOW THE EXPENSE BILL WAS FIGURED OUT.

When an Account Is Submitted Showing What Is Exactly and Justly Due the Court Will Sce What It Can Do to Secure Payment of the Bill-Claim That the Gas and Water Company's Tanks Are on the Delaware and Hudson Right of Way.

An interesting opinion was filed yes erday by Judge Archbald in the matter of the rule to revoke the order of sale made in the estate of Joseph Rydzy, deceased.

Rydzy died in the insane department of the Hillside Home, September 7, 1897. Nearly two years later, August 14, 1899, the administrator, George M. Okell, applied for and secured an order to sell the real estate of the deceased, a lot of land on Austin Heights, Before the order could be executed, how ever, the widow came in with a petition for a rule to revoke the order of sale, alleging that the debt to liquidate which the sale was to be made was not valid.

This debt was a book account of $266 alleged to be owing to Joseph Josephs. The administrator also presented for liquidation a bill of $100 for administration expenses and $50 for counsel

When the case came to be argued, the supporters of the order of sale did not strenuously contend against the claim that if the sale was not executed within two years of the decedent's death, the debts which occasioned it lapsed as liens, but they urged that the administrator's claims were subject to this limitation and that the Josephs' claim had been made a lien by a recovery in Alderman Kasson's court and the lien thereby extended.

Judge Archbald, after reviewing these facts at length, decides that the Josephs' claim has lapsed, holding that a simple recovery "in an obscure corner like the office of a Justice of the peace or alderman," not prosecuted to a judgment in a court of record, does not suffice to meet the requirements of the spirit of the law, as he supplies it from the letter. The Josephs' claim being dropped out of consideration, the question remained. "Shall the order of sale stand on the strength of the administrator's ex-penses?" To this, Judge Archbald gives a negative reply, basing his finding primarily on the fact that an account is wanting, but intimating that some lateral features will enter into the final determination of the matter He says in the concluding paragraph. egarding these expenses:

"How they could amount to any such sum in this small estate it is difficult to see. Nothing has been done except to cite the widow to take out letters and then file the petition in controversy, two very simple and inexpensive matters. But without prejudging that part of the case, we are satisfied that the administrator ought to settle his account and show what is justly and exactly due him, and we will then accord him the aid of the court to get from the realty all that he is found to be entitled to. Rule made absolute the order of sale set aside, and the petition dismissed without prejudice."

Who Wants to Be No. 4? For the thire time in her marital career Mrs. Clara Widener Webster was freed from the nuptial yoke yesterday, when court granted a decree in divorce in the case brought by her latest husband, John G. It was her wont, so Webster says to get up from the supper table and go out for the evening, and then, upon her return, wake him up and curs him for not having the nishes washed. Once he came home suffering from cold and after taking some hot drink went to bed to sweat it out. He woke up during the night and found that his wife had opened the windows When he upbraided her she said she wanted him to take more cold. She also threatened to poison him and on more than one occasion expressed a
