As a safeguard for the future, the secretary of the board of health will send each morning to the library a complete list of all cases of contagious disease reported to the board on the preceding day. These lists will be kept on file in the library and books will be refused to all the families in which the disease exists. By this means all danger of contagion is removed.

Dr. Allen stated yesterday that he believed the books had been thoroughly fumigated and that all disease germs, if any existed, had been destroyed. The fumigating process has been done in a vault which is absolutely air-tight and must, therefore, have been effective. There will undoubtedly be a rush for books all day Thursday, as every book is now in, and patrons who have made desperate efforts for months past to secure a copy of "David Harum," "Richard Carvel," "When Knighthood Was in Flower," or any of the other 'popular" novels will run a good chance
