SPOKE ON MISSIONARY WORK. Address of Mrs. Bennett in the First

Presbyterian Church. A large number of ladies gathered in the First Presbyterian church parlors yesterday at the missionary meeting, to which the societies of the city had been invited. Mrs. James McLeod presided, Miss Richmond read the secretary's report and Mrs. C. R. Fuller gave the report of the treasurer.

A feature of the afternoon was a solo by Mrs. George du Bols Dimmick, whose lovely voice is heard far too seldom by the multitude of those with whom she has so long been a favorite. She sang with finished taste and charm Hear Us, O Father."

Mrs. Bennett, who was formerly so well known as Miss Jones, was grace-fully introduced by Mrs. McLeod. She spoke from the passages "They helped every one each other," "Be of good cheer." It has been but little more than twenty-two years," she said, "since the Presbyterian women were told at a meeting in Pittsburg that they might do some little work for the church. Today one hundred and twenty-four mission stations belong to the women." She spoke of the Mormon question, and gave it as her opinion that if the Women's goard of Home Missions had not taken up the matter with such thorough knowledge, such method and determination, without that organization, W. H. Roberts would have been seated in congress. Yet the opportunities which are not grasped are sometimes appalling. If a missionary had to reach everybody who needs to be helped the outlook would be discouraging indeed. The missionary worker reaches few, but the record of her influence cannot thus be circumscribed. Illustrations were given in experience with the Nez Perces. No liquors sold on the reservation, this is true, but waron loads of liquor halt just across the border line and on the semi-annual pay days the money given for the support of the Indian families for the next six months is spent in a few hours at these perambulating saloons.

She then spoke of the work of Miss Macbeth and her wonderful work in this tribe. She reached but a few-a child, a mother, an Indian man nov and then, but the influence goes out through these solitary Christians and is wide-reading indeed. Mrs. Bennett gave many incidents relating to work among the Indians in the home field. They make of themselves missionaries to their own people. The Indian women walk five and six miles and more, carrying one baby on their backs and another in the arms to attend the missionary meetings. Here at home we think it too much trouble to dress and walk a few rods to attend

Mrs. Bennett is a rapid, pleasant speaker, and is so full of her subject that she engages the most interested

ELKS WERE DEFEATED.

Result of the Bowling on Backus Alleys Last Night.

The bowling match on the Backus alleys between the Backus and Elk teams last evening proved a big sacprise to nearly all the parties concerned. The Elks have been popularly considered the strongest of the local teams, but their showing last night was decidedly poor, while their opponents, on the contrary, bowled a very fine game.

The Elks were unable to secure a game, being defeated in the three matches played. Weber, of the Backus team, carried off the evening's honors with a high score of 192 and an average of 171. Charles Weichel was the high Elk with 178, and also led his side in averages with 163 1-3. The detailed scores follow:

THESE LECTURERS SAID SOMETHING

THEY, HOWEVER, HAD A RE-GRETABLY SMALL AUDIENCE.

Under the Auspices of the Household Economics Section of the Green Ridge Women's Club. Colonel Morse and Mr. Wingate, Two of New York's Celebrated Engineers, Interestingly Discuss Practical Sanitation and Point Out How Scranton Can Be Improved Effectually and Cheaply.

It is to be deeply regretted that less than half a hundred persons attended the lectures given by Colonel W. F. Morse and Charles F. Wingate, of New York, given last night at the board of trade assembly room under the auspices of the household economics section of the Green Ridge Women's club. There were two hours of solid information of which many should have taken advantage, especially those for whom it was more cirectly intended.

Colonel Morse lectured on "Munici-al Sanitation." Two city officials heard him. Mr. Wingate, reputed to be the leading sanitarian of the country, dealt with "What Every Should Know About Household Sanitation." Few women outside of the members of the club were present to avail themselves of this knowledge.

Mayor Moir, who presided at the meeting, expressed himself as almost disgusted at the meagre attendance. The two distinguished engineers give up two days of their time, undertake ten hours travel and go to the trouble of preparing addresses based on a personal diagnosis of the city's allments and then for their "thank you" job are repaid with a very uncomplimentary audience, in the matter of size. It was rather unencouraging to the members of the women's club, too, as this was their most pretentious effort along their line of work.

It was especially desirable, the mayor said, that the city fathers should have attended the lectures. The profound ignorance of the principles of sanitary science that prevails is most remarkable, he said. The city fathers, he added, do not know its A, B C. Sanitation has made London one of the most healthy, if not the most healthy, of the big cities, the mayor pointed out. It has reduced the death rate from eighty in a thousand to twentytwo in a thousand. His honor also paid a high compliment to the work the Women's club has done and is doing, and assured them of his hearty co-

COLONEL MORSE'S LECTURE. Colonel Morse's lecture was made especially interesting from the fact

he localized it in a large measure, Dealing with the sewage question ne pointed out the fact that many states have forbidden the dumping of sewage into running streams; that Pennsylvania is about to pass a similar law and that when it does Scranton will be confronted with the problem of finding something to substitute for the Lackawanna river as a sewage

Of the various means of meeting this emergency he considered the scheme used at the World's Fair to be the best and cheapest. The sewage is carried into large tanks by a process of separated from the deleterious matter and can be run off into the river, for t is no longer a pollution. The residue is solidisted and can be burned in a crematory without giving the least san-Itary offense. The askes make a most excellent fertilizer.

The absence of any system of garbage collection in this city was the object of some attention from Colonel Morse. He figured, by using statistics. that the householders of this city spend from $50,000 to $60,000 a year for having garbage, refuse and ashes carted away. In twenty cities where this work is done by the city through a contractor the cost per capita is 18 cents a year. In a dozen large cities that do the work themselves the cost is 22 cents. Applying this to Scranton, a saving could be made every year of from $30,600 to $40,000, or more than half, and the work would not be so imperfectly done as at present. At this juncture he commented on ash piles containing putrefying matter, which he saw in many localities while being shown about the city yesterday. The plan of dealing with refuse brought to this country from Buda Pesth by the late Colonel Waring, of New York, is sure to be generally adopted, Colonel Morse predicted. This scheme is to have the refuse litt separate from the garbage by providing separate receptacles to the household-

Each man looks out for a different sort of article and as he picks it up he packs it in a case or crate by his side, ready to be shipped to market. "If you will give me your city's refuse free, I will light your city free," said Colonel Morse.

The question of water and food inspection and the duty of boards of health to rigidly enforce the health laws were also touched upon. Mr. Wingate devoted his attention mainly to "dampness." Soil, he explained, is a mass of molecules. Take a glass filled with shot and see what a large amount of water can be poured into it. This space is in the soil in like manner. Throw some water on the ground and it disappears. Gradually It works its way to hard pan, or bed rock and settles. The stagnation is followed by a contamination of the air in the soil above it. A shower comes soaks into the ground, displaces this air, forces it up and out of the ground and then you get your diseases.

New York city's engineering departwhere swamps have been filled in and water courses covered over. The board of health has a map with black blocks on it, showing where epidemics have raged repeatedly. By laying one map the board of health map and the 'damp" sections on the engineer's map will be found to correspond.

DRAIN THE SOIL.

"Drain your soil," said Mr. Wingats, with emphasis. "Drain your soil. It is the first, last and most important He could go blindfolded, he thing." said, through this city and pick out the portions where epidemics are went to originate. Depressed places without sewers can't be healthful. He had examined into our system of sewers and coked through the plans City Engineer Phillips has under way for extending and improving them, and he found enough to convince him that our engineer is all right. "Just sustain stimulate him," Mr. Wingate added. He then gave a number of practical suggestions for caring for interior plumbing, pointing out where dangers lurk and telling how to avoid or remove these dangers. Briefly stated, his advice was, spare not eternal vigilance, elbow grease and time, and always have your plumbing done by the best plumber, as there is no such thing as a cheap plumber. He also very em-phatically pointed out the danger of disease contagion from sweat shop clothing, and advised mothers to look for the union label when buying this class of manufactured goods.

In concluding, he said: "Fool men have been building houses for 6,000 years and they haven't built a good one yet. We won't have a perfect house until we have women as our architects. A woman has a nose for 'smells,' the more pronounced tendency to cleanliness, and a mother's instinct for the care of health. The hope of the future is in the women."

Mayor Moir, in closing the meeting, assured the visitors that the city of Scranton could be relied upon to do anything within reason that ought to

PARAGRAPHS OF A POLITICAL NATURE

INTEREST IN TUESDAY'S ELEC-TION INCREASING.

Viaduct Proposition Is Being Boomed and Is Also Being Actively Opposed-Lively Battles in a Number of Wards-Candidates for Republican Nominations for Legislature Are Coming to the Front-Candidates for State Delegate Have Not Yet Begun to Come Out.

During the week there has been a lecided increase of interest in Tuesday's city election. The work of the committee that is booming the viaduct project is in part responsible for this, They have gone at the task in real ment has a topographical map showing | earnest and are spreading broadcast their argument in favor of the construction of the much needed overver the West Luckahead rend ssing. The opposure have not been nents of on top of the other, the black blocks on | idle, however. They have supplied themselves with a variety of placards requesting the voters not to increase the city debt and not to do a number of other things the doing of which would be calculated to help the viaduct proposition. Little is heard of the proposition to increase the city's indebtedness for the purpose of constructing sewers. On account of its general character it is expected to meet with favor. ward fights are progressing with vim and energy. In some instances the contests are extremely heated. warmest fights are being waged in the Third, Fifth and Fifteenth ward, while in the Second, Sixth, Seventh, Eleventh, Twelfth and Twentieth very interesting battles are also in progress.

There will be no dearth of candidates for the legislature in any of the four districts of the county, judging from the crop that was brought forth publiely within the forty-eight hours following the printing of the call for the first of the district conventions, that of the Second district, which appeared in Wednesday morning's papers. This and that man had been, now and then, talked of as a possible or probable candidate during the past few months but it remained for the announcement that convention time was at hand to bring out definitely those who were to be considered full fledged aspirants. The four present representatives with one accord either personally or through their close friends gave it to be understood, whenever and wherever it was deemed desirable that such understanding should prevail that they were seeking re-election and seeking it very much in earnest. In the First district, Hon. John R. Farr has served notice that he will run again and is putting forth the argument that having obtained some influence, as is evidenced by his having been elected speaker, it follows that he can be of more value to the district than a beginner and that the district could do worse than returning bim for another term. M. E. Sanders, who was a candidate four years ago against Mr. Farr, and who had been suggested as a suitable candidate from North Scranton to again combat with Mr. Farr for the Select and common councils met last legislative honors, has decided not shy just now at fickle politics. No Democrat has as yet announced

E. Gaffney says he is totally at sea as to who will be selected. The onesidedness of the district, he fears, will cause the office to go begging as usual. Benson Davis, ex-member of the board or control, has been mentioned as possible candidate for the Democratic nomination.

In the Second district, Hon. Alex T. Connell, predecessor of Mr. Scheuer, is being boomed by his friends for a return to Harrisburg and is disposed to take up the fight. Mr. Scheuer will be a candidate to succeed himself. M. D. Flaherty, who gave Mr. Scheuer such lively tussle two years ago, is the only Democrat to present himself for the nomination up to date. He said yesterday that he is in the field and unless something unexpected should occur to change his mind, he will remain in till the fight is over. Ex-Sheriff Fahey is being talked of as a likely candidate, and Attorney P. W. Galagher is frequently mentioned when possibilities are discussed. In the Third district, an extremely lively fight is assured if Representative Mackey persists in seeking a re-election. Select Councilman Edward James, of the Sixth ward, is in the field and already has accomplished not a little in the way of campaigning. John R. Johns, of Taylor, is also candidate, but it is understood he is not disposed to do anything that would tend to strengthen Dr. Mackey's chances. No Democrat has yet dis-closed his intention of entering the lists in the Third.

P. A. Philbin, editor of the Archbald Citizen, and James Quick, of Dunmore, are looking for the Republican nomination in the Fourth. Representative Timlin so far is unopposed in his own party.

The Fourth is the only district in which a candidate for state delegate nas made his wants publicly known. Tax Collector William Correll, of Dunmore, is the candidate. The district is entitled to another delegate and he will likely come from up the valley Formerly three delegates were apportioned to the district, but Dr. Swailow cut the Republican vote to such an extent that the district's representation has been decreased one-third. When the other districts will held their primaries has not as yet been definitely decided, but the calls are likely to come any day.
