The Watkins family, of Taylor, rendered several musical selections during the evening and Philip H. Warren his usual pleasing manner. sang in Lillian LaBar, a clever little child, gave two recitations. This evening an attractive programme will be given and many articles disposed of. Mon-day evening the Hillside Home band will play and Tuesday evening the fair will close with a grand concert.

CHILDREN'S TEA PARTY.

About two hundred children, comprising the infant department of the Jackson Street Baptist Sunday school, were given a very enjoyable tea party at the church Thursday afternoon. A very interesting programme was given, to further the enjoyment of the children, The participants were from among their own number. A number of selections were also given on a phonograph, which furnished a great deal of amusement for the little ones. After the entertainment the children were served with sandwiches, cake and coffee, and each child was presented with a bag of candy.

The teachers of the school waited on the children and did all in their power to make the day as pleasant as pos-sible. In this they succeeded very well,
