SCORES ORDER "SAPHO."

Will Mayor Kilpatrick Act as Dramatic Censor for Carbondale?

Thousands have had their morbid orders for the book. It is reported that the mayor of Scranlog has domanded a private re-hearsal of the piece in order that he may determine whether it is too im-the decision of the Democratic party moral for the good people of that city. The play will be presented at the Grand Wednesday night unless Mayor Kilpatrick should turn dramatic censor, moral philosopher, require a private re-hearsal and place his heel firmly on the serpent's head.

Should be pursue such a course the outcome of the novel situation would be watched with exceptional interest. Is the mayor equal to the emergency?

SWIGERT NOT NOTIFIED.

Evidently something is wrong with the membership book of the secretary Swigert, of select, named Messrs, Thompson and Eaton. The latter be-ing unable to act, Mr. Swigert substituted himself. Now he says he has not received a single notification of meeting, notwithstanding the fact that the committee has had several sessions since that time. Dr. Wheeler, who was also to be considered a member of the enlarged committee, seems to have street, spent yesterday with Tompkins-been arbitrarily dropped from the list, ville friends,

The Price Library association held another interesting meeting in their rooms on Friday evening. The assointion is progressing nicely in their line of work and a large membership is being enrolled. The members are very active and are working with zeal and the prospects look very bright for the association. The feature of Friday evening's meeting was the question box. Some questions furnished excel-lent subjects for discussion, while some more contained subjects which caused much laughter. During the session Mr. William Stone gave a club swinging exhibition, which was rendered in a faultless manner. The next meeting will be of such interest as prizes will be awarded to best two improrpty speeches and additional music will also be rendered.

During the day the cock sparrow would leave the nest and, hopping about the baskets of the cottage fishermen, would help himself to a piece of whatever was being used for bait and disappear beneath th pler. To the "regulars" on the pler he became a steady caller. Every morning at 6 o'clock the cock sparrow would present himself to the first angler to appear, and he would hop upon the balt basket as if he had a mortgage upon its contents. After eating his fill the cock sparrow would disappear with food for his mate and little ones beneath the pier. The sparrows became known to the cottagers who frequented the pler, and so friendly did the birds become they would necept food from the hands of the children. On more than one occasion the sparrows were driven from their nest by the rolling waves, and on particularly stormy days the birds would spend the day under one of the benches on the pler, between the fishermen's feet, but they never, apparently, ven tured in as far as land.

Several interested fishermen followed the cock sparrow along the pier as it was washed ashore, and when picke up a stab wound was seen directly heneath the left wing, which probably penetrated the heart. Old fishermen say the sea robin can and will fight better in midair than in the water, and they declared that the wound unde the sparrow's wing was made by the fish's sword or forward fin
