WELSH AMERICANS HONOR ST. DAVID

IVORITES AND FRIENDS BAN-QUET AT HOTEL TERRACE.

Brilliant Assembly of Young People Attend the Annual Dinner-Attorey John R. Edwards Presided and Professor George Howell Was Toastmaster-Addresses by John J. Davies, Hon. James Moir, Hon. John R. Farr, Attorneys W. R. Lewis, W. Gaylord Thomas and Charles E. Daniels.

The younger Welsh-Americans of spoke on "Welsh Loyalty," the toast-west Scranton, who have undertaken master referred to the fact that above the pleasant task of perpetuating the memory of St. David, which has hitherto been the custom of their parents, assembled at Hotel Terrace last evening, under the auspices of the Robert Morris lodge of American True Ivorites, and enjoyed several hours of feasting and speechmaking. The first part of the programme was discussed at some length, and the music played by Bauer's men added much to the pleasure of the occasion. The menu was par excellence and served in a satisfac-

The second part included speeches by John R. Edwards, Prof. George Howell, John J. Davies, Mayor Moir, W. R. Lewis, Hon. John R. Farr, W. Gaylord Thomas and Charles E. Daniels, and vocal numbers by the Elm Park quartette, Miss Thomas, Mrs. Rundle, Alfred Wooler and Philip Warren. Charles Doersam, planist, accompanied the sing-

The guests entered the dining room at 9 o'clock, while Bauer's orchestra were playing popular airs, the speakers occupying the first table at the head of the dining room. On either side tables were spread the full length of the room, and in the centre groups of eight and four occupied two smaller

A BLESSING ASKED. After the blessing by Rev. H. H. Harris, paster of the Calvary Reformed church, of Taylor, the guests sat down to enjoy the menu, which included:

Blue Points, Haif Shell
Puree of Chicken
Boiled Sea Trout Hollandaise
Olives Celery
Roast Young Turkey, Stuffed

Potato Croquetts String Beans
Punch a la Terrace
Clam Pattis Saute of Mushrooms
Green Peas

Lettuce and Tomato Salad Mayonnaise Dressing Ice Cream and Champagne Jelly Cheese and Crackers Coffee.

President Edwards opened the postprandial exercises with some humorous, pointed remarks relative to the bravery and courage possessed by the speakers who were to follow him, and welcomed the guests on behalf of Robert Morris lodge. Incidentally, he outlined the policy and principles of the order and added that they are "the people." In a very complimentary vein Mr. Edwards introduced Prof. George Howell, Bennett, Augusta Hampe, Mildred superintendent of the public schools, Howe, Evelyn Gates, Sadie Edwards, as "the Oliver Wendell Holmes of Hyde Park," who was toastmaster of the evening. Mr. Howell remarked that be was not a poet or a saint, but he was highly honored in being selected as the toastmaster of such an assembly. Without entering into any extended remarks, the professor introduced John J. Davies, who was assigned the toast 'St. David." His remarks were an follows: J. J. DAVIES ADDRESS.

There is no gainsaying the fact that the celebration of this day by the Welsh peo-ple is somewhat of an anomaly although it can be just as truthfully said that anomalies of this kind are such as the world is fast learning to admire both in nation and individual. We-almost universally a Protestant people—so much so that we are almost as universally a non-conformist people find ourselves today honoring one who in his day and coun-try was the chief exponent of a form of religion which our forefathers renounced centuries ago. In other words St. David was a Catholic and we are Protestants. They say politics make queer bedfellows and if pure politics and love of country are after all merely synonyms then this apparent anomaly is indeed a happy one. It certainly speaks well for St. David and for us, his people, that the bigotry and intolerance so common among men on matters of religion have not in this case, at least, triumphed over love of country and a proper appreciation of that which is good wherever it is found. Unfortunately we know very little about St. David—so little that the conscientious historian is willing to give much more than a passing notice but this much is certain, namely, that he lived during the sixth century that he was possessed of great cooquence, that he was very zealous in the cause of Christianity and that in recognition of this latter quality he was made a saint, in fact the patron saint of Wales. When we consider the times in which he lived, the extreme ignorance of the masses, the jealousy and hatred of idelatrous worshippers, and that Christianity as a system was in its infancy, we can partly imagine the enormous zeal by which he was moved.

Another thing to be placed to David's credit was that in taking up a religious life he made unusual sacrifices. Being a son of a prince he was no doubt well supplied with the good things of earth and his self denial must have appealed strongly to the simple minded people of his day and imbued them with a confi-dence in his sincerity which they might not otherwise have held. Fifteen hundred years have come and gone since David mingled with his people. Wales after many vicissitudes has finally crystalized as a logical part of the great English empire, she still worships the same God and emulates the same Christ, Her preachers now fill pulpits of every Christian country, her scholars fill chairs in the world's great universities and her missionaries have carried the work of God to the heathen in every land. How much of this is due to St. David no one but God knows, but none will defly the powerful and continued influence of one good, zealous and methodical man, such as St. David surely was. The quartette followed with a splendid rendition of Protheroe's "Tell Me, Thou Pretty Bee," which was liberally applauded.

MAYOR MOIR INTRODUCED. Mayor Moir, the next speaker, was inroduced by Toastmaster Howell, who referred to him as "a man who has the courage of his convictions and who rules the city with a sovereign sway."

His honor spoke in his usual happy and witty vein, interspersing his remarks with several of those choice anecdotes of which he has a store. He said he knew very little about municipal government and what he didn't know would fill several volumes. He told of his troubles as mayor and wittily remarked that "If I live Charles Doorsam through my term of office I am sure that when I reach the end of my earthly pilgrimage a stone can well be laid over my grave bearing the inscription 'Here lies one who has come through great tribulations.' "

He referred to the fact that the reason for poor municipal government was due largely to the public ignorance of economics and proper methods of sanitation. He said municipal government is one of the greatest moment to the average citizen and that before state and national questions lose their importance. "The only way to improve municipal government," said he, "is to base our future actions upon experience and a practical knowledge of the errors of the past."

Mrs. George Howell then recited

'Cambria" in a most clever manner, after which Miss Thomas and Mrs Rundle sang with charming effect a barcarolle by Chamanide.

all other of the Weish characteristics loyalty was predominant. Mr. Lewis spoke very briefly and stated that there was no page of history that had upon it the record of a Welshmen being disloyal to a rightcous cause. He stated that back of the beginning of the Christian era, when the continental people of Europe were plunged into the deepest despair and the darkest wars, the Welsh people had customs and traditions that would be a credit to any nation at the beginning of the present day. "And." said he, "that spirit of loyalty is still fresh today in this country."

SPEAKER FARR'S REMARKS. Hon. John R. Farr was the next speaker, responding to the "Every Man a Legislator." In intro-ducing him, Prof. Howell spoke of him as "a believer in free speech, free newspapers and free passes."

Mr. Farr dwelt upon the fact that the people of this country are the real legislators and said that a greater interest is now being manifested among people in the importance of being American citizens. "The people are be-ginning to realize," said he, "that they command: that they are the masters and the men they put in office the servants. Let the thinking men of this country never miss the opportunity to mpress upon the people the responsibility that rests on their shoulders. If there are bosses in politics, it is because of the indifference of the people and if there are factional differences Mr. Schadt would be called upon to among the members of a great party, go back into the office under the prois there are now in this state, it is because of the apathy of the people." After the quartette had rendered Banks of Allan Water" and "There Was an Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe" in a delightful manner, Professor Howell introduced W. Gaylord Thomas, who spoke on "The Lights in the Court House." Mr. Thomas made only a few brief remarks and said among other things: "The lawyer is needed to take care of the rest of mankind. I say it with all earnestness that the lawyers as a class are equal if not superior to any other class of citizens in their efforts to uphold the rights and liberties of all the people, at all times, and in all places. Even-handed in justice is the cord that binds all civilized people together, and I wish that every child in this land could be taught to always revere and honor the temple of justice and to remember the men who have built up the system of law now pre duced to toast the ladies. He said: Mr. Toastmaster, Ladies and Gentle men: Had Adam died before he lost the rib which became woman, the makers of banquets would for ages have been in a sorry plight. The memory of man run-neth not back to the time when dining halls have not resounded with praises or tingled with cynicisms for more of that one rib than of all that were left Undoubtedly the ladies around this festa Moore had the neuralgia, the gout or the mitten when he wrote what has been made the post-prandial text for me:

"My only books Were a woman's looks.
And folly's what they taught me." Who can define a women! The wisdom of a Solomon or the tongue of a Demosthenes fails. Says one writer: "Som men are different. All women are alike." Says another, more sentimentally in-clined: "Woman is a delightful musical instrument of which love is the bow and man the artist." Woman is always most man the artist." Woman is always most charitable to woman, even though it has been written, "Friendship between two women is nothing but a conspiracy against a third." They are a reticent, conservative people, saying little though they may talk much. They weave no tangled webs by learning the art of deception, socially or otherwise. They disability hattery as meat or drink though dain flattery as meat or drink though one writer has dared to think that "The best way to flatter a woman is to speal Ill of her rival." They care not for man's companionship, and throw to the winds of the four corners of the earth the soundness of the doctrine that "Mar-riage with women is the true road to Paradise."

Why speak harshly or cynically of wo-nan? Not a man ever saw the light of God's glorious sun but that his whole life was influenced by woman. We oper our eyes on a horizon limited by a moth er's love. We battle through life against enemies whose darts lose their sting when our wounds are soothed by wo man's caressing hands. We close our eyes in eternity's slumber to the iuliaby of a religion taught us at our mother's knee. It is weman whose influence has made American manhood fearless. It is the presence of woman that has gar-dened the earth as with roses from heaven.

CLOSING SONG. The quartette then sang with spiendid effect Pinsuti's "Good Night," after which the delightful evening was closed with the singing of "Heu Wlad Fy Nhadan" by Philip Warren, the guests joining in the chorus. Present at the banquet were:

TREASURER KELLY NEED NOT WORRY

ELECTION CONTEST RESULT MATTERS LITTLE TO HIM.

Time for Filing Requests with the Examiners Is Again Extended. Interesting Question That Would Arise if Mr. Langstaff, of Ohio, Was Declared the Winner-Green Ridge Presbyterian Church Files a Remonstrance-Suit Against the Trolley Company-The Peck's Had a Short Married Life.

Another extension was granted yesterday to the time allowed the attorneys in the Langstaff election contest to file their requests with the examiner for findings of fact and law. The original time set was January 20, 1900. When the day came Mr. Holgate, of counsel for the contestant, asked that an extension be granted on the ground that he was left alone in the case by the death of his associate, Mr. Hamilton, and had not had time to prepare the requests. An extension was granted for two weeks, and when the two weeks were up another two weeks' extension was granted. Again the attorneys were not prepared and court further extended the time to March 1, yesterday. When yesterday arrived the requests were still unpre-pared and another twenty days' extension was necessary. It is now a certainty that the contest can not be decided until after license court business is all attended to, asi as the treasurer's office from that time on is conducted at a very small profit, if not a loss, Mr. Kelly is not at all concerned in the outcome except in so far as success would give him some personal gratification.

In case Mr. Langstaff should win the county would possibly be without a treasurer, as he has moved out of the county and state and is at present a resident of Ohio. If the contest should show that Mr. Kelly was not elected he of course would have to vacate and then the court would be called upon to deal with the nice question of who is county treasurer. It might be that vision of law that he shall hold office until his successor is duly qualified. This, however, is hardly worth dis cussing, as there is small possibility of it ever coming to pass, for in the first place Mr. Kelly's majority quite as likely to be increased as de-creased by the result of the contest, and in the second place there is faint hope of the contest being ended before Mr. Kelly's term expires.

The Green Ridge Presbyterian church is the latest remonstrant. Rev. I. J. Lansing, pastor; Rev. L. R. Foster. assistant pastor; W. G. Parke, E. B. Sturges, M. C. Carr, F. L. Hitchcock and T. F. Wells, elders, representing the congregation, set forth, in a lengthy petition, that the church has estab-lished a mission chapel at the corner of East Parker street and Olyphant road, and that the location of the proposed hotel is only 703 feet from the chapel, and that the establishing of a drinking place there would be prejudicial to the welfare of the mission Attorneys F. L. Hitchcock and T. F. Wells will represent the petition when It comes before court next week. Altogether there are 647 application on file. This would indicate that there are at least half a hundred new houses licenses granted last year. Suit Against Railway Company. Through Attorneys P. W. Gallagher and O'Brien & Kelly suit was instituted yesterday in Prothonotary Copeland's office for Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ratchford, of Green Ridge, who want to recover $10,000 damages from the Scranton Railway company. It is alleged that on June 27, 1893, Mrs. Ratchford was injured at the corner of Washington avenue and Spruce street while a passenger on a Petersburg and Luzerne car, which came in collision at that point with a heavy wagon.

Mrs. Peck Wants Divorce. Carrie M. Peck wants a divorce from Edward Peck. The petition was filed yesterday by Attorney R. H. Holgate. Mrs. Peck alleges that she has been ieserted. They were married June 22, 1893, and started housekeeping in Benton. Nine months later, she says, her husband left her without just cause or provocation and ever since has failed o contribute to her support. She now lives in LaPlume with her father Daniel Warden, while he resides in Nicholson, two miles away,
