JENNINGS AT PITTSTON.

The Famous Ball Player Talks Future Prospects.

Special to The Scranton Tribune. Pittston, March 25 .- Hugh Jennings the famous ball player, arrived in town this morning from Ithaca. On Monday morning he will join the Cornell base ball team, who will pass through Pittston at 11 o'clock on the Lehigh Valley railroad en route to Macon, Ga., on a southern practice trip. The Cornell team plays one game at Macon, and two at Atlanta, Ga. From there they commence their trip back to the north, their southern trip occupying twelve days. In regard to the report in circulation that he had accepted a position on a Philadelphia paper, Mr. Jennings sald he had received an offer from the Philadelphia Inquirer, but had not as yet decided whether or not he would The probabilities are, how ever that he will not accept, and will be found playing with the Brooklyn club when the season opens. The management of the Philadelphia bas ball team have offered Jennings $3,500 to captain their team this season. He is desirous of accepting the offer, but the Brooklyn management refused to sell his release. He has not yet a Brooklyn contract, and intends holding out for an increase in salary. Last year he received $2,800 from the Brooklyn management, but he wants at the least $8 000 for his work this season.

The Cornell team returns to Ithaca about April 6. There is more money in base ball than in newspaper work, and as Jennings is not playing ball for love, the opening game at Brooklya on April 16, with the Boston team will undoubtedly find his name on the score card.

The alderman's office was crowded in the evening with interested and curious citizens, who expected an exciting hearing, but who went away somewhat disappointed. Healey pleaded guilty to the charge of disorderly conduct, and said he had no lawyer to defend him. As the alderman was about to deliver his sentence, Attorney W. H. Gillespie made his appearance on the scene as counsel for the prisoner, although the latter acknowledged again that he had hired no counsel. Attorney Gillespie said he wished to have the plea changed to not guilty, but the alderman said it was too late and refused to pay any attention to him, and fined Healey $2. The latter refused to pay the fine and was sent to the county jail for three days.

The regular subscription season of opera at the Metropolitan opera house n New York will close with the end of this month, but a supplementary season will be given, extending through the first two weeks of April. There has been the usual dearth of novelties this season, the management relying upon the production of the old and well tried favorites. It was recently said by the New York Sun that, although it would not be a very artistic season, it would probably be a profitable one to give alternate performances of "Faust" and "Carmen," with Calve in each opera, as the drawing power of these two operas seems to be unlimited when she appears in them. Next to Calve the bright particular star of the season seems to have been Mme. Sembrich. the greatest singer of Mozart and Rossinni in the world today, and a brilliant actress besides. Two cycles of the Niebelungen ring have been given without cuts, the first series in the evenings and the second in the afternoons, but they were not as well attended as last season. In fact the Wagner operas, although produced with magnificent casts, did not seem to draw large houses the past winter. Several performances were given in Philadelphia during the seaon, the artists traveling in a special train from New York and back

ANTHRACITE COAL TRADE. Dealers Seem to Be of Opinion That Prices Are Too High.

Philadelphia, March 25 .- The Ledger in its coal article tomorrow will say: "The anthracite coal trade continues quiet and without any increase in the demand for domestic sizes. The dealers seem to be of the opinion that the prices asked are too high under prest conditions and are expecting further concessions, hence their abstention from ordering coal. The spring is advancing, milder weather is expected, and consumers look upon the situation with complacency, as they do not at present feel the necessity of getting much fuel. This is the customary outlook in the spring, when anthracite is always dull, and, fully recognizing it, the producing companies are radically curtailing the output so as to prevent accumulations of unsold stocks, and at the same time are making concessions to induce buying.
