DUE FROM COLLECTORS.

It Was Shown at Last Night's Meeting of Board of Control That $39,013.86 Is Due Board.

The fact was brought to the surface at last night's meeting of the board of control that just $39,013.86 is still owing to the board by the various school tax collectors for the years between 1877 and 1898 inclusive.

This information was contained in a letter sent in by Controller Howell in response to a request from President Payne. The controller also sent in a list of all the collectors and the various amounts they still owe the district. A perusal of this list, which is printed further down, shows that several of the collectors owe amounts considerably over $2,000.

On motion of Mr. Gibbons last night the matter was referred to the finance committee of the board in conjunction with the attorney. The members of the committee were instructed to take such legal steps as they may deem necessary for the recovery of the money.

The following is a list of the collectors, what wards they collect for, and just how much they owe, as compiled from Controller Howell's figures:

FIFTY LEARNING GERMAN.

Prof. Colby's System Is Becoming Very Popular.

Fifty ladies and gentlemen are now enrolled to learn German in five weeks under Prof. Colby's system in Guernsey hall, 218 Washington avenue, and the first lesson was given last night. Any person, young or old, is guaranteed a practical knowledge of German in five weeks or no pay, and the terms are very reasonable.

New pupils will be received for a few days and visitors will be welcomed at 4.30 or 8 o'clock tonight. Anyone who wishes to learn to speak German without any study should join these classes at once.

OPINIONS IN THREE LACKAWANNA CASES

WERE HANDED DOWN BY THE SUPREME COURT.

Judge Edwards' Opinion in the Poor Board Case Was Affirmed, but Until the Opinion Arrives at Will Be Impossible to Say Just What the Effect of This Decision Is—The Important Case of Jermyn Against McClure Passed Upon.

At Philadelphia yesterday the supreme court handed down opinions in three Lackawanna county cases. The one of most general interest is that of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania ex. rel. John R. Jones, district attorney, against Frank L. Dickert, proceedings brought by John J. Murphy to test the right of Frank L. Dickert to the office of poor director in the South ward district, by appointment of Judge Archbald.

Judge Edwards handed down the opinion of the Lackawanna county court August 14, 1899, declaring that the office of poor director in the Scranton poor district is elective under the act of assembly of Pennsylvania, April 9, 1882. He further decided that in cases of vacancy the president judge of the courts of common pleas of Lackawanna county is the proper authority to fill said vacancies and that there was a vacancy in said office when Mr. Murphy was elected in February, 1899, and therefore F. L. Dickert was lawfully holding said office. He still further decided that the supplementary act of 1896, under which the president judge claims power to appoint to fill vacancies is constitutional.

The supreme court has affirmed this opinion, but until the full text of said opinion is at hand it is difficult to tell just what this decision definitely means. If affirmed in its entirety then the office is elective and the question concerning Mr. Dickert and Mr. Murphy's respective claims to the said office are still open, for the reason that Mr. Murphy was elected in February, 1899, the proper time for election according to the opinion of the local court.

MATTER OF ELECTIONS.

The question of whether or not it is possible to hold a valid election for the office of poor director under the election laws and the modifications of the election districts of the old South ward were not decided by the local court, but simply tentatively thrown out.

This question is, however, squarely before the local court in quo warranto proceedings instituted by Mr. Murphy on the strength of his election in the spring of 1899 and was before the court for hearing at February argument court, but was continued until April argument was held by Judge Edwards to await the decision of the supreme court in the matter pending there.

Since the commission did not except to that part of the local court's opinion which it decides that the office is elective, it is possible that the higher court did not consider this point at all and may have dealt only with the constitutional question raised. This would leave the all important right of the people to elect their poor directors still undecided by the court of last resort. In affirming the judgment of the lower court it is probable that the supreme court considered all matters before it.

The case of Jermyn & Company against Elliott, McClure & Company, was one of the biggest coal suits that ever went before the supreme court. The amount involved was more than $100,000. The importance which the attorneys attached to the case can be deduced in a way, by the fact that the appellants' paper book contains 955 pages. The report of the master and the opinion of the chancellor take up ninety and thirty-eight pages respectively.

PRIMARY QUESTION.

The primary question in the case was whether or not a parcel exchange of land had been made. The land in question is located in what was formerly Old Forge township, in the locality known as the Sibbey, Jermyn & Company tract, owned by Jermyn & Company, and operated from the north side of the brook. Each party owned coal on the side of the brook opposite to that on which the other party owned. Jermyn & Company in 1887 began mining coal from the Jermyn tract. Some years later Jermyn & Company ordered them to stop. Mr. McClure called on Jermyn and called his attention to an oral agreement between Jermyn & Company and McClure & Company was to enter upon this property. Mr. Jermyn denied the agreement, as it was stated by Mr. McClure, and brought suit to recover in equity court for the coal alleged to have been unjustly mined from his property.

The alleged oral exchange took place May 21, 1887. At that time the Anthracite Coal company owned the coal land in question, and was operated by Mr. Jermyn and he was the company's general manager. He attempted to mine the disputed coal tract, but gave it up as unprofitable, and when Mr. McClure offered to take it in exchange for land on the other side of the creek, more convenient to the Pennsylvania Anthracite company's openings, Mr. Jermyn, as general manager, approved the idea. It was claimed, and accompanied Mr. McClure to New York to interview President Putt. There the alleged exchange was effected and later Mr. Jermyn is alleged to have admitted that he understood the terms to be just as Mr. McClure contended.

CAUSE OF DISPUTE.

What these terms were is where the dispute comes in. The defendants said they gave seventeen acres of good coal for something over 100 acres of good, bad and indifferent coal. Mr. Jermyn denied this, but admitted he allowed the defendants to mine from a certain part of the plot of forty acres on condition that they pay the royalty. Mr. Putt, the third party, had died in the interim.

The defendant company showed at the time that Jermyn & Co. mined from this seventeen-acre tract. Jermyn & Co. admitted this, but claimed it was done by mistake.

The case was referred to W. W. Lathrop as master in July 8, 1893, and he had it in hand nearly a year. His finding was that while there was evidence of a parcel exchange of land there was a misunderstanding between the parties and the evidence was not sufficient to take the case out of the operation of the statute of frauds. He found in favor of Jermyn & Co. for the amount of coal owned by them and taken by the defendants, less the amount of coal Jermyn & Co. mined from the lands of Elliott, McClure & Co. by accident. This amounted to $8,900.41.

Judge Archbald reversed the master and said that there was not sufficient evidence to support the parcel agreement and entered a decree dismissing the plaintiff's bill with costs. This is now affirmed by the supreme court.

Willard, Warren & Knapp and ex-Judge A. F. Furs of Philadelphia, were attorneys for Elliott, McClure & Co. The plaintiff's attorneys were S. B. Price, I. H. Burns and Russell Dimmick.

THE CARTER CASE.

The third case was that of Jesse S. Carter, administrator, of Jesse Stewart, deceased, against Michael Miller, Theodore G. Wolf and Everett Warren, surviving executors of Benjamin Throop, deceased. The action was to recover on a bond given by Dr. Thomas Stewart, one of the executors of Jesse Stewart, ar, deceased, to insure a true accounting of his father's estate. It was in the sum of $15,752.98. The jury assessed the damages to the plaintiff at $9,000.

The defense was of a technical nature. The first ground was that the plaintiff's bond had but one surety, where two are required. The second was that the action was barred by the statute of limitations, not having been prosecuted within seven years.

Judge George S. Purdy, of Honesdale, who specially presided in the case, decided against both these contentions. The Eastern Trust company, the single surety in question, was sufficient, the judge says, as it was only an immaterial variation from the form prescribed, should not vitiate any proceeding in which it is used.

In reference to the question of limitation, he says, the act provides that it shall not be applicable to an original administration bond.

M. W. Lowry and E. C. Newcomb were counsel for the appellants. Major Jermyn appearing in the interests of the Throop estate. The appellees were represented by Welles & Torrey.

FUNERAL OF R. W. KELLOW

Many Beautiful Floral Offerings Told of the Regard in Which He Was Held.

The funeral of the late Richard W. Kellow took place from the family residence at 154 Money avenue, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The house was thronged with friends of the deceased, and everywhere there were abundant proofs of the impression left by the departed one, on all who knew him.

The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Simpson, of the Asbury church; Rev. Austin Griffin, D. D., Rev. Madison, and Rev. A. P. Chaffee, the last of whom is from Carbondale, and was a former pastor of the deceased in this city. All of these spoke simply and touchingly of Mr. Kellow, telling of his numerous virtues and his spotless and blameless life.

Several selections were finely rendered by the choir of the Asbury church, consisting of William H. Lanyon, Mrs. B. T. Jayne, Mrs. Merton Carter, William H. Trevorton, "Abide With Me," "Some Sweet Day," and "Good Night" were all finely sung. The rooms were beautiful with flowers. Among the handsome floral pieces was a large wreath of white Easter lilies, sent by the Green Ridge convalescent home, and a large arrangement of which Mr. Kellow was an active member; beautiful flowers from his Sunday school class, a large wreath from the other teachers, and a beautiful wreath of roses and lilies from those associated with him on the Delaware and Hudson railroad, of which he was so long roadmaster.

Interment was made at the Dunmore cemetery. The pallbearers were: J. S. Miller, E. S. Pratt, B. T. Jayne, E. W. Ives, D. C. Seward and E. G. Stevens.

The flower bearers were: S. A. McMullen, Pierce Butler and George Burdell, all of Carbondale, and employees of the Delaware and Hudson railroad, and William Sadler.

KNIGHTS' TEMPLAR AT WILKES-BARRE

STATE CONCLAVE TO BE HELD THERE IN MAY.

Programme That Has Been Arranged for the Three Days During Which the Knights Will Be in That City. Scheme of the Decorators Has Already Been Decided Upon—It Is Expected That Fully Two Thousand Men Will Be in the Parade on Tuesday, May 22.

At Wilkes-Barre during the week beginning Sunday, May 20, the annual convocation of the Knights Templar of the state of Pennsylvania will be held. The programme for the week is as follows:

MONDAY, MAY 21. Arrival and reception of commanderies. 3 o'clock p. m.—Trip through Prospect breaker and mines of the Lehigh Valley Coal company.

Carriage ride for visiting ladies, parties forming at Hotel Sterling promptly at 3 o'clock p. m. Reception to visiting knights and their ladies by R. E. Sir James B. Youngson, R. E. Grand Commander, and officers of the Grand Commandery at Hotel Sterling from 5 to 10 o'clock p. m. Reception to visiting knights and their ladies by Dieu le Veut Commandery, No. 4, at Memorial hall from 8 to 12 o'clock p. m. Reception of visiting commanderies.

TUESDAY, MAY 22. 10 o'clock a. m.—Annual parade and review. 3 o'clock p. m.—Session of the Grand Commandery in the morning hall. Carriage ride through the city for visiting ladies. Inspection of wire rope plant of the Hillyard mining company. Trip through the Prospect breaker and mines of the Lehigh Valley Coal company's system.

All of the above starting from the Hotel Sterling promptly at 3 o'clock p. m. TUESDAY EVENING. Ball and Tour in the Ninth regiment armory. Grand march at 8 o'clock p. m. Preceding the grand march an exhibition drill will be given by the drill corps of Allegheny Commandery, No. 35.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 23. 9.30 o'clock a. m.—Session of the Grand Commandery. 10 o'clock a. m.—Election of officers of Grand Commandery. 10 o'clock a. m.—Inspection of lace works of the Wilkes-Barre Lace Manufacturing company. 10 o'clock a. m.—Inspection of the Sheldon Axle works. 3 o'clock p. m.—Installation of officers-elect of the Grand Commandery at the Nesbitt theater.

The parade on May 22 will be one of the features of the convocation the Wilkes-Barre News of yesterday said: THE PARADE. The parade was held here several years ago and all who saw it will recall the magnificence of the event and the admiration of the people of Wilkes-Barre pertaining to it was carried out. The uniforms, the banners, the decorations, the marching, the bands, in fact, everything was of the most delightful character, and the people of the city vied with each other in entertaining the knights from a distance and showing them the various attractions of Wilkes-Barre. The city has grown since then in population and wealth, and when the knights come here from all over Pennsylvania, Wilkes-Barre will have the opportunity to again display that hospitality for which the city has earned a wide reputation.

When the Knights Templar of Wilkes-Barre start to do anything it is in a half day. They have some wonderful organizers within their ranks, and some men who have the faculty of grouping details and adjusting them to one harmonious whole. These men have been placed on the various committees and already have the greater part of the preparatory work completed. The quarters have been found for the visitors and when each commandery arrives, it will know just where to go and what has been secured, the line of march has been mapped out and the scheme of decorations is so far advanced that the News is enabled to give it in its issue of yesterday.

Wilkes-Barre has been beautifully decorated on numerous occasions in the past, but it is safe to say that this pretty little city of ours never looked so attractive as it will on the occasion of the Knights Templar convocation in May. There will be no cheap arches covered with flimsy bunting whose colors will merge in one hideous looking streak if a little rain should fall, nor no life threatening towers to block the streets. On the contrary, the decorations will be of a character that will be substantial, beautiful to the eye, and placed in such position as to give entire freedom to travel. The arch and the tower bunting have had their day and in the future all organizations wishing to make any pretense at decoration, will have to originate new ideas if they want to be considered as in the procession.

TWO THOUSAND IN LINE. There will be fully two thousand men in line and about seventy-five bands. Added to this will be all of twenty thousand strangers on no sidewalks, hence it is fitting that our city should have on its most beautiful attire. And it will. Great columns, twenty-eight feet in height, will rear their proud heads from each corner of Public Square and at night each will stand out like a huge sentinel, crowned with electric lights. They are so high as to be seen entering the city from either extremity and so beautifully decorated as to attract immediate attention and admiration.

These columns are something new in decoration and a description will give but a faint idea of their beauty. There are twenty-eight of them in all and set about Public Square, from the Court of Honor. Each column sets on a base 4 1/2 feet by 6, and is 25 feet in height. It is of solid wood, turned in a m. H. and decorated in the colors of the Knights Templar, white and black. The top is crowned with a ball of golden color from which large flags, each 5 feet 8 inches by 9 feet, will be floated, and from which various colored electric lights will shine at night. At each corner of the square, the columns will be set in triangles with a row of columns on either side of the trolley line from one corner of the square to the other. Hundreds of brilliantly colored lights will flash from their tops, the whole making one great beautiful picture.

The best musical bands in the state will be here, and among them being the Allegheny City band, Bauer's of Scranton, the famous band of Steolton, the celebrated Ringgold of Reading, the Allegheny band, the Pink Military band of Williamsport, and last but not least, our own Alexander's. The parade will take place on the 22d and the great Knights Templar ball will be held in the armory on the evening of the 21st, the various commanderies will hold receptions at their respective hotels and in this way a pleasant evening will be spent.

A Card. We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Green's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 2-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money returned.
