THE PRINCIPLE OF THE PARTY OF T

SCHOOL BOARD WINS IN BOTH INSTANCES

Miss Marie Phillips, of Jackson it depends on the constitutionality of street, is visiting friends in New York | the same Act of 1874. In relation to the controller, it says: "He shall have Mrs. Myrtle Eldridge and child, of the supervision and control of the tiscal concerns of all departments, business and officers, of the city and school district, etc.," and in another place that "the moneys of the school district shall be disbursed only on the warrant of the president and secretary of the board of school controllers, untersigned by the city controller, Nothing is said about the school Miss Cora Young recited a poem, en-titled "The Two Portraits," which was board paying him. The only remuneration mentioned is that to be provided by councils. The city is now working under the Act of 1889, while the school board continues to work under the Act of 1874. The Act of 1889, Artice 9, Section 1 to 6, specifically enumerates the duties of the city controller, but no duty is imed in the holy bonds of wedlock. The posed upon him with respect to the school district. On the strength of this. the Act of 1874 imposing a duty on the and dancing was indulged in until an controller was repealed by this Act of 1889, if indeed it was not altogether unconstitutional.

The Act of 1874 being unconstituional, or the section referring to school board work being done by the city controller being repealed, there was nothing demanding that the city controller should work for the school board, and Mr. Howell didn't propose to do it without pay.

Judge Archbald sustained this conention of the controller, and pending decision by the Supreme court, the board of control allowed Mr. Howell $100 a month to do the work. This allowance now falls, and the mayor having vetoed his allowance for clerk hire he is in a sorry predicament. District Solicitor Reedy appeared for the board also in this case. City Solicitor Vosburg represented Mr. Howell. GIST OF THE OPINION. An Associated Press dispatch from Philadelphia gives the following gist f the opinion: "The Supreme court today in a decialon by Justine Mitchell held that the act of May 23, 1574, providing for the classification of school districts of the third class is constitutional. It was alleged that the act was unconstitutional because it was local or special legislation. The case upon which the opinion is based was a mandamus proceeding against the school controllers of Pitts. ten, Luserne county. In the opinion Justice Mitchell says that the law in question provides that each city of the third class shall be the common property of the district and that the members of the board of school controllers shall have power to levy and manage the public schools in the manner provided for the maintenance of a system of common schools.

"The opinion then says that the classification of school districts intended by the act of 1871 is upon lines of distinction genuine and as fundamental as classification of cities themselves.
