FUN FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' Show Will Be Here Thursday.

A big crowd of happy children is in itself a sight well worth going a long way to see, and will be seen at Scranton, on Thursday, May 10, if the unusual efforts made by the management of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' America's greatest shows consolidated to delight the little folks bring forth merited fruit.

Such a playground for the production of fairyland spectacles, clown carnivals and animal performances as is afforded by this immense aggregation's hippodrome arena, three circus rings, two elevated stages, and aerial annex was never before devised. Its originators may justly claim to have added a most captivating Children's day to the calendar of entertainment, and one which even the children of a larger growth can most heartily approve of and enjoy.

THE BIG STREET FAIR.

It Will Be One of the Most Interesting of Recent Events.

The monster street fair and industrial exposition, under the auspices of the Scranton lodge, No. 123, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, and the Frank C. Bostock Midway Carnival company, will be opened on the grounds bounded by Washington avenue, Ash street, Poplar street and Penn avenue, on Monday, May 21, and will continue till the close of the week, Saturday, May 26.

The Bostock company has 400 regular employes on its pay roll, and it takes twenty-six cars, each of which is sixty feet long, to carry the animals and paraphernalia belonging to the organization. The company will present a collection of attractions exactly similar to those seen on the Midway Plaisance at the World's Fair in Chicago.

Booths for exhibitors will be erected on each side of the industrial streets. Manufacturers and wholesale and retail grocerymen are invited to exhibit their productions and goods.

John Power O'Connor, of the Truth, has been appointed official reporter of the fair and exposition. His headquarters will be at 125 Penn avenue, and he will be glad to furnish all the news he can to his brother journalists.

HEARING IN COAL ROAD CASE.

Arguments on the "Parallel" Question Made in Harrisburg.

Arguments in the quo warranto case brought by the Erie Railroad company against the Erie and Wyoming Valley Railroad company, to prevent the latter company from constructing a line between Hawley and Lackawaxen, were heard in the Dauphin county court at Harrisburg, Saturday, before Judges Simonton and Weiss.

The Erie's contention is that the proposed new branch is to be built in violation of law, as it is designed to parallel the Erie's line. The contemplated branch is to be the connecting link between the Erie and Wyoming and the new Delaware Valley and Kingston roads. The line, it is alleged, it will parallel is the section of the Erie and Wyoming road the Erie company is using under a twenty-five year lease, that has yet several years to run.

The Erie company was represented at the hearing by Major Everett Warren, of this city; John G. Johnson, of Philadelphia; Robert Snodgrass and Lyman D. Gelbert, of Harrisburg. The defendant company's attorneys were James H. Torrey, of this city; ex-Judge Thomas G. Shearman, of New York, and Senator S. J. M. McCarrell, of Harrisburg.

PRISON LABOR EXPERIMENT.

Roadmaking and Carpet Weaving to Begin at Once.

The experiment of employing the county jail prisoners on the roads will be made tomorrow. Two gangs of twelve men each will be sent out under guard to the West mountain end of Jackson street and set to work repairing the roadbed of that dilapidated turnpike.

This was decided upon Saturday at a meeting of the prison board, at which there were present Judge Archbald, Acting Sheriff Ryan and County Commissioners Morris, Penman and Durkin. A report was received from Supervisor A. B. Dunning, outlining his plans and making appropriate suggestions.

He advised, among other things, that the prisoners be treated as ordinary men at work, as far as it is possible to do so, giving them to understand that good behavior will be recognized and rewarded accordingly; also, that the entire scheme is proposed for their health and morals, as well as for making them useful to the county.

Warden Simpson will select the men who are to compose the work-gang, and provide for their transportation to and from work.

It was also reported to the board that the three weaving looms are in place and ready to be operated. Superintendent Kennedy was instructed to put them in operation as soon as possible.

FORTY HOURS' DEVOTIONS.

They Began Yesterday Morning at St. Peter's Cathedral.

The forty hours' devotions began yesterday morning at St. Peter's cathedral at the 10.30 o'clock mass, which was celebrated by the Rev. Miles J. McManus. Rev. D. J. MacGoldrick was deacon and Rev. P. J. Gough, subdeacon. Bishop Hoban occupied his throne while the mass was being celebrated.

In the evening at 7.30 there was a sermon by Rev. P. J. Gough, one of the most scholarly priests of the diocese. His remarks were mainly in the nature of an explanation of the meaning of the forty hours' devotions and the history of the blessed sacrament. After the sermon there was benediction of the blessed sacrament.

The period of devotions will conclude Wednesday morning. On this, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings there will be masses at 5, 6, 7 and 8 o'clock, the last a high mass. Tonight at 7.30 there will be a sermon by Rev. Miles J. McManus, followed by benediction of the blessed sacrament.

FIRE WARDENS MUST ACT.

State Forestry Commission Can Do Nothing to Check Forest Fires.

Chief Clerk Conklin, of the State Forestry commission, says the unusual number of forest fires raging throughout Pennsylvania this spring is the result of the general lack of the customary spring rains and the consequent dryness of the undergrowth of the forests. The growth of leaves on the trees has been very backward, and the conditions have been favorable to a spread of forest fires.

There are no steps that can be taken by the Forestry commission in the direction of fighting the fires, except through the fire wardens of the various townships and the county commissioners, who are vested under the law with the responsibility of preventing the spread of the destructive flames.

WIDE OPEN SUNDAY SAME AS BEFORE

SALOON KEEPERS NOT MUCH AFRAID OF CRUSADERS.

Tribune Reporter Describes a Tour of the Central City Bar Rooms Made Yesterday Afternoon—Representatives of the Men's Union Were About the City Yesterday and Told Saloon Keepers to Close or Look Out for Trouble—Eleven More Warrants Issued.

It was predicted during the week that yesterday would be a very dry Sunday in Scranton, but it was far from that.

No man with a thirst, no matter how robust it was, had any difficulty in extinguishing it. At very few of the places in the central city was the precaution taken of stationing a guard at the side door. It was open to all comers and the contents of the bar was at the disposal of the caller if he had the price.

There are three saloons in the central part of the city that are closed tight every Sunday, and the proprietors of these places did not depart from their usual custom yesterday.

As a result of last week's crusade their number was increased by one yesterday. A prominent restaurant keeper had his bar closed, though he served meals and lunches to all comers. Even with meals he refused to serve beer or liquors.

REPORTER MAKES THE ROUNDS.

During the afternoon hours a Tribune reporter made the rounds of the more prominent saloons of the central city and found them all doing a heavy business. In a few instances beer was ladled out under the name of ginger ale and Weiss beer, but usually even that slight subterfuge was not resorted to by the saloon men. One of the places visited was that of a man arrested last week, who is now under bail. His place was thronged, and the barkeepers were kept on a run waiting on the thirsty multitude.

Representatives of the Men's union of Green Ridge were about the city yesterday for the purpose of ascertaining the way in which the law was being observed. Some of these went out secretly and some openly. The latter went into all the saloons which were open, and told the proprietors to close or look out for squalls. The request was heeded for a time by nearly all of the saloonkeepers, but they almost invariably opened again after a time.

Last night the representatives of the union prepared a statement, giving the name of each drinking place visited and the condition of affairs that they found there. It certainly goes to prove that the crusade has not as yet scared the liquor dealers very badly.

It is understood that more warrants will be served today, but the details cannot be learned as the agents of the crusaders do not consider it advisable to give out any information concerning their future movements.

MISS WHITMORE'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of the late Miss Bessie C. Whitmore took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, at 609 Madison avenue. Services were conducted at the home at 2 o'clock, by Rev. Dr. Robinson, of the Second Presbyterian church.

He made a few appropriate remarks regarding the fine character and noble life led by the deceased, and several selections were rendered by a quartette from the choir of the Second Presbyterian church, led by Director J. M. Chance.

A large number of floral offerings were silent tokens of the esteem and regard of the relatives and friends of Miss Whitmore. Prominent among the floral offerings was a handsome bouquet from pupils of No. 27 school, where she was one of the teachers, and another from the teachers of the school. Interment was private, and was made at the Dunmore cemetery, in the family plot. The pallbearers were Albert G. Ives, Fred W. Stillwell, Marshall Everitt, Walter Gunster, Herbert B. Cox and William Hanley.

DICKERT TO MAKE ANSWER.

The One Question Remaining Unsettled in the Poor Board Case.

Answer will be made today by Attorney John F. Scragg, for Poor Director F. L. Dickert, to the quo warranto brought by John J. Murphy, to secure the "South ward" seat on the poor board.

The only question remaining to be settled is whether or not Mr. Murphy's election in 1899 was a legal possibility. Judge Edwards has decided and the supreme court affirmed that it is for the people to elect and not for the president judge to appoint. Judge Edwards, furthermore, gave it as his opinion that 1899 seemed to be the proper year in which to hold an election.

The respondent will say in his answer that while all this may be true, Mr. Murphy was not legally elected, as it is impossible to hold an election in the old South ward, the election machinery having been destroyed. The answer will aver that new territory has been added to the South Side wards, which, generally speaking, comprise the old South ward, and other territory taken out of it.

Mr. Murphy holds that as he had no opposition and received votes in all of the South Side wards, he must necessarily have received at least one legal vote and consequently a valid election occurred.

The matter will in all probability be settled finally at the next term of argument court.

ABOUT MISFIT MARRIAGES

Sermon of Rev. R. F. Y. Pierce Last Night in the Penn Avenue Baptist Church.

Rev. R. F. Y. Pierce, D. D., pastor of the Penn Avenue Baptist church, preached a forcible sermon last evening before a large congregation, taking as his theme, "Unequally Yoked Together, or Misfit Marriages." He found his text in the Second Epistle to the Corinthians, vi:14: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers." Among the many excellent things he said were:

"Paul says that the church of today must not form unholy alliances. He says that good and evil cannot be united and that the people of God must live apart from the world. You can't pick up coal without being soiled; you can't toy with sin without having your life blighted. There are some happy homes where husbands and wives are not of one religious faith, but there are thousands of other homes that are unhappy and in which there are thousands of bleeding hearts. If young people only thought before they stand at the altar rail together, if they only thought of the tremendous consequences, there would be less marriages between the believer and unbeliever.

"I do not marry all the couples who come before me, and I hope none of you will ever come unless God has bound your hearts with eternal love and affection. The unity of those of different forms of Christian worship is also a bad thing. The wife claims that her church is the right one; the husband claims that his is; disputes arise, discord comes and families are disrupted.

"Some people flippantly say that marriage is a lottery. Marriage is not a lottery and the man and woman who start out with this view in mind will wind up sooner or later in the divorce court. Marriage is a God ordained institution and should be the culmination of a deliberate choice and a wise selection.

"There should be a complete yielding of hearts and a surrendering of life to life. This is what makes the true marriage ceremony beautiful. Marriage always reveals faults, for in courting many defects are hidden. The true man or woman should not say, however, that he or she has been disappointed and then drift away. There are intellectual misfits in married life. The husband may be well educated, and the wife not so well, and one looks down upon the other.

"I would say to every young woman, don't marry a man of some other religious belief than your own unless you believe before God that you are ordained to do it. Be sure you think alike as well as love alike. I would say to every young woman: Don't marry a man to reform him, unless there is manhood and character in him to reform. I would tell young men not to marry for beauty alone, for if they do, marriage will indeed prove to be a lottery and the ticket drawn will be oftentimes a blank. Finally I would say to all young people contemplating marriage: Don't marry until you thoroughly understand each other's temperament."

CHARGED WITH PERJURY.

J. W. Guernsey Causes the Arrest of Josephine Bennett.

J. W. Guernsey has begun criminal proceedings against Miss Josephine Bennett, charging her with perjury. The woman was arrested in Lenox, Saturday, by Constable Mitchell, on a warrant issued by Alderman Kasson. She went before Justice J. B. Swartz and entered bail in the sum of $1,000, her father becoming her bondsman.

In Mr. Guernsey's affidavit he states that the testimony Miss Bennett gave under oath before Judge Savidge, to the effect that he (Guernsey) had offered her $250 or a piano if she could induce Charles Bennett to change his testimony formerly given, was absolutely false, he never having made any such offer. The testimony was given in the case of M. W. Guernsey against J. W. Guernsey, recently tried here, in which a verdict was given for J. W. Guernsey.

BRIEF MENTION OF MEN OF THE HOUR

E. B. STURGES, WHO IS AT THE HEAD OF CRUSADE.

Years Ago When He Bore the Brunt of a Similar Movement His Friends Told Him He Was Inviting Certain Ruin, but They Proved Bad Prophets—Success of F. W. Pearsall as a Railroad Y. M. C. A. Worker. Praise for E. W. Softly—The New Clerk of Common Council.

It takes a man with a lot of sand as well as a lot of civic pride and consideration pro bono publico, to undertake the task that has been assumed by E. B. Sturges and his associates of the Men's union of Green Ridge. There is no question of Mr. Sturges possessing a deep regard for the city's welfare, and those who know him will not hesitate to tell you he has the other requisite. He led the crusade of 1870, which gave this city such a cleansing that it didn't know its moral self when it stopped to take a look about at the conclusion of the cleansing process.

Mr. Sturges was then a young lawyer with his name and fortune to make. He was told by his friends that he was surely ruining every chance he possibly could have for success. He thought differently and persevered as his light led him. Today he is one of the most prominent, respected and, incidentally, wealthiest men in the city. He proceeded on the principle that honest, law-abiding and law-respecting men would understand his motives and he did not care what the other fellows thought about him or his work. He did not expect applause from the men who were then learning, with sadness and sorrow, that the law cannot be ignored and spat upon is there is enough civic pride in a community to raise a protest.

F. W. Pearsall, the former secretary of the Railroad Young Men's Christian association of this city, was in town Saturday and yesterday and was warmly greeted by his host of Scranton friends and admirers. Mr. Pearsall may almost be described as the father, or at least the step-father of the railroad association movement in this city, for with his coming it received its greatest impetus. He worked early and late to build it up and lead men to turn their thoughts to the Master. It was not alone in association work that his energy and strong personality was felt. In every form of missionary work in the city his services were freely asked for and always given.

When the Spanish war broke out and the necessity for Y. M. C. A. field workers was apparent, Mr. Pearsall was one of the first asked by the International committee to go forward with the soldiers. He hesitated not a moment. There was work to be done and he wanted to do it and a few days afterward found him at Chickamauga, where he did yeoman service among the young men drawn from all parts of the country to that great mobilizing camp. Soon after his return to this city he was called to enter a wider field of usefulness in the Railroad association of New York. The qualities that won him success in this city are doing the same thing for him there and making him one of the best known railroad association workers in the country.

E. W. Softly, of this city, who now resides at Des Moines, Iowa, where he is employed as window dresser by the big dry goods firm of Harris & Emery, has been receiving high praise in the papers of that city for some recent decorations he did there. The Register of that city says:

"There are no less than twenty distinct stocks displayed in the windows, and all the work and designing, electrical and otherwise, is the handiwork of Mr. E. W. Softly, who has been with the firm as decorator for the past two years. No more beautiful show windows have ever been seen in this city, and the firm is to be congratulated upon their securing the services of so artistic and capable a gentleman."

The Times, of the same city, had the following: "The decorations were the work of Mr. E. W. Softly, than whom no window decorator in the country has a higher reputation for artistic abilities. He is the holder of two gold medals won in contests in the national association of his craft. The windows which were displayed yesterday when the curtains were drawn at the opening hour, were certainly marvels of their art. In the west window the striking feature is the figure of a gigantic peacock, standing in a perfect sea of the finest goods, and with a gorgeous tail built up entirely from colored electric lights. The window displays have seldom been excelled and the interior decorations were in keeping with them."

Mr. Softly developed his talent for window dressing here and was employed in that capacity by several large dry goods houses of this city before a flattering offer from the Des Moines firm caused him to remove to that city. He possesses a combination of taste and originality that is as rare as it is desirable.

William Lynett, the recently elected clerk of the common council, is a portege of Common Councilman Grier, the "King of the Third Ward," and one who does him credit. For several years Mr. Lynett has had the ambition strong within him to be clerk of the common council, but it was not until this year that things so shaped themselves as to make his election possible and Grier was astute enough to immediately see the possibility and take advantage of it. Mr. Lynett makes an efficient clerk and is rapidly winning the regard of the members of council. He is painstaking, quick and courteous.

The new clerk is a vocalist of some local renown, his fine voice having been heard at nearly all of the public entertainments for charitable objects that have been given in this city during the last five years. He also possesses no little ability for the histrionic art and has won applause in several of the amateur productions that have been given here during the last few years. Mr. Lynett is perhaps the youngest man who has ever been elected to the office of clerk of the common council. He is a resident of the Third ward, which has been the scene of some of the most desperate political battles in the history of the city. Reared in that atmosphere and with such a resourceful coach as "King" Grier it is only reasonable to suppose that Mr. Lynott has a knowledge of the game of politics that his youthful appearance gives no hint of to the casual observer.
