The annual meeting of the board of directors of the Lackawanna hospital was held last night at that institution, and the reports of the various officers showed that the hospital's funds are in far from the condition that they should be, and that the people of Scranton should contribute more fully than they do to this excellent charity. The treasurer's report showed that the balance now on hand is $4,994.59, and the secretary's report showed that the liabilties of the institution are $25,871.83. while the assets are only $6,455,69, a de lciency of $19,416.14.

Election of officers was held, the same officials being re-elected. They are: President, James P. Dickson; treasrer, E. L. Fuller; secretary, H. H. Sively. The meeting was called to or-der at 8 o'clock by J. F. Snyder, who his voice has an edge not exactly was elected chairman, H. H. Sivelly being chosen secretary. The minutes with careful, pleasing and extremely of the last meeting held were read, and President Dickson then read his annual report, which embodies that of Superintendent Elin K. Kraemer of the

The work accomplished has been far heavier than ever before, the total number of days in which in-patients were supported being 21,998, an increase of 1,330 days over last year, which up to that time was the greatest. The cost of maintenance was also high, the total expen-ditures being $24,977.07, or $7.945 per patient per week. In addition to this, and not included in expenditures of maintenance, was $5,348.89 paid on the Zang property, next us on the north, and for putting the house in condition for occupancy by the nurses. The purchase of this property had become an absolute necessity. The officials of the Delaware and Hudson company had most generously given us the use of their old office building, on Franklin avenue, and as we had the use of it absolutely free, e could not ask them to spend any monies n its repair, and it had become both uncomortable and unsafe as a home. One-half the osa of the lot ($3,750) was paid in cash, the alance remaining on bond and mortgage.

The cost of maintenance during the year seems righ, but we had a great many extraordinary This, in a large measure, was due our having a number of contagious diseases develop-these are always a source of added ехрепн

To the ladies of the city our thanks are also xtended. Their kindness in furnishing needle-work, flowers, and other things, too numerous to mention, is thoroughly appreciated. We do not like to mention names in this report, but I feel that we should make especial note of the work of Mrs. E. N. Willard. She has done wonderful labor in enlisting the aid of marchants, workmen, miners and others, in contributing to the good cause.

To the general public I can only say, thank you. You have done well, and the God of the suffering will bless you for it.

To the board of directors, the officers and superintendents, in fact, all connected with our hospital, I thank you for your aid, loyalty and consideration in my endeavor to make your in stitution what it should be-a glorious charity.

Respectfully submitted,

James P. Dickson, President, TREASURER'S REPORT.

Treasurer E. L. Fuller gave his annual report. It showed that on April 1889, the balance in the bank was responsible for the conversion of $251.12. On March 31, 1900, the notes discounted during the fiscal year amounted to $12,500, and the receipts from other sources amounted to $20,-870.02, a total of $33,621.14. The disbursements during the year amounted to $28,625.55, paid for the maintenance of the patients and the other incidental expenses. The balance in the bank is $4,994.59. His report was approved, as was also that of Secretary Sivelly, which showed that the liabilities amounted to $25,871.83, being estimated as follows: Unpaid bills, $6,833.83; notes in banks, $12,500; children's ward fund (loan), $2,788; mortgage on the Zang residence, which was purchased for the use of the hospital patients, $3,750. The assets were itemized as follows: Cash in bank, $4,994.59; appropriation due from the state treasurer (one month), $1,250; amount due from pay patients, as per superintendent's books, $211.10; total, $6,455.69.

The report was then presented of Mrs. E. N. Willard, showing that in the course of the year she had collected for the hospital $1,468.13. A vote of thanks was tendered her for her services. It included monies received from the employes of large manufac turing establishments, miners, and other workmen, and from several local philanthropists, and also acknowledged favors done by Robling Bros., Rehrig

& Back, G. A. Briegel, C. A. Nicholson Howley Bros. and Miss Bessie Lance The organization of the board and election of officers then took place. Last year's officials, as told above, were re-elected, and James P. Dickson Hon, Alfred Hand and Father O'Reilly were appointed directors for a term of three years. John F. Snyder, Colonel E. H. Ripple and Conrad Schroeder were appointed the executive commit-In the course of the meeting President Dickson read an article giving the work done by a number of other hospitals, and he showed how the Lackawanna hospital, while doing an enormous amount of work, is incurring less expense than any of them, the average cost for the maintenance of a patient at the Lackawanna hospital being $7.94 a week.

> One peculiar thing which is likely to cut a prominent figure in the illegal liquor selling prosecutions develops in the case against J. S. Mc-Cabe, one of the proprietors of the St. Cloud, where it is alleged liquor was sold on Sunday, March 25. Mr. McCabe demanded a hearing when arraigned before Alderman Ful-dramatic effect. He was best in the Under the law, as it has been induet from "Il Provatore." Like his terpreted hereabouts, such an explacompanions he was kind in respondnation would not be permitted by the court as an attempt at a defense. As Judge Archbald said in his charge to the jury yesterday:

A man who has a hotel, a license, cannot shield himself by the suggestion that somebody else did it; that he gave strict orders that his house and har should be closed on Sunday. The man is master of his own house; he is bound to see that it is closed: If he suffers his bar to be open and his bar-keeper to be there, he is as responsible as though he himself were present and might just as well himself go and deal out the drinks. He is an accessory to what may hap-pen in the way of selling on Sunday or selling completed for the coming trip of the iquors on election day. TAKE AN OPPOSITE VIEW. Mr. McCabe's attorneys, Willard, Warren & Knapp, however, claim this interpretation is not a correct one, and propose to prove their contention by securing Mr. McCabe's discharge. They say that while this was the law, it is the law no longer, and as an assurance of the correctness of their views they point to the fact that one of their number, ex-Judge Willard, wrote the opinion when the ruling was made by the Superior court.

The decision was made in the case of the Commonwealth against Johnson, 2 Superior court reports. Johnson was a Butler county druggist, who was convicted of selling illegally, in that one of his clerks sold whiskey more than once on the one prescription. He wanted to show that it was done without his knowledge and against his orders, but the court below ruled out the offer. The Superior court declared this to be an error, and in the opinion containing the decision Judge Willard said practically that a defendant in a liquor license case should be treated the same as any other person accused of crime; act of his agent, in committing this nah. offense, than he could if the offense was assault and battery, other things being equal. Under no other rule can the rights of honest men be preserved, and they are entitled to invoke this rule, notwithstanding that some dishonest men may perchance es

Further on in his decision of the case Judge Willard makes the remark that a hotel proprietor can not be expected to stand behind his bar continually to see that the law is obeyed: to guard. for instance, against a bartender selfing to a minor or a person of intemperate habits. It would be a physical impossibility, the judge says. The hearing in the McCabe case took place last Friday and Alderman Fuller has not yet rendered his decision. In discussing the matter with a Tribune man yesterday, he strongly intimated that he was disposed to accept the reading of the law as Mr. Mc-Cabe's attorneys interpret it. O'Malley, who has the active charge of the case, expressed himself as fully confident of being able to maintain the position he has taken.

EFFECT OF DECISION.

Should this contention be sustained it would put the crusaders to the neessity of proving that the proprietor sold the drink himself or that his employe sold it with the consent and knowledge of the employer. At present, as Judge Archbald's remarks yes terday set forth, it was taken for granted that if the employer did not know the law was being violated on his premises he should know it and he was not permitted to offer his ignorance as a defense. One of the liquor cases was present ed to the grand jury during the afternoon. It is the one against John Cavanaugh, 545 Penn avenue, charged with selling without a license and selling on Sunday. E. B. Sturges appeared as prosecutor. The witnesses for the commonwealth were Robert Wilson, James Reid and George E. West. District Attorney Jones said he has no fixed programme for presenting the cases. As fast as they are eached they will be taken up, he said.

Attorney F. E. ers said, last evening, that the representatives of the crusaders were kept too busy with the grand jury to cut out any new work and contented themselves with laying three or four informations against speak-easy keepers in Alderman Howe's court. The warrants will likely be served today. He could not say whether or not the discoveries made on Sunday last by the pickets who were about to observe the effects of the crusade would be used as evidence.

In the case of James C. Taylor, Ninth street, who was discharged by Alderman Howe, Saturday, because of an error in the information, a new warrant was sworn out charging selling on Sunday. Isaac Evans, of 403 North Main ave-

FUNERAL OF G. W. FRITZ. Services Were Held at the Home on

took place yesterday afternoon from the residence, 520 Madison avenue, services being conducted at the home and interment being made in the Dunmore cemetery. At 2.30 o'clock the home was thronged with friends of the deceased, and impressive services were conducted by Rev. G. L. Alrich, pastor of the Grace Reformed church. He made a few remarks, touching on the life and character of Mr. Fritz, paying a fitting tribute to the memory of the departed. Several selections were rendered by a quartette selected from the choir of the church.

There were a very large number of floral remembrances, in the shape of beautiful wreaths, pillows, crescents, and loose flowers, from the friends and relatives of the deceased. Among them was a handsome pillow made of lilles, roses, etc., with a Masonic device worked in flowers, sent by Union lodge. No. 291, of Masons, of which Mr. Fritz was a member. The employes at Mr. Fritz's store on Lackawanna avenue sent a splendid tribute of their esteem in the form of a column of roses, lilles and other flowers, with the fioral inscription, "Not dead, but only sleeping."

Interment was private and was made at the Dunmore cemetery. The pallbearers were Colonel E. H. Ripple, C. P. Matthews, James Linen, James he could no more be held guilty of the | Pitch, W. H. Storrs and H. M. Hau-
